EARL BUTZ REPLACING HARDIN

Price Hikes Limited To Average Of 2½%

Washington (AP) — The Price Commission adopted complex guidelines Thursday requiring post-freeze price increases to be justified by legitimate business costs and aimed at holding the national inflation rate to 2.5% a year.

The new guidelines will be effective for the Phase 2 economic period that begins at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, but an immediate upsurge of retail prices next week may be effectively blocked by a commission rule requiring posted price lists.

"This means that some prices will go down," said Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson. "Some will not increase at all. Some will go up more than 2.5%."

The commission shied away from adopting a general price standard applying to the nation's businesses, but instead laid down general rules covering prices by manufacturers, retailers, wholesalers, service industries and professionals.

Basic Guideline

The basic guideline is this: Only price increases that can be justified on the basis of cost increases, minus any amount of worker productivity gains, will be allowed. If the price is over 2.5% and can be justified by this formula, it will be allowed by the commission.

But the price boost may not be so great as to cause an increase in a company's pre-tax profit rates, measured as a percentage of sales. In other words, profits can increase only through a rise in sales volume if a price increase is involved.

The commission's guidelines, announced at a news conference after days of late-evening work sessions by the seven-member panel, raised many questions that will be answered only when final regulations are published, maybe by the end of the week.

But Grayson conceded that consumers may have a difficult time knowing when a price has been boosted legally in line with the commission's guidelines.

Companies will be encouraged, but not required, to show customers cost information that would justify price increases in their stores, he said.

Stores Must Post Lists

But the commission threw in a provision that may prevent a quick upswing in retail prices immediately after the freeze ends. All retail prices will remain frozen until stores prominently post lists of prices that were in effect during the freeze.

The price list must be posted for all food items. For other retail stores, a list of selected items — such as a product that does a high volume of business — must be posted.

The price guidelines cover only the period that begins Sunday, Nov. 14. Prices may be increased to recover only those increased costs incurred after 12:01 a.m. Sunday. Firms will not be allowed to increase prices to get relief, retroactively, for costs that might have gone up during or before the freeze.

Some prices could go up immediately Sunday, Grayson said, because a business could claim that it began incurring new costs on that date.

3-Tier System

The price guidelines will be policed under a complicated three-tier economic system announced Wednesday.

Price boosts that may be announced by the nation's largest companies will be frozen for at least another month.

It is these companies — those with annual sales of more than $100 million — that must notify the government of all planned price increases in advance.

The commission's guidelines say the large companies will be able to put price increases into effect if the commission has not ruled to the contrary within 30 days. About 45% of all sales will be in this category, the government says.

Another 5% of sales will be a second group, companies which can put price increases into effect after merely reporting to the government. These com-

Reorganization Plan Dropped

. . . AT AGRICULTURE DEPT.

Washington (AP) — President Nixon personally announced Thursday he is replacing his embattled secretary of agriculture and abandoning a plan to abolish the Agriculture Department that was not popular in the Farm Belt.

Nixon told newsmen that 56-year-old Clifford M. Hardin is leaving the Cabinet to take "an exceptionally attractive offer" from a private firm. Hardin is a former chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

Hardin, the fifth original member of the Nixon Cabinet to leave his post, will be succeeded—if the Senate agrees—by Earl L. Butz, 62, who was an assistant secretary of agriculture in the Eisenhower administration.

Hardin will become vice chairman of the board of the Ralston Purina Co. of St. Louis, a new post at the firm, said R. Hal Dean, Purina's board chairman and chief executive officer. Dean said Hardin would be in charge of corporate research and development and have broad responsibility in strategic planning. Butz also lists himself as a director of the firm, a leader in human and animal food that operates worldwide.

The White House said Hardin's resignation will be effective Monday and Agriculture Undersecretary J. Phil Campbell will serve as acting secretary until the Senate confirms Butz for the post.

Under Farmers' Fire

Hardin had come under fire from farmers, principally because corn prices are low at a time when crops are heavy.

Nixon said he told Hardin before nominating him for the job that "nobody could be a popular secretary of agriculture."

Butz, speaking briefly to reporters as Nixon stood by, turned to Hardin and remarked: "The price of corn, Mr. Secretary, is too low for comfort."

With a presidential election less than a year away, the administration obviously is concerned about its standing in agricultural circles.

Another cause of Farm Belt concern has been a Nixon plan to abolish the Agriculture Department and consolidate its activities in other Cabinet agencies, notably a proposed new Department of Economic Development.

'A New One'

Nixon said he is dropping this proposal, which had gotten nowhere in Congress, and now envisions an Agriculture Department that will be "an entirely new one" concerned only with serving farmers.

Among comments on the new appointments, William Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said he is pleased.

Tony Dechant, president of the National Farmers Union, said he wishes Butz well but added that the problems the farmer faces today "requires digging deeper than the top man in the Department of Agriculture."

No Link, Ziegler Says

In response to a question, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Hardin's resignation was totally unrelated to the problems of surplus corn and depressed farm prices.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said the nomination of Butz means Nixon is bringing back "the discredited agricultural policies" of Ezra Taft Benson, President Eisenhower's secretary of agriculture.

"Earl Butz was one of the chief architects of the Benson policies during the 1950s that forced hundreds of thousands of farmers off the land," O'Brien said.

Chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., of the House Agriculture Committee, said he has known Butz for many years.

Preliminary Plan OKd For Wilderness Area

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Parks and Recreation Board Thursday unanimously approved preliminary plans for development of the 1,400-acre Wilderness Park which runs parallel along Salt Creek south of Pioneers Blvd.

The preliminary plans presented by Lincoln architect L. A. Enersen call for a wilderness area, a nature center, programmed auto trails, foot trails, bridle trails, a bird sanctuary and an arboretum.

Enersen told the board that he would recommend that the wilderness area be left as it is and pretty much "to its own devices" to preserve the wilderness atmosphere.

However, he said dead timber would have to be removed periodically to avoid its falling on someone.

Plans for the area include foot trails and a nature center with auditorium facilities for instructional purposes and a library, Enersen said.

When asked if the plans for the nature center at Wilderness Park might overlap the services available at the Ager Nature Center at Pioneer's Park, Enersen indicated that they would be serving differtnt functions.

He said that the center proposed for Wilderness would be the main nature study center with an auditorium to accommodate about 100 persons with scheduled talks and library services.

Pioneer's "serves a different function," Enersen said, noting that it basically provides two to three-hour trips for school groups on weekday afternoons.

In order to serve people who would not be able or care to walk in the wilderness area but would enjoy the nature study of the park, Enersen suggested that there be programmed auto trails in a portion of the park where tapes would be available to hook up in cars for information about the less wooded areas of the park along the auto trails.

Mrs. Helen Boosalis inquired about the number of auto trails in the plans since originally no cars were to be allowed in the Wilderness Park.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said that this is something that the board would have to work out in going over the plans.

Enersen said the car trails were included in order to reach more people and increase the educational benefits of the area to more people.

Enersen said that certain recreational activities were included in the design of various portions of the park incluling bridle trails, and trails for hiking and bicycling and also suggested that stables might be included and leased.

He said that the area is large enough to lend itself to varying lengths of rides on the trails.

He also outlined plans for an arboretum for educational purposes to include plantings native to Nebraska as well as other areas.

Westview Residents Moved Without Approval Of Officials

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Although 35 Westview residents were moved back Monday to the facility which was evacuated Sept. 24 because of fire, the situation appeared uncertain Thursday when it was learned they were moved without consent of the State Department of Agriculture.

According to State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher, no prior contact was made with his office concerning the move, but Commissioner William Grossman asked Wednesday that the state office send inspectors out to the facility.

Grossman, who indicated Tuesday that he had no knowledge of the Monday move until after it occurred, said he was under the impression Tuesday that everything had been worked out with the state on the 35 persons moved back there.

He said until he talked with Kreuscher, he had no knowledge that everything was not in order for approval of a board and room license from the State Department of Agriculture.

Kreuscher told The Star that the inspection of the facility Wednesday revealed that many items which had to be completed before the facility could be licensed as a board and room home were not finished and that the people there would have to be excluded from requiring care in order to be placed in the board and room facility.

Kreuscher said the only way that he would issue a board and room license for the facility would be if the people out there don't need care.

He said he would require that Dr. George Underwood, Lincoln-Lancaster County health director, verify in writing "which has been notarized" that the people residing at Westview "require absolutely no care."

Kreuscher said that according to the law, a board and room facility is just what it says and means that persons availing themselves of those services are able to care for themselves and come and go at will.

Grossman said Thursday that he thought the county should definitely comply with state regulations and if Dr. Underwood can't verify that each of these individuals need no care, then they should be placed in another facility.

Commissioner Robert Colin said Tuesday that he was out at Lancaster Manor when the bus arrived to pick up the Westview people to return them to the county home and "I never saw such a happy group of people."

He said he and Commissioner Kenneth Bourne were both at the meeting last week when the residents were re-evaluated by Dr. Underwood and the decision was made to return them to Westview.

Bourne acknowledged that he was at the meeting but said he was not aware that they were to be moved Monday.

'Ox-Bow Incident' Author Clark Dies

Reno, Nev. (AP) — Walter Van Tilburg Clark, author of the "Ox-Bow Incident" and "Track of the Cat," two brooding novels about the Old West, is dead at 62.

Clark's novels were known from their Old West realism. "The Ox-Bow Incident" described a lynch mob and "Track of the Cat" told of a loner who became lost and died in a snowstorm while tracking an animal.

Curtis And Hruska Hail Hardin's Work

By The Associated Press

Clifford Hardin's decision to step down as secretary of agriculture and take a post with the Ralston-Purina Co. in St. Louis was followed by accolades for the job he has done in the Cabinet and regrets over his decision.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., expressing regret for Hardin's decision, termed him "an able and dedicated public official . . . genuinely interested in agriculture and rural America."

Curtis said that despite "almost insurmountable odds" Hardin "because of his tact and diplomacy and respect which he commanded was able to do a creditable job."

Curtis said Hardin "was always ready and willing to speak up for the American farmer" and said, "I want to extend to him my very best wishes in the new work that he has chosen ot follow."

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., from whose office came the first word that the resignation had actually been tendered, said that "in nearly three years in the position, he has demonstrated his deep dedication to America's agricultural community."

Hruska said the "stewardship of this important program has many high marks to commend it."

He said that "exports of agricultural products have grown to an all time high. Domestic markets have greatly expanded. Federal emphasis on and participation in rural development programs has increased sharply" under Hardin's administration.

The passage of time," Hruska said, "continues to prove his unusual foresight in many of his decisions. I am sure the agricultural community will in the coming years realize many long range benefits from those actions."

Alternative N-Power Plant Cooling Devices Available

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of four articles by Outstate Nebraska Bureau Reporter Sam Thorson on the tomic power plants and their effect of the Missouri River.)

By SAM THORSON
Star Staff Writer

Ft. Calhoun — What happens if the ecological study of the Missouri River now being conducted by 12 co-operating agencies demonstrates that thermal emissions from the two nuclear power plants under construction on the Nebraska side of the river are harmful to aquatic life?

Preliminary sampling of river life, coordinated by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, is scheduled for completion late this month, with the final phase of sampling to begin soon after the plants begin production in early 1973, and run through the summer of '74. Under scrutiny are the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) Ft. Calhoun Nuclear Station near here and the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville.

The testing may give the utilities a clean bill of health, or it may demonstrate that heated-water discharges from the plants' cooling systems (which will use river water as a coolant to re-convert atomically-heated steam to water) are ecologically destructive.

In either case, the expensive plants will not have to abandon power production. Alternatives involving pre-cooling of the heated river water before it is [illegible] now available, including several varieties of cooling towers; cooling lakes; and a combination of aeration and cooling ponds.

All available methods would involve considerable initial expense and require continuous operation, undercutting the per-unit cost advantage enjoyed by nuclear production compared to fossil-fuel production.

And although OPPD and NPPD decline to speculate at this point about the extra cost of pre-cooling or its effect on power rates, the increased costs would have to be passed on to the power consumer. According to a projection done several years ago by the Federal Water Quality Administration (now part of the Environmental Protection Agency), pre-cooling would result in a 1% increase in rates paid by the consumer. Other estimates are higher.

So, if the river study condemns the thermal emissions as ecologically harmful, power planners in government and the power industry could be confronted with what is becoming a classic environmental hangup: should costly pollution-abatement devices be installed, requiring the consumer to foot the bill, or should practices be allowed to continue which may necessitate

Chinese Praises 'Great People' Of America

(c) New York Times News Service

United Nations, N.Y. — Forty-six Chinese officials — Peking's delegation to the United Nations — arrived Thursday on two French airliners and were taken to the Roosevelt Hotel after Chiao Kuan-hua, the chief delegate, made a statement praising the "great people" of the United States and greeting New Yorkers "of all walks of life." (More on Page 2.) In Washington, the Nixon administration announced that the Chinese delegates would have the same travel restrictions in this country that Soviet diplomats have, even though Washington and Peking have no formal relations. The decision to give the Chinese travel restrictions considerably less severe than those on three other Communist nations was described as a major policy move.

Hikes Must Be Justified

Senate OKs Military Aid

Washington — After voting 46 to 42 to restore $318 million that had been cut in committee, the Senate approved a bill providing for $1.5 billion in military aid to foreign nations in the current fiscal year. (More on Page 2.)

Cable TV Compromise Reached

Washington — A compromise plan that would allow cable television companes to enter the nation's smaller cities — but not the 50 largest markets — and require the cable operators to pay copyright fees for films they show was reached by the broadcasting and cable industries and endorsed by the big film companies. The White House, the Federal Communications Commission and Congress were expected to accept the compromise.

Stock Market Sags

New York — In the first major display of disapproval by business since the announcement of the 90-day wage-price freeze last August, the stock market dropped to a new low for the year. (More on Page 24.)

Japanese Writes To Peking

Tokyo — Shigeru Hori, secretary general of Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party, disclosed that he had sent a letter to Premier Chou En-lai in Peking suggesting a visit to Peking to open government-to-government communications. It was Japan's first official overture to mainland China designed to lead to diplomatic relations.

Butz To Replace Hardin

China Delegates Arrive, Smiling

New York (UPI) — Dapper as corporation directors at meeting time and smiling infectiously, the Communist Chinese delegation arrived Thursday to take over the China seat in the United Nations and served immediate notice of its intent to champion the world's underdeveloped nations.

Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, the delegation leader, said in an arrival statement that his government "has all along supported the oppressed peoples and nations in their just struggles to win freedom and liberation, oppose foreign interference, and become masters of their own destiny."

After 22 years of frustrated attempts for U.N. membership — and inveighing against the capitalistic West — the first members of the delegation landed Thursday afternoon on American soil after a flight from Paris.

They were taken by limousine motorcade to the Roosevelt Hotel, a longtime bastion of conservative Republicans, where they will rent the complete 72-room 14th floor — eight stories above the former New York City headquarters of the late Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

The Chinese Communist flag — five gold stars on a field of red — was hoisted in front of the hotel. It flew, at the request of the delegation, at one side of the entrance marquee with the American flag on the other.

The hotel, five blocks west of the United Nations, was named for Teddy Roosevelt and has a "Rough Rider" bar.

The delegates started their journey in Peking and stayed over a night in Paris before transferring to the Air France jetliners. Chiao, a tall, bespectacled, commanding figure, came on the first flight to arrive with Huang Hua, who will be the permanent Chinese U.N. delegate.

Directly across the aisle from them on the plane was Wang Hai-yung, who is reported to be a niece of Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Another woman delegate, who speaks a clipped English, acted as interpreter for Chiao when he spoke to about 150 newsmen from a podium near the plane at Kennedy Airport.

Friendly Chilean Crowds Mob Fidel

Santiago, Chile (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro, jostled by friendly crowds, began a state visit to Chile Thursday with a call on President Salvador Allende.

The bearded Cuban leader, making his first trip outside Cuba in seven years, wheeled up to the presidential palace accompanied by a security entourage in shiny blue sedans.

More than a score of Cuban security guards, kept watch over him.

Troubled by a cold, Castro nevertheless appeared fresh and rested after an eight-hour direct flight Wednesday from Havana. He stepped over two Russian-made submachine guns in the back seat of his bulletproof car and strode into the palace wearing olive-drab fatigues, an army cap and combat boots.

Castro spoke with his Allende for 90 minutes in the first of two conversations Thursday, then appeared on the balcony of Allende's second-floor office to wave to the crowd.

Allende beamed and Castro clapped heartily when the spectators shouted the Chilean president's name.

Several in the crowd shouted for a speech by Castro. But he just laughed and shrugged. Then with the shorter Allende hurrying to keep up, he [illegible] and came out to meet the crowd personally.

Despite a cordon of Chilean guards and Castro's own security agents, hundreds of photographers and newsmen waiting outside mobbed both of them. The crush was so great that Castro and Allende were forced to retreat to the palace.

Increases Must Be Justified

Spot Checks Locally

Other prices, those of a corner grocery store or a local drugstore, will be subject merely to spot checks by the Internal Revenue Service to determine if there are violations.

Spotting a price violation may be difficult for the average consumer, however, since the price guidelines are complex.

Grayson said consumers can complain to their local Internal Revenue Service offices if they feel a violation has occurred.

The Cost of Living Council has already exempted nearly one-fifth of the goods and services that make up the average American's cost of living, including prices of used cars, homes, custom-made goods, raw agricultural products, dues, taxes and interest rates.

Here are other highlights of the guidelines:

—Rents will remain frozen until the Price Commission hammers out final guidelines. The government, however, has exempted commercial, industrial and farm rents from controls, as well as rents on new homes or apartments.

—The guidelines apply generally to prices charged for services, including such things as doctors' and dentists' fees. The commission said, however, that because of the widely varying types of costs and market conditions in service industries, separate regulations may be required.

—Rate increases by the nation's largest utilities must be submitted to the commission for approval, and all rate boosts by utilities will be subject to the price controls.

Up, With Review

"Some regulated firms' proposed rate increases have been approved by regulatory authorities, but were not allowed to become effective because of the freeze," the commission said. "Such increases may go into effect; however, the appropriate regulatory authority shall review such increases for consistency with the goals of the economic stabilization program."

In other economic developments Thursday, the House Banking Committee killed any chance that President Nixon's Phase 2 economic legislation will be enacted until at least next month.

The committee recessed until Nov. 30, with work still incomplete on the bill, which would extend Nixon's economic control powers from April 1972 to April 1973. This means the House will not vote on the bill before the week of Dec. 6 at the earliest.

In New York, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told members of the New York Stock Exchange that because of Nixon's economic moves, "there are many reasons for being optimistic about the future."

Burns predicted a moderation in the rate of inflation. He said the Federal Reserve system "intends to see that adequate bank reserves are provided to finance a vigorous, but sustainable, expansion."

Senate Votes For More For Military Aid Than Economic

Washington (AP) — The Senate completed its two-step revival of the foreign aid program Thursday by passing a $1.5 billion military aid measure.

Before voting 65 to 24 to approve the bill the Senate restored $318 million to it in response to a warning that reductions might jeopardize U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

Together with the $1.1 billion economic aid bill passed Wednesday night, the military bill provides a $2.6 billion package in place of the $2.9 billion measure rejected just 13 days ago.

Bill Goes To House

The bill now goes to the House which earlier this year voted $3.4 billion for the aid program, just $100 million below the Nixon administration's request.

The administration won a major victory when the Senate voted 46 to 42 for an amendment by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, to restore $318 million cut by the Foreign Relations Committee.

It rejected 46 to 43 a move to lower the bill's $341 million spending ceiling on U.S. operations in Cambodia.

But the bill, as passed, contains Democratic leader Mike Mansfield's amendment calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina within six months as well as a series of restrictions on the aid program opposed by the administration.

Military Emphasis

Appealing for the bill, Republican leader Hugh Scott said "I urge all senators to give the benefit of the doubt to this program. If the Senate doesn't act now, it will have to consider a third time and come back in December."

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Foreign Relations Committee, who failed in a move to cut the arms aid program earlier Thursday, said, "I had hoped we would take a different approach and give emphasis to another place."

A telephone call from Secretary of State William P. Rogers to Scott, promising that the administration would promptly spend $85 million in supporting assistance for Israel, appeared to have helped carry the Stennis amendment.

Curtis, Hruska Vote For Arms Assistance

Washington (UPI) — Nebraska's two Republican senators — Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska — voted for the $1.5 billion military aid bill. The measure passed 65-24.

Vote On 2 Nominees Thursday

(C) Washington Star

Washington — The Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday put off for one week any vote on President Nixon's two Supreme Court nominations.

The postponement will bring a vote next Thursday unless committee members opposed to one of the nominees prevent action by lengthy discussion.

Only one of the nominees, Assistant Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist, has any opposition in the committee.

Leaders Confer

London (UPI) — British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Australian Prime Minister William McMahon conferred for 2½ hours on a number of world problems including Southeast Asia, East West relations and the British decision to join the Common Market.

Peters Claims Republicans May Force Income Tax Up

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters predicted Monday that the state's income tax rate may hit 15% or 16% instead of the 13% proposed by Gov. J. James Exon, if "the obvious desires" of the Republicans on the State Board of Equalization are followed.

Peters' remarks were the latest in the continuing partisan war of words which will climax next Monday when the board has its last chance to set the rates.

The Republicans' veto of two previous motions to set the rates, Peters said could result in a time squeeze and "a possible overtaxation to insure sufficient funds."

The three Republican board members (Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann, Treasurer Wayne Swanson and Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson) balked at Exon's two previous attempts because of the possible impact of a federal income tax cut on state revenue.

Nebraska's income tax is based on a percentage of the federal income tax paid. Any decrease in federal income tax paid by Nebraska wage earners would result in a corresponding decrease in revenue produced by the state income tax. To offset this, the board must adjust the state's rate to produce the same amount of revenue.

The Republican trio favors waiting until the statutory deadline (Nov. 15) before setting the rates. Their hope is that by that time enough information will be known about the effects of the proposed federal cut that Nebraska's rates can be accurately set.

The Democrats led by Exon claim as accurate view of the cut's impact will not be known by that date. They favor setting the rates now and when the effect is finally known, the board could reconvene to adjust the rates.

Peters said, "Failure to use as much time as possible before setting final rates will not permit the Board to use well refined figures in setting 1972 rates.

"We should be using the flexibility of the statute provided by the Legislature, namely 30 days following final federal action to study the impact of the changes. First, we should be making estimates using a reasonable time frame. Second, we should be using the flexibility to see what the results of the President's Phase I are and to gain some idea of the magnitude of Phase II.

"Were it not for the stubborn efforts of the three Republican members tying the hands of the board, the board could have already insured the flexibility provided by law thus receiving detailed estimates and being able to make necessary adjustments after, and only after, changes are necessitated by federal action."

The consumer-taxpayer, it has been argued, will ultimately shoulder much of the burden of protecting the environment in either case—but, whether reflected in immediate consumer costs or the deferred social costs of a degraded habitat, environmental protection has its price.

To this point, OPPD and NPPD are publicly holding the line against pre-cooling, deeming heated-water emissions innocent until proven guilty.

"We have a strong case that there would be no need for further refinement" of cooling processes, says Chuck Sayre, public relations director for NPPD. "We feel the system we have is adequate for the Missouri, which is a warm-water river, unlike rivers in New England where the thermal effects are quite dramatic."

Dan Kelly, assistant general manager of OPPD for public relations, also argues that the special nature of the Missouri makes it less susceptible to thermal effects than other rivers. "The Missouri is a great, big, manly river with a lot of water in it and a strong, regulated flow," Kelly said. "It's a darn good river for an electric generating plant. It's a big, flat cooling tower and it works very well for us."

Kelly pointed to a private study of heated-water discharges from OPPD's North Omaha plant and their effect on river temperatures. The Missouri is swift and turbid enough, the study showed, that heated-water emissions from the fossil-fuel peaking plant (gauged temporarily to simulate future discharges from the Ft. Calhoun nuclear plant) dissipated from 9-12 degrees F. above ambient (natural) temperature at the point of emission, to less than two degrees two miles downstream, to "no detectable increase" 10 miles downstream.

Kelly compared those figures with the natural warming effect of sunlight, which raises the river's temperature "five to six degrees" during the course of a sunny day.

Moreover, Kelly said, pre-cooling alternatives are costly and all entail new problems: cooling towers, for example, create vapor which has been known to condense and freeze on highways, he said.

"As a result," he concluded, "we feel no elaborate mechanical pre-cooling steps are necessary for the river. It can handle anything now envisioned for several generations. If you've got a plant every few miles all the way to New Orleans you're in a different ball game."

"I can only speak for our plant," Sayre of NPPD said, "but I would think that Ft. Calhoun and Brownville are far enough apart that they wouldn't have an adverse effect on the Missouri River."

Next: Power districts confident plants won't be harmful.

Corporation Spokesmen Say Current State Tax Ratio Fair

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Corporation spokesmen Thursday told the legislative tax study committee that the current ratio between personal and corporate income tax rates in Nebraska is fair and should not be altered.

But State Tax Commissioner William Peters reiterated the Exon administration' belief that the corporate income taxpayer is "not carrying as large a share of the income tax burden as he perhaps should."

Peters said the administration will probably present the 1972 Legislature with specific recommendations for increasing the tax on corporations.

Plans Legislation

State Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, chairman of the legislative study committee, said it too expects to sponsor corporate tax legislation in the session convening next January.

Burbach's committee completed a statewide series of public hearings on tax matters Thursday.

The committee will probably sponsor bills proposing personal property tax exemptions and rewriting the tax structure for mobile homes. Burbach said.

Recommendations on property tax equalization and the aviation fuel tax structure may be delayed pending further study, he told newsmen.

Proposed Changes

The committee's final hearing centered on proposed changes in the corporate income tax. A bill which would have increased corporation taxes was killed by the 1971 Legislature.

The corporation income tax rate is now automatically established at 20% of the personal income tax rate. Current rates are 10% personal income, 2% corporate.

But Keith Knudsen of Lincoln, speaking for the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry, told the committee that the "effective" rates are about the same since the corporation tax base is roughly five times greater than the personal income tax base.

Difference

The personal rate is applied against federal income tax liability while the corporate rate is applied against federal taxable income.

A comparison of the tax bases, he said, shows individuals paying an effective rate of about 1.89% compared to the 2% corporation rate.

When senators consider the possibility of increasing corporation taxes, Knudsen suggested, they should remember that the rate of the corporate tax will increase by at least 30% in the coming calendar year — as it will for individuals.

May Up Share

And, he said, it may well be that congressional tax legislation now in the works may increase the corporation share of Nebraska's income tax load as a result of proposed reductions in the personal income tax liability of farmers and small businessmen.

Supporting NACI's position were spokesmen for Northwestern Bell Telephone Company and the Nebraska Railroads Association.

Peters said the share of the income tax burden carried by Nebraska corporations may not be equitable when compared either to Nebraska personal income taxpayers or other states' corporations.

Link Questioned

"There is a question whether the corporate rate should be tied to the individual rate," he said.

Wally Richardson of Lincoln, speaking for the railroads, urged the committee to support legislation which would authorize the State Board of Equalization to reduce the assessed value of railroad property in counties which fail to assess other property at the 35% statutory rate.

Railroad property, assessed at 35% by the state board itself, is taxed inequitably in those counties where the assessor fails to assess other property at 35%, Richardson said.

Conference Cancelled

The industrial development and tourism conference, scheduled in Lincoln Nov. 17 and 18, has been cancelled because of slow pre-registration, according to Stan Matzke, director of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Lancaster County nursing home problems continue to occupy the attention of public officials. This past week, 35 elderly people were moved back into the Westview Nursing Home from Lancaster Manor, where they had been housed following a fire at Westview.

There appears to be some confusion as to who authorized and knew about the return of residents to Westview. But this much is clear — Westview has no license for anything, which means that some authorities are assuming a serious and dangerous responsibility.

Reportedly, Dr. George Underwood of the City-County Health Department has classified the 35 people as not needing care. Thus, they are literally room-and-board residents and can be housed in a boarding home.

But boarding homes are licensed by the State Department of Agriculture and this department has issued no such license. Furthermore, it intends to issue no such license unless it has notorized confirmation by Dr. Underwood that the residents of Westview require no nursing home attention.

Quite frankly, we do not see how Dr. Underwood could give this notarization in view of the general understanding of the physical condition of the residents under consideration. But that is the professional responsibility he has and it is up to him to call the shots in the matter.

At the same time, county board members will want to assure themselves that they are not endangering the life of anyone by using Westview for something for which it is not intended to be used.

The situation at Westview is directly related to Lancaster Manor, the former St. Elizabeth Hospital secured by the county and being converted into a nursing home. The manor has come in for its share of controversy, much of it related, we feel, to earlier sentiment against the county's getting into that operation.

The manor operation has not always gone smoothly, but despite criticisms leveled at it, there has yet to be subtantiated evidence of anything seriously wrong there. Currently, financial aspects of the operation are under attack but the weight of evidence to date indicates the finances are in order.

In an effort to clear up the manor issue once and for all, the county board has asked the Lincoln League of Women Voters to conduct a study of the manor operation. While the league is experienced in analysis of governmental operations. it lacks the expertise to provide an informed view of the manor.

It would seem appropriate for the league to secure the services of others in this job, possibly the assistance of the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council and its professional staff. The council is already seriously overburdened but it is heavily supported by the county and faces a priority item in Lancaster Manor.

What Lancaster Manor needs is a meticulously objective look, without any of the political overtones that have emerged so prominently in its past.

What it needs is an analysis that seeks to look at what is good about the manor as well as what might be improved. It needs a look that provides constructive criticism, not a study that seeks to indict the original decision to buy the institution and operate it as a county nursing home.

It is well past time to stop debating that decision and trying to prove it right or wrong. We have now an established fact of operation and the important thing is to make the best of this.

Also a part of the situation is the ultimate completion of the manor program. Only a part of the eventual capacity of this home has been realized and there needs to be a firm understanding of when and how the full potential of the operation will be reached.

In our opinion, Lancaster Manor is a definite asset to the community in terms of the service it provides and the savings it realizes for taxpayers. It will be enhanced by an impartial study that sets the record straight and ends the current dispute.

'It Just Needs A Few Extra Ingredients'

Bid Dispute Resolved

A giant step toward better bus service in Lincoln was taken Wednesday when the city announced it must accept the bid of The Flxible Co. to provide a new fleet of coaches. In a sense, the city lost a battle but won the war.

From the time the bids were opened, Lincoln insisted that General Motors Corp. should be awarded the contract on 36 new buses because a higher grade tire had been figured in its bid. Flxible had bid a low-mileage, cheaper tire. The Department of Transportation, which is paying at least 50% of the cost of the new buses, stood firmly behind the Flxible bid and after final talks in Washington Tuesday, DOT told Mayor Schwartzkopf that Lincoln must accept it and further, that the city could not readvertise for bids.

Mayor Schwartzkopf immediately gained assurances from Flxible, however, that it would provide the high-mileage tires at no additional cost to the city and that it would deliver the buses no later than April 28, some 60 to 90 days earlier than the company originally had said it could deliver and about the same time General Motors had specified in its revised delivery estimate.

So the city got what it went after — higher grade tires and a reasonable delivery time. With the contract dispute out of the way, the city can now begin in earnest to breathe life into what should be a quality public transportation system.

Also on the city side of the news, we take note of the Pershing Municipal Auditorium Advisory Board's decision, on a 4-3 vote, to accept a booking of the rock musical "Hair" should the show be offered to Lincoln.

The board has either put off a decision on the issue or taken a thumbs-down straw vote against allowing "Hair" at the auditorium several times this past year — probably enough vacillation to have discouraged a request for a booking in the near future. That is Lincoln's loss.

The advisory board majority is to be commended, however, for finally stating as policy that the board does not intend to assume the role of censor.

Harris Pulls Out

One of the rules of the game is that it takes a rich man or a man with rich friends to be president. Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma used that rule as a reason this week to drop out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, claiming that he has run out of money and is $40,000 in debt.

Realistically speaking, a candidate as far back in the pack as Sen. Harris was will draw more flies than money and Harris did the honorable thing in pulling out now, before he committed his organization to political and financial burdens from which it could not be expected to recover. Somewhat as Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa did before him, Harris went probing for support and finding little or none, quit before he was counted out. Another year, perhaps, but not 1972.

Harris found himself boxed in by the field of candidates or would-be candidates on the Democratic left, all sounding a familiar theme. But the Oklahoman added a few new twists. In seeking to forge a "new populist" coalition of the poor and the disaffected across the economic and racial spectrums, Harris talked about breaking up the giant corporations and redistributing the wealth. It apparently made little impact.

The public opinion polls did not respond to Harris' mini-campaign, nor did he pick up any big-name endorsements.

With his presidential campaign folded and in political hot water in his home state, the aspirations of the former Democratic national chairman and rising star in the Senate appear stagnated. He can take comfort, however, from the example provided by another national political figure, the current occupant of the White House, who, after 1962, had everybody fooled but himself.

MILAN WALL

'Superstar' As Superstar

One of the most striking aspects of the worldwide attention being showered on "Jesus Christ Superstar" is that the musical work itself has been rocketed into superstar-like fame.

While the story portrays Christ in a superstar image as seen largely through the eyes of Judas, the musical itself has acrrued the vestiges of the superstardom which rarely accompanies "things."

And its producers are headed toward a profit far in excess of the 30 pieces of silver pocketed by Judas, even accounting for 2,000 years of inflation.

Three concert versions, such as the one seen in Lincoln this week, are being presented in oratorio-like fashion on stages throughout the country, a stage version is reported to have one of the largest advance sales in Broadway history and the long-playing two-record album set has sold 2.5 million copies in the U.S. alone.

The advance sales on Broadway were reported to have hit more than $1 million a few days after the opening, the record set has been selling for $7 to $15, and the concert versions are drawing huge crowds around the country.

The Lincoln version, for example, played to nearly 7,200 at a total tune of $41,000. Nearly 10,000 saw it in Omaha.

A recent issue of "Saturday Review" reported that the first two concert versions were grossing a half million dollars a week. Its producers figure it will be the biggest concert grosser of all time.

Thus, the so-called "rock opera" appears already to be at the level of monetary superstardom, barely a year after the record set was released in the U.S.

But that's not all of the superstar comparisons, either.

The Broadway version has been staged with the glittering gold superstar image that has surrounded the superstars of the screen in years past.

And stage, concert and record versions have attracted the kind of press that has accompanied the phenomenal rise of superstars.

At the same time, it's attraction hasn't been limited to any particular age group.

The Lincoln concert audience included people of all ages, as have audiences elsewhere. Many that I talked to had never heard the record, so the Lincoln production must have been a first-time experience for many.

But the audience must also have included many others who had listened to the record before at home or perhaps during one of the many church-study sessions of the album that have occurred during the past few months.

Many who appeared to see and hear the concert here must have expected something of lesser quality than they had heard on the record. But it's fair to say that was not the case . . . it was a first-class production.

I don't want to suggest that people aren't getting what they are paying for. A sustained, standing ovation attested to that the other night. And although Lincoln crowds have a habit of handing out ovations, this one seemed to go far beyond many others I have observed.

Reasons for the phenomenal popularity of "Jesus Christ Superstar" are undoubtedly complex.

For some, the appeal may lie in the Jesus revolution mentality. But the wide array of the people attracted to it means there are far more attractions involved.

I would suspect that many people merely like the music. (I was attracted to "Hair," for example, not because of any particular urge to participate in a counter-cultural experience, but because I like the music. After I bought the album, however, I discovered I like some of the ideas, too.)

I'd also guess that some are curious about it — so they are buying the album or they went to the concert.

It's also fair to say that there is a certain religious appeal. One album study group in which I was involved found it a handy vehicle for a review of the last week of Christ's life and for a discussion of Jesus as a man.

A friend of mine who went to the concert, and who is not particularly religious, said afterwards he found the music enjoyable and the experience a religious one.

The conclusion from all this seems to be that "Superstar" means many things to many people — and the result has been a superstar-like attention to the work itself. It's not been the usual attraction won by creative works in our society, to be sure.

Lest anyone conclude that "Superstar" was the only creative work attracting attention in a midestern "cultural wasteland" during the past few days, however, I would also like to point out what else is happening in the world of the creative arts in the Lincoln Area.

A partial list of what was or is happening in Lincoln during a two-week period ending early next week would include: two rock concerts, two symphony orchestra concerts, two chamber music concerts, two college faculty recitals, an organ concert, a children's opera, a university play, four high school plays, a foreign film showing, the showing of two highly touted American films (along with a batch of others that weren't touted at all), plus gospel music concerts, art exhibitions and an appearance by humorist Bob Hope.

A number of plays and musicals were also staged at high schools and colleges in the surrounding area.

Army Turning Out Pollution-Free Car

WASHINGTON — The Army has touched off a round of teeth-gnashing in the boardrooms of the Big Four auto-makers by producing a virtually pollution-free automobile.

The motor is almost certain to meet the tough federal standards for low-emission cars by 1976 even though the Big Four car-makers have whined that such a motor cannot be mass-produced by the deadline.

The radical, four-cylinder, 72-horsepower Army engine shows every sign of bearing up through the 50,000 miles of tests required by the federal standards.

It has already breezed through 7,000 miles of tests, emitting only harmless exhaust.

The Army Tank Automotive Command near Detroit is moving ahead with plans to put the engine in jeeps and some other military vehicles by the 1976 cut-off.

Ironically, the clean engine was developed by one of motordom's Big Four, Ford, under Army supervision. The enthusiastic Ford scientists, who swear by the engine, have been dismayed by the Ford high command, which has dismissed the engine as merely "experimental."

One reason the auto executives are cold on the hot engine is that they are still trying to make their current engines pollution-free with Rube Goldberg "add-on" contraptions. One Detroit gimmick melts the asphalt beneath the motor and sets the grass afire. Another requires costly asbestos sheathing. But the economic advantages of such makeshift devices to the automakers far outweigh melted asphalt.

For one thing, the "add-ons" will cost car-owners $100 to $300 anually after the first year in adjustments and in new parts. The new parts mean higher profits for the auto-makers who will have a monopoly on parts manufacture.

For another, the "add-ons" can be gimcracked onto current engines without the full-scale retooling necessary to produce the Army engine. By clinging to the same old basic engine, Detroit can avoid taking the chance of making mistakes and losing money.

In Europe, meanwhile, several car manufacturers have already said they can meet the U.S. exhaust standards by 1976.

Footnote: Even before the 7,000 mile tests were completed, President Nixon had hinted to top auto executives that he felt the Army engine might be a pollution solution. Now, a Texaco research team is on the verge of producing a similar motor for the Army. Although it is about a month behind schedule, delivery is expected by early January.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., has discovered that the wages of truth are TV blackouts. McGovern was negotiating with TV chat-man Dick Cavett to appear on his popular show just like other presidential hopefuls, including Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me., and New York Mayor John Lindsay.

But after several weeks, Cavett's producer, John Gilroy, informed McGovern aide Frank Mankiewicz that McGovern would not be welcome on the show. The problem is that McGovern has honestly declared he's a candidate, while Muskie and Lindsay are still playing coy.

Lindsay, At 50, Now Facing Difficult Choice; To Stay As Mayor Or Go For The Presidency

NEW YORK — Hizzoner, Mayor John Lindsay of New York, will be 50 on the 24th day of this month, and as all old geezers know, this is a dicey and even dangerous age. It's not quite sensible, but at 50 you begin to feel you either have to get going or get out, and Lindsay is now somewhere in between. He is thinking about running for president of the United States, but is not yet running, and he is sending out his deputy mayor, Richard Aurelio, to look for groundswells.

This is one of the troubles with being 50— you still think other people may solve your problems. You are still young enough to be cautious and not yet old enough to be bold. At 60 Lindsay would really know it was the last call for the dining car. He would know Aurelio wouldn't bring back the answer, and he would say exactly what he thinks about Mr. Nixon and take on the whole Democratic party, and go home happily to his Mary if he lost. But 50 is a compromising age. It is the middle, the place where men are caught between their ambitions and their convictions, between their parents and their children, and in Lindsay's special case, between sticking on the job as mayor or going for the presidency, which alone has the power to deal with the developing tragedy of the American cities.

Of course, almost everybody here is against his going for the presidency except his adoring staff. The taxi drivers are roaring their contempt. The New York "establishment" of business, journalism, education, and especially the ordinary people who have to put up with the savage turmoil of this violent and distracted city think a Lindsay campaign is presumptious and slightly mad, and they may very well be right. Lindsay himself is inclined to agree with them.

And yet, something tugs him into the national struggle. He has tried to walk the streets of New York with the poor. He has tried to bring the new intelligent technicians into urban government at high salaries. He has organized the mayors of the nation, and played the young handsome Lochinvar on television, but it hasn't quite worked. And after all his struggles with Governor Rockefeller in Albany and Nixon and the Congress in Washington, it is clearly not going to work.

So he is flirting with the presidency, and while the odds are a thousand to one against him, why not? Fifteen years ago, who would have bet 1000-1 that Jack Kennedy would be president in 1960, that Lyndon Johnson would be his vice president, that Kennedy would be killed, that Johnson would win in 1964 by the greatest margin in American political history, and then retire, and that Richard Nixon would make the greatest comeback since Harry Truman in 1948?

It is said that Lindsay shouldn't run for the presidency because he would be deserting his job as mayor of New York and that New York depends on him, and this may be true. But at the same time it is said that it is all right for governors to leave their jobs to run for the presidency, and okay for Senators Muskie, Humphery, Jackson, McGovern and Kennedy to be out campaigning and neglecting their work in the Senate.

Lindsay, looking around at all these candidates, is just old enough not to be intimidated by competitors, and just young enough to think about challenging them. But he has a problem — many problems. If he goes for the presidency, as a man who knows something now about the terrible problems of the cities and fails miserably in the primaries, he feels that he will hurt his cause of helping the cities.

So he is holding back, sending Aurelio out to test the political power centers, and temporizing. He has always done this. He has always been dragged into political adventures, not by personal conviction, but by the conviction and on the urging of his friends.

At the same time, he has always climbed up the political ladder by abandoning the job he was in. He was getting nowhere as a progressive Republican congressman in Washington, so he left it to run for mayor of New York. He was abandoned by the Republicans in New York, so he ran for re-election as an independent, and squeaked through. He was getting nowhere as an independent mayor with a Republican background, so he switched to the Democrats, and now he is struggling, at 50, about whether to be a presidential candidate as a new boy, against the hostility of his old Republican friends and his new Democratic associates, who regard him as a Johnny-come-lately.

This is a hard decision at 50. For this, you have to decide what to do with your life. The kids are leoving home, you have just had notice that you are now eligible for the seniors tournament, and while you are just young enough to be a television star, you are also almost old enough to be a grandfather.

It will be interesting to watch how John Lindsay grapples with this complicated series of personal and political problems, and this is what political campaigns are all about.

These struggles are now going on in the private and public lives of Muskie, Humphrey Jackson, McGovern, and Kennedy. John Lindsay is only the last of the candidates, and his problem is particularly difficult because he is not only changing prases of his personal life, but changing parties at the same time.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Foreign Aid Program In Danger

WASHINGTON — The test just ahead on foreign aid is hardly less a test of whether the system of divided powers works or not. To chop down the whole foreign aid program is a disaster. This is far more than scoring political points, since so much turns on the continuity of many of the programs.

The growing imbalance between military and economic aid was the root cause of the Senate defeat of the administration's foreign aid bill. A little known factor was a secret study by the staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee showing that of the total to be dispensed over the next five years $27 billion would go for military aid and $24 billion for economic assistance.

WILBUR MILLS

In the measure voted down, a total of $1.723 billion went for all military purposes against less than half that for various forms of economic help. The result was to unite conservatives, who have long felt foreign aid spending was excessive, with opponents of the administration military policy such as Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who calls it "American imperialism."

Now a compromise has been put together with military assistance in one package and economic aid in another. This will presumably wind up with the support of active opponents such as Fulbright, Sens. Mike Mansfield, Frank Church and other Democrats, together with skeptical Republican moderates such as Sens. George Aiken and Clifford Case. In short, it would be a coalition insuring passage of those parts of the package essential for the continuity of aid programs in developing countries even though there have been radical cuts.

Soundings by this observer indicate that the compromise is the only chance for survival of foreign aid in the Senate. Will the White House go along? If the decision is to accept it, then passage can be fairly swift, although inevitably when the separate military phase comes up the debate will be prolonged. To fight the compromise, using all the pressure tactics in the White House arsenal, will mean no foreign aid for an indefinite time as the Senate wrangles over the dry bones of past errors and present hostilities.

The administration has a lot on its side in the current dispute. As originally sent to Congress in April, the whole aid structure was to be reorganized, with the military separated from the economic. Outright military grants, the funding of military sales and support assistance for maintaining large military establishments would go into one package labeled "security assistance."

This was an overhaul long overdue. But the House Foreign Relations Committee fell back on the format of the Foreign Aid Act of 1961. Two years, the committee reported, would be required to study reorganization of the system. Therefore, more of the same would be in order for the two-year interval.

Obviously, that was not good enough so when the tired, old bundle reached the Senate the result could have been predicted. Fifteen Republicans, including Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, chairman of the Republican National Committee, joined 26 Democrats to make the score, 41 to 27.

Foreign aid has no constituency. That has been increasingly clear as the military share increases year by year. It has less popular support today than ever before as the scramble to cut back hits one program after another.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, the grand panjandrum of the House Ways and Means Committee, is saying privately that the deficit this fiscal year will be not $30 billion, as has been widely reported, but $35 billion. For a Republican administration bringing out of the past an inherent faith in budget balancing, that is a staggering figure. This may jazz up the economy as President Nixon, a very recent convert to Keynesianism and the spur of a deficit, apparently believes it will.

But the claims of developing peoples, already suffering from the Nixon New Economics with the commodity prices falling, rate low as against the claims of the powerful constituencies pressing for housing, school lunches, improved medical care. For the United States, the richest nation, to be a dropout on foreign aid is intolerable.

Primary Vote Law Challenge Planned

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway Thursday said he is planning court action to challenge Nebraska's law prohibiting registered independents from voting in either party's primary elections.

An attorney, Waldron said the lawsuit would be based on the constitutional rights of equal protection of the law.

"Citizens who choose to register as independents are now eliminated from the most important voting process, that is, participating in political party primary elections," he said.

Particularly Crucial

And the issue is particularly crucial now that so many newly enfranchised young voters are choosing to register as independents rather than identifying with either the Republican or Democratic Party, he said.

Whether the court test is successful or not, Waldron said, he will sponsor legislation in the 1972 Unicameral to "allow voters to cross-ballot in primaries."

Although details of the proposal have not yet been finalized, Waldron said, he thinks the best way to open up full participation in the primaries would be to produce one federal and state office ballot for all primary voters.

Each voter could then mark his ballot for one candidate — either Republican or Democrat —for each partisan office, he said.

Leaders Meet

This system, Waldron noted, would allow each voter to vote in whichever primary contest he wishes for each federal or state office.

That would allow the voter even more choice than the right to participate in either party's primary elections, he said.

"Independents now have no part in deciding the party nominees, and sometimes everything is determined in the primary election rather than the general election," Waldron said.

Citizens should have "the right to register as an independent if they feel they can't declare either as Democrats or Republicans," he said.

"Now their only choice is to form their own party if they wish to fully participate in the primaries."

Young voters, as well as many others, are less tied to parties and "more concerned with voting for the man they feel is the best," Waldron said.

"This large independent vote should have a place to vote in the primaries."

Federal Welfare Only Way—Simpson

State Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said Thursday that a federally-administered public assistance program for needy families is the only way out of this nation's welfare dilemma.

Simpson spoke to the League of Women Voters at a noon luncheon at the YMCA.

Citing inequities between welfare programs of the various states, the legislator said this causes an undesireable migration from states with low benefits to those with a more favorable program.

"Only a federally-administered and federally-fund program that assures equal treatment of the needy in all states will halt the migration problem and solve other abuses and inequities inherent in state-administered prorams," he said.

Nebraska 'Average'

Simpson characterized Nebraska's welfare payments to families with dependent children (ADC) as "average" among the 50 states but suggested the state is "doing too little."

Noting that only the ADC program has been "rateably reduced" among Nebraska's various assistance categories, the senator said that "children are being made the fall guy" in the welfare dollar cutback.

"Children can't vote," he said, "and poor families are in the minority at the polls."

State and national legislators, he suggested, won't become concerned with solving the welfare problem until the splinter groups concerned with the poor and needy unite with a single voice under leadership outside of welfare recipients.

Welfare Bill Outlined

In other discussion, Carole Siegman of Lincoln, the League's state human resources chairman, outlined a federal welfare bill being proposed by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.) as compared with the earlier welfare reform bill (HR 1) backed by the Nixon Administration.

The Ribicoff bill would fully federalize the welfare program by 1976, providing a sliding scale of state contributions during the interim, as compared with HR 1 under which the state costs would be frozen to the calendar year 1971 and future excess costs borne by the federal government.

It was also pointed out the Ribicoff measure proposed $1.5 million for child day care services for working mothers, double the amount proposed by HR 1, and would tighten the procedural process, eliminate state residency requirements and provide a minimum income by 1976 to all families below the annually-adjusted poverty level.

Natural Water Resource Districts Formation Is Set

By United Press International

The executive secretary of the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission said Thursday the purpose of a series of meetings beginning next week is to initiate the formation of natural resource districts.

"There are many things that have to be done prior to July 1, 1972 to get these districts operational," Dayle Williamson said.

Earlier, the commission ordered the series be held at the rate of one in each of the state's 24 natural resource districts.

The morning session of each was to be devoted solely to matters related to the formation of the districts. The afternoon was set aside for a public discussion of the state water plan.

Two teams have been formed to visit the districts, Williamson said. They will be meeting with the boards of directors for the special purpose districts ultimately to be merged into the single resource districts.

Williamson also said that for most of the districts, it will be the first they have met as a single unit.

Information to be covered during the conference, the executive secretary said, would include the geographical size of each district; the kinds and numbers of special purpose districts to be merged; a summary of existing programs; and future conservation needs in that area.

Williamson said once the initial meetings have been held, it is hoped each would appoint an interim chairman to work with the commission in setting up the mechanics for district formation.

Some four or five persons on the commission staff have been assigned to the task of working with the districts in the formation process, he sadi.

The locations and dates of the meeting include: Nov. 16, Chadron and Bridgeport; Nov. 17, Valentine and Sidney; Nov. 18, Mullen and North Platte; Nov. 19, Ord and Grand Island; Nov. 22, Omaha and York; Nov. 23, Walthill and Beatrice; Nov. 24, Lincoln and Hebron; Nov. 29, Schuyler; Nov. 30, O'Neil and Holdrege; Dec. 1, Butte and Imperial; Dec. 2, Hartington and McCook; Dec. 3, Norfolk and Franklin; Dec. 6, Auburn.

Claim Is Won

Washington (UPI) — Mrs. Bernice Leftwich, 47, won a $204,243 damage claim against Ford Motor Co. and a local automobile dealer, claiming a faulty accelerator caused her to wreck her car nearly five years ago.

Saunas Liked

Bonn — Sauna baths are becoming increasingly popular in West Germany, with more than a million people regularly taking one. There are 2,500 public and 18,000 home saunas in the country, and the latter number is rising by 3,000 to 4,000 a year.

STUDENTS OUT AT WINNEBAGO

Winnebago (AP) — More than half of the Winnebago public school student body went on strike Thursday listing at least three grievances against the school administration.

Louis La Rose, chairman of the Winnebago Tribal Council, said he was informed that some 50 students had prepared the grievance list. The school has an enrollment of about 100.

Grievances listed by the students:

—Not enough time between classes; students claimed they were given only three minutes, according to La Rose.

—Not enough time in which to eat lunch; students claimed they were given only 15 minutes.

—They were docked for being tardy at school and told to remain a half hour after school hours.

Frontier Cutback Claimed Legal

Kearney (AP) — Frontier airlines is completely within its legal rights in dropping one daily round trip, John Harris of McCook, chairman of the Nebraska Aeronautics Commission, said Thursday.

The flight involves the communities of Hastings, Kearney and McCook, and Harris said he had confirmed the legality of the move with a Civil Aeronautics Board representative in Washington.

Harris and members Chet Fliensback, Scottsbluff; Ed Weaver, Lincoln; and William Fraser of Omaha were in Kearney to confer with representatives of the Kearney area Chamber of Commerce, the Kearney City Council, Trans-Nebraska Airlines and Frintier Airlines.

Frontier is seeking a $16 million subsidy from the federal government, which would permit reinstatement of all flight service suspended for economic reasons.

Not Only State

Ken Smith of Frontier, said Nebraska is not the only state to lose service. He said if Frontier receives only part of the requested subsidy the carrier has asked the CAB to decide which communities would have service restored. He said dropping the eastbound and westbound flight in Nebraska was an economic move since 44 of Frontier's 88 subsidized stops are not considered moneymakers.

He also discussed the possibility of Frontier using smaller aircraft, thus making reinstatement more economically feasible.

Smith said, his firm "is experimenting with two different types of small aircraft and we hope to reach some sort of decision by Jan. 1 as to the economic feasibility of such a plan."

Commissioner Weaver called on each community to support the airlines which serve them.

"Play fair with both Frontier and Trans-Nebraska and do so as vigorously as possible," he urged.

Don Brown of Trans-Nebraska, said on his southern route which includes Kearney, Hastings and McCook, planes are flying one passenger short per day per stop, while the northern Nebraska route traffic is above the minimum.

Record Corn Crop Expected

. . . 465,885,000-BUSHEL HARVEST PREDICTED

By United Press International

Federal crop observers predicted Thursday Nebraska would be coming through with an all time total production corn crop record.

The U.S. Agriculture Department, in its monthly crop estimates, stayed with last month's prediction the state's corn crop would total 465,885,000 bushels.

Earlier, it was feared the crop would suffer substantially from drought conditions that covered the major portion of the state.

"It appears we did have enough subsoil moisture to carry this crop through," said Norman Beller, head of the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics here.

The new total production record would better the one set in 1969 when 429,660,000 bushels were harvested in the state.

Beller, however, noted the yield predicted for this year, based on Nov. 1 field conditions, was far below the record yield. That record was also set in 1969 at 93 bushels an acre.

The forecast for this year calls for a harvest rate of 85 bushels an acre.

The difference lies in the number of acres planted in corn, Beller said. In 1969, there were 4,620,000 acres, compared to this year's estimated 5,481,000 acres.

Another factor contributing to the crop is that about 45% of the acreage planted in corn is irrigated, Beller said, adding that dryland farmers have also been surprised at the final harvest from their lands.

Meanwhile, Nebraska's sorghum crop was estimated to be the third largest on record with 117,933,000 bushels, at a harvest rate of 57 bushels an acre.

Beller said at first it was thought wind and moisture may have severely damaged the crop. But he said farmers, using special attachments, were able to harvest the downed plants and all but nullified any losses.

Soybeans, he said, appear to be headed for the smallest production level since 1965. The latest estimate calls for 16,650,000 bushels at the rate of 25 bushels an acre.

In 1965, he said, the crop totaled 16,356,000 bushels at a yield of 23.5 bushels per acre.

Sen. Curtis And President Discuss Drop In Corn Price

Washington, D.C. — U.S. Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., was summoned to the White House Wednesday for a 30-minute conference with President Nixon on the farm situation.

Curtis said he gave the President "a grass-roots report" on low farm prices.

"We discussed the fact that last summer the price of corn in many places in Nebraska was $1.30 and $1.35 a bushel and now it is 90 or 92 cents and in some places even less than that," said the Nebraska Republican.

Nixon referred to a letter the senator sent him Oct. 15 in which Curtis urged that the loan rate on corn be hiked. Current rate is $1.08.

Also discussed was the fact that the 1970 corn production was around 4.1 billion bushels and that the 1971 production is approximately 5.5 billion bushels, Curtis said. One of the factors contributing to this huge surplus was that the blight which was predicted did not materialize to the extent feared, he explained.

"I was told that some people in government had recommended government purchase of sizeable amounts of corn to raise the prices," Curtis said.

"I advised the President that I did not care what method was followed, but that I felt that something should be done now to bolster the price of corn this fall.

"I told him that more optimistic plans for next year did not meet the immediate farm income problem. I was able to report to the President that while some corn had been sold, most of the corn is still in the hands of the individuals who produced it.

"I told him that if action could be taken soon, any raise in the price of corn would be of material help to substantially all Nebraska corn farmers."

Curtis said his discussion with President Nixon also included feed grain and that he left the conference "quite hopeful that something would be done."

CAR DEMOLISHED . . . in accident in which East High School student was killed Thursday.

East High Student Dies In Crash

An 18-year-old East High School student was killed Thursday morning in a two-car accident at 84th and A, and a student companion was critically injured.

Killed was Paul Elton Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Gibson of 1635 So. 56th.

The other student, Charles S. Clough, 18, of 501 Cottonwood, was listed in critical condition at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center with multiple injuries, including fractures of the pelvis, jaw, elbow, hand and collar bone.

Police said young Gibson and Clough were traveling in an automobile northbound on 84th at the time of the accident. It was not immediately determined which youth was driving, according to investigating officers.

Paul E. Gibson

Senior At East High

The car, police said, was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Helen A. Rosborough, 64, of Omaha, which was southbound on 84th and turning east on A.

Police said Mrs. Rosborough had some lacerations but refused medical attention at the scene, leaving later with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Schleiger of 8605 A.

After the collision, the Rosborough vehicle came to rest against a telephone pole on the north side of A while the lighter car in which the two youths were riding overturned near the center of the street.

Investigating officers said the body of young Gibson was recovered from the vehicle while Clough was thrown clear.

Police said the car in which the youths were riding was registered to Mildred A. Baete of 3701 No. 53rd, the mother of Clough's girl friend.

School authorities said Clough and Gibson had been working on the car in the school's automotive shop and were to return it to the student parking lot.

An investigating officer said the two youths apparently decided to take the vehicle for a test run. The accident occurred at 9:52 a.m.

William Blue, chief deputy Lancaster County attorney, said late Thursday that investigation into the accident was continuing and no determination had been made whether charges would be filed.

An autopsy on the body of young Gibson was ordered by the county attorney's office.

Gibson was a member of Junior Achievement Club, St. Paul United Methodist Church and the Lincoln Chapter of DeMolay.

He is survived by his parents, one brother, Edson G.; sisters, Mrs. Eva M. Hartsell, Lincoln, Mrs. Elnora Dehning, Wheaton, Ill., and a grandmother, Mrs. Tedd Parrish, North Platte.

Farm Product Value Rises $831 Million

The market value of all Nebraska farm products was $2.165 billion in 1969, almost $831 million higher than in 1964, according to a report issued by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census.

The greatest gain came in livestock, poultry and their products, the value of which increased from $962 million to $1.6 billion in the five-year period. Crops, including nursery products and hay, climbed $16.5 million to a 1969 total of $536 million.

The number of Nebraska farms declined from 80,163 to 72,257 during the five years but the average size increased from 596.2 acres to 634.3 acres and the average value per acre climbed from $109.39 to $154.38.

The greatest number of the State's farms, 20,853, were of 260 to 499 acres, followed by 12,324 farms of 500 to 999 acres. There were 5,495 which had 1,000 to 1,999 acres and 3,509 had 2,00 or more acres.

Classified by sales volume, the largest group, 17,691, reported sales of $10,000 to $19,999. There were 15,902 which had sales of $20,000 to $39,999, while 10,570 had sales of $40,000 or more.

Total expense of production for 1969 was $1.76 billion for all Nebraska farms. Livestock and poultry purchases amounted to $707 million, an increase of $335 million over 1964. Feed for poultry and livestock cost $309 million, an increase of $79 million over 1964. Commercial fertilizer costs in 1969 were $75 million, compared with $46 million in 1964.

Hired farm labor costs in the state in 1969 were $51 million, an increase of more than $14 million over 1964. Contract labor, machine hire and custom work amounted to $40 million in 1964, an increase of almost $17 million for the five-year span. The estimated market value of all farm machinery in 1969 was $929 million.

Individuals or families in the state operated 54,879 farms. Partnerships operated 7,476 and 659 were operated by corporations. The average age of farm operators in 1969 was 49.3 years, approximately the same as in 1964. There were 2,143 operators under 25 years and 9,228 were 65 or older.

Work off the farm in the state was reported by 27,970 operators and 10,307 of those worked 200 or more days at off-farm jobs.

Lancaster Farm Land Value Shows Increase

The biggest change from 1964 to 1969 in the Census Bureau's farm statistics for Lancaster County was the increase in the value of farm land and buildings.

In 1969, the average value per farm was $86,328, compared to $58,558 in 1964. This figure, when broken down to per acre value, is $322 in 1969 and $222 in 1964.

The value of all farm products sold in 1969 was $26,805,400. It was $18,194,500 in 1964.

In 1969 the sales of livestock, poultry and their products totaled $14,993,887 compared to $10,884,971 in 1964. The value of all crops sold in 1969 was $11,810,266 compared to $7,306,617 in 1964.

There was a slight decrease in the number of farms in Lancaster County. In the previous census of agriculture (1964), there were 1,774 farms. That figure dropped to 1,751 in 1969.

Of the county's total farms in 1969, 1,312 reported selling $2,500 or more of agricultural products during the year, compared to $1,309 in 1964.

The average farm size was about the same in both reports, slightly more than 267 acres.

Reported for the first time in an agricultural census is information on the extent to which corporate structure is being used by farm operators. Of farms reporting sales of $2,500 and more, 17 are incorporated.

Phase 2 Problems Discussed At Omaha 'Jet-In'

Omaha (AP) — Local government officials from Nebraska and Iowa flew into a discussion of the problems of Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic program during a "jet-in" at the New Paxton Hotel in Omaha Thursday.

The regional jet-in was sponsored by the National Association of Counties.

Bernard Hilenbrand, executive director of the association, said he received word Thursday that a committee on state and local government under Phase 2 has been named.

He said they will not meet, however, until next week by which time "a lot of the decisions on Phase 2 already will have been made."

Haltigan Speaks

William Haltigan, deputy director of the Public Employment program of the U.S. Labor Department, and John E. Sprague of Omaha, assistant to the district director of the Internal Revenue Service spoke at the meeting.

Sprague said he was unable to answer some specific questions that the 100 officials in attendance may have had. "We don't even have the Phase 2 procedures ourselves yet," he said.

The IRS has been designated as the enforcement and information agency for the government under Phase 2.

'Voluntary'

Sprague told the officials that, "When you get down to it, Phase 2 is a matter of voluntary compliance — otherwise it won't work."

Haltigan reported on the Emergency Employment Act signed into law last August and designed to provide some 150,000 jobs at local government levels.

He said only 40,000 jobs have been filled even though grants of $785 million to provide jobs for 120,000 have been made. He said civil service or merit systems are responsible for some of the hiring delays.

Farm Award To Orchard Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Twibell, who preside over a 1,100-acre farming and livestock operation at Orchard, have been selected as the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation's "Outstanding Young Farmer and Rancher" award couple of 1971.

The couple, each 26, will receive the award Sunday on the opening day of the NFBF's annual meeting in Lincoln.

Rapid expansion and use of modern farming, feeding and management techniques have characterized the Twibell farm operation.

The couple married in 1964 and began farming in 1965 by renting a ranch consisting of 120 acres of farm ground and 580 acres of pasture. In 1966 they moved to their present farm just southwest of Orchard, which belongs to Mrs. Twibell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lautenschlager of Orchard.

Additional land was rented and bought later.

In 1969 they started feeding cattle commercially, and now have around 1,400 head of cattle on feed, including 450 of their own. Their hog operation involves about 100 sows. Irrigation is used and the couple feed all of their crop production while buying large additional quantities of grain and supplements. A computerized record keeping system has been adopted and two hired men are employed.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Twibell are natives of the Antelope County community. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Twibell, farmed at Orchard before moving to Bethoud, Colo.

Deputy Said Fired For 'Performance'

FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — Dodge County Sheriff Homer Brainard Thursday the Monday night firing of Deputy James Schiely had nothing to do with a car sold at a sheriff's sale.

In a statement issued by Fremont Attorney William Line, Brainard said, "The dismissal of Schiely is a result of his overall performance as a deputy sheriff.

"His absenteeism was the worst of any deputy. He had ordered equipment without authorization. He consistently accumulated mileage per shift in excess of 100 miles after requests to hold the mileage down unless the activity warranted it."

Brainard added, "schiely is not correct when he stated that he had mentioned anything to me about a crooked deal and Schiely's failure to advise me that he was instituting a complaint against a fellow deputy was the last straw.

"The deputies know that matters concerning them and the general management of the office should be brought to my attention."

Schiely said he was fired because Brainard told him he was stabbing Deputy James Blivens in the back concerning a 1971 Buick purchased by Bliven from Tom Potter, a Fremont police reservist.

Potter purchased teh car at a sheriff's sale on Oct. 4 for $3,100. According to records of the county treasurer's office. Bliven purchased the car from Potter for $3,100 on Oct. 6.

Schiely alleges the deal is contrary to state law and he will ask the state attorney general to invesnvtigate.

Dodge County Attorney Gordon Gobel said information obtained from a police department investigation of the incident has been submitted to Attorney General Clarence Meyer.

"The law was not violated in that the law prohibits the man who is actually conducting the sale from being the purchaser," Brainard said.

The law says that no sheriff or his deputy or his constable shall become the purchaser either directly or indirectly of any property by him exposed to sale under any process of law or equity.

Gobel said the decision whether to file charges against the sheriff's office rests with the state attorney general.

Issuance Of More Bonds For N-Plant Is Not Planned

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Public Power District expects to complete its nuclear power plant near Brownville without issuing more bonds, D. W. Hill, general manager, told a legislative study committee Thursday.

The NPPD official took the witness stand as the committee, headed by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, opened its second day of hearings on the cost of building nuclear plants.

Hill said the original estimate for the plant and fuel was $156 million. The cost now is expected to be $233 million.

Another $14 million will be needed for insurance, training of personnel and other expenses, bringing the total price tag on the plant to $247 million, he said.

Hill blamed spiraling costs on strikes and other labor difficulties, design changes required by the Atomic Energy Commission and the financial failure of one of the contractors.

The hearings will continue through Friday.

Brown reported that the plane began to lose power shortly after he took off from an airstrip near Nehawka. As he was bringing the plane down in the field, the landing gear snagged a power line, causing it to crash. The plane burst into flames after impact but Brown and Hunteman managed to crawl from the wreckage.

Senate OKs Weapons Bill With Withdrawal Proviso

Washington (UPI) — The Senate passed and sent to President Nixon Thursday night a $21.3 billion defense procurement bill containing Congress' strongest mandate yet for withdrawal from Vietnam.

Approved 65 to 19, the measure was nearly $1 billion under the administration's request. It still provided authority for 41 new Navy F14 fighters, continued deployment of the Safeguard ABM and seed money for such futuristic weapons as the B1 bomber and the ULMS submarine.

The compromise bill contains Senate language establishing that the "policy of the United States" is to withdraw from Vietnam at the earliest possible date with only one consideration: the release of U.S prisoners of war.

No Provision

Drafted by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, the language makes no provision for a long-term residual U.S. force in Indochina, nor does it provide for continued U.S. fighting to protect the Saigon government.

But Mansfield and other antiwar senators are dissatisfied because the Senate-passed six-month deadline for total U.S. withdrawal was not in the final bill. The deadline, which the House refused to accept, was included in the foreign aid bill passed by the Senate and sent to the House Thursday.

The procurement bill covers only a fraction of the defense budget. Actual appropriations for the weapons, operating expenses, salaries and other military needs, are contained in a separate $71 billion defense appropriations bill which began moving through Congress Thursday.

The House Appropriations Committee approved the bill and the Senate Appropriations Committee scheduled a meeting on it for Friday. Final congressional action was anticipated next week.

The procurement bill included $1.1 billion for Safeguard, but limited deployment of the controversial defense system to two sites located in the Minuteman missile silo fields of North Dakota and Montana. Safeguard's mission is to protect these nuclear-tipped offensive missiles from a preemptive strike by the enemy.

Besides the Mansfield amendment, the bill also includes another restriction on the President's policy in Indochina. It sets a $350 million ceiling on military and economic assistance to Laos.

In approving the appropriation to finance the armed forces for the 12 months that began July 1, the House Appropriations Committee warned that the Soviet Union has surpassed the United States in missiles and is rapidly expanding its navy.

Although the committee trimmed $2.4 billion from the total, the bill was larger than the one approved last year despite the downturn in the Vietnam war.

In a report accompanying the bill, the committee complained that there are too many generals and colonels and said that the United States collects so much intelligence that nobody can read it all.

Landfill Ski Slope Planning OKd

Long-range plans for developing the City Sanitary Landfill in north Lincoln into a park with a possible ski slope for skiing and tobogganning were given approval Thursday by the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Board.

The board's approval gave the go-ahead to work out a detailed design for the park with consultation with Public Works Director Robert Obering.

It was noted that plans for developing that area into a park have been discussed for some time but no action had been taken whereby a program could be worked out so that the landfill might be filled in at various levels in preparation for future development.

In presenting a drawing of the proposed park area, Lincoln architect L. A. Enersen told the board that it had been suggested that something be included for a ski slope since there is no place in the area for skiing and tobogganning.

He said he felt that it could be worked out with Obering to pile refuse up to provide for a 140 foot slope for a ski slope.

He said the reat of the area would be largely for picnic and general park use.

Development of landfill areas into parks has been done successfully in other cities, Enersen said, adding that studies would have to be done by an ecologist in respect to plant growth under the conditions there.

In other action the board members agreed to further investigate the tennis complex including an indoor court at Woods Park urged by members of the Lincoln Tennis Association.

They referred the matter to the tennis and golf committee headed by John Lawlor and suggested that the possibility of a revenue bond issue be investigated.

Dean Rugg of the tennis group told the board members that his group was still interested in the tennis center as proposed at the last board meeting and they were also interested in an indoor facility.

He said that Lincoln is going to have an indoor facility someplace but the question is whether it would cost more or less if it were publicly financed.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said that there is a definite need for an indoor facility.

Board members indicated that tennis is increasing in popularity nationwide and that they would prefer having such a center a public operation rather than a private operation on public property as originally proposed by the tennis group.

Board Okays Concept Of Oak Lake Fountains

The concept of lighted fountains in Oak Lake near the Interstate I80 approach to Lincoln was approved by the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Board Thursday subject to final plans with staff cooperation.

George Day, in presenting the idea to the board Thursday, said that he was sure the installation and maintenance for one year could be financed by the Lincoln Foundation.

He said that after one year the City of Lincoln would assume the maintenance costs including power.

The board members concurred with Day that such an installation would enhance the beauty of the approach to the Capitol City.

Day suggested that a single jet fountain with a 60 to 70 foot jet height be placed in each of the two sections of Oak Lake — one on either side of the highway.

He said he had talked to the Lincoln Electric System about the feasibility of power and the Highway Department about use of the Interstate right-of-way.

Viewing slides of various fountains Day had witnessed on a recent trip to Europe aroused the question by board members if it might not be more effective to place both or all of the fountains on the east side of the Highway.

They noted that side was the less attractive side of the lake and that possible damage to the fountains by boats would not be a problem there since no boats are permitted in that area.

Although an estimate of annual maintenance cost for the lighted fountains was not available, Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said he would guess it would be not more than $4,000 and possibly less than $2,500 which is the annual cost per block for maintenance of the mall fountains downtown.

Day also suggested that the board consider undertaking a beautification project around Oak Lake with the planting of weeping willow and other trees along the shore line.

CAB Extends Rate Freeze On Airlines

Washington (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board said Thursday it has extended beyond Nov. 14 its moratorium on airline fare or rate increases.

The CAB said airline rates will remain frozen unless and until explicit action is taken to modify or remove President Nixon's freeze order of last August.

Family's Third Child Stricken With Leukemia

Salisbury Beach, Mass. (AP) — Leukemia has struck a third child of Mr. and Mrs. David Nugent, who lost two others to the disease 15 years ago, and seven years ago.

This time, the illness of William, 2, has been diagnosed as the fatal leukemia. The other family victims were girls, one 3 at the time of her death, the other 2.

Doctors told Mrs. Nugent of their diagnosis and said they are unable to explain how the disease happened to strike three in a family which has no other history of blood disorders.

The family has three other children, a 20-year-old daughter and two more boys, 12 and 3.

"It was bad enough once, but I accepted it," Mrs. Nugent told an interviewer. "Then it happened twice. And now this third time—it's unbearable."

Only Hard Work Can Bring PIRG To State, Says Calish

Public interest, according to Caren Calish, is concern for interests other than governmental and corporate. Research, according to dictionary definition, is investigation to discover and give correct interpretations of new facts.

A Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) is a public service group that is organized locally, cooperative nationally and originated by Ralph Nader.

Miss Calish is a PIRG organizer from Nader's office in Washington, D.C., who told approximately 120 persons at UNL's Love Library Tuesday night that only hard work and a comprehensive education program could bring PRIG to Nebraska.

Miss Calish related examples of the work accomplishments of PIRGs in Minnesota and Oregon and said similar groups are being organized in at least 15 other states, including Nebraska. She said the Washington office representatives were visiting only the states in which residents (mainly students) had indicated there was enough interest to at least imply success.

Local PIRG organizer, Deanne Canar said organizational workshops will be held at 7:30 p.m. every Thursday in the Nebraska Union. A statewide organizational meeting will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday in the Union.

Mr. Nixon's "floating dollar" sprung a leak yesterday. And when I walked over to American Express to buy pesetas, the U.S. one dollar bought only 68 point something in Spanish money. It was 70 to the U.S. $1 the day before.

Sic transit gloria (Ah, Gloria! There's a chick we'll always remember. Or was it Clementine?)

☆ ☆ ☆

The usual long line of Americans at the payoff window. (Big Mama's umbilical cord reaches across the world.)

He counted out the Spanish money for my $50 travel check. He quoted the new exchange — "minus one half per cent commission."

I said: "Commission? Man, I bought these travel checks from you people and paid one per cent for them."

But he only gave me a cold, sad look. Like a pawnbroker advising you he can only lend you $10 on your $100 watch.

☆ ☆ ☆

"The people who are getting rich today in Spain are the poor," said an American who lives here.

He said: "In Spain, it is the custom to leave the best agricultural land to the older sons. The younger sons inherit the beach land — usually they have to become fishermen to make it.

"But now, the beach lands are what foreigners want to buy. There are a hundred condominium and club developments. Beach land is gold."

They are being snapped up by Germans and Swedes. Americans and Swiss. (The British love Spain, but they don't seem to be able to get enough pounds out of England.

The American said: "Building has improved a lot. When they first built those community apartments on the Costa del Sol, most of them leaked like a sieve.

"The architects weren't paid enough and didn't know enough. The builders put them together with sand from the nearest beach. And the amount of cement he put in depended on his conscience.

The Costa del Sol boom was mainly a bust. House for rent ads said: "Roof guaranteed not to leak." (Meaning most houses did.)

Still it was cheap living. And the rain in Spain doesn't fall all the time. (Sit in the house and put up an umbrella.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Development money isn't all foreign. There are tremendously rich people in Spain. The Spanish government favors their keeping their money.

The peseta had been solid at 70 to the $1 for a long time.

When it went to 68 yesterday (that is the peseta rose) it was front page headlines in every Madrid paper.

The Americans said: "Not that it means a lot. In fact, maybe it's not so good. Means American importers pay more for Spanish olives, right.

"But it's the idea of it. Spain has had a long time of feeling downgraded. The rising peseta is a shot in the arm."

☆ ☆ ☆

Didn't make much difference to the tourist. I figured coffee on the Gran Via cost me maybe a tenth of a cent more. I ordered a second cup. Easy come, easy go.

OPPD OKs Contracts; Rejects Rail Spur Bid

Omaha (AP)— The Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) Thursday approved contracts and a contract change for construction work and equipment totaling $290,530. OPPD approved an agreement with the Nebraska Public Power District and rejected bids to build a railroad spur into the North Omaha Power Station.

General Manager Lynn Monroe said the spur railroad had been under study for about a year and potential savings on the freight costs of Wyoming coal do not justify the expenditure of about $281,000 to build the spur.

Phelps Dodge Cable and Wire Co. of Yonkers, N.Y. was given a $23,660 contract for underground cable for an Offutt Air Force Base project. Industrial Contractors Corp. of Omaha won a $21,500 contract to build foundations for steel towers for relocation of OPPD lines across the Platte River north of Louisville.

Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. received a contract change order worth $60,290 for extra work and costs of modifying reactor coolant piping at the Fort Calhoun nuclear station.

Contracts totaling $184,500 were approved with Northern Natural Gas Co. and the Metropolitan Utilities District for installation of one mile of 12-inch piping and other facilities to provide natural gas to OPPD's new gas-turbine power peaking units in Sarpy County.

The directors approved an agreement with NPPD for OPPD to take power from NPPD's 161,000-volt line near Ashland.

Knoxville, Tenn. — Tennessee Valley Authority generating plants use about 33 million tons of coal a year, about half purchased from strip-mine operations.

Iowa Soldiers Home Raided By Drug Thieves

Marshalltown, Iowa (UPI) — Marshalltown authorities Thursday revealed that thieves Wednesday night raided the pharmacy at the Iowa Soldiers Home here.

Authorities said 80 units of morphine in disperable syringes and more than 6,500 capsules of depressant and stimulant drugs were missing from the pharmacy.

State Head Of Young Demos Eyes National Office

Omaha (AP) — H. Joseph Farmer, president of Nebraska Young Democrats, said Thursday he plans to run for a national office in the organization.

Young Democrats will hold their national convention beginning Tuesday at Hot Springs, Ark.

Farmer, a Creighton University law student, said he probably will become a candidate for vice president.

The Nebraska delegation will include Kay Brown, Omaha, national committeewoman; Roger Sandman, Lincoln, committeeman; David Newell and Jo Schroeder, both of Lincoln, and James McGee and Yvonne Devereaux, both of Omaha.

Farmer said the convention has the option of endoraing a presidential candidate or staying neutral. Most of the major contenders will appear at the convention.

Farmer said he will work for an endorsement of Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

Non-Public School Use Of Tax Funds Backed

Discussing the pro side of tax funds for non-public schools, the executive director of the Nebraska Catholic Conference said "I believe in and subscribe to the precepts of the federal and state constitutions, but it is a matter of interpretation."

Paul O'Hara was speaking at a Sertoma Club luncheon meeting Thursday at which John Lynch, executive secretary of the Nebraska State Education Association presented the opposite point of view the previous week.

O'Hara believes that the "establishment clause" of the U.S. Constitution's 1st Amendment was "not intended to be the cornerstone of the debate on state aid to parochial schools." It has rather inherited that role from Supreme Court decisions, he said.

Both Sides

Touching on both sides of the issue, O'Hara quoted from several legal cases dealing with busing of non-public school pupils, free lending of textbooks and non-interference of the state in private school matters.

He said that when the Supreme Court decided against "entanglement between government and religion" this involved only elementary and secondary education. A decision on the same day allowed for grants to parochial colleges for secular studies, O'Hara reported.

He agrees with John Lynch that Nebraska has one of the most restrictive constituional provisions on appropriating state funds to any institution which is not directly owned or directed by the state.

O'Hara attributes the adoption of this "anti-sectarian" clause to the "know-nothing" movement which prevailed at the time the clause was written into the Nebraska Constitution. He feels this movement provided the basic "principle" behind the church-state argument.

Title I 'Debacle'

Turning to the Title I "debacle" in Nebraska, which he said has gone unsolved for six years, O'Hara hopes for an answer by the end of this year. Nebraska, Oklahoma and Arkansas are the only states in which Title I funds are not used for non-public education, he said.

As for the future of non-public education, "it is impossible to predict," said O'Hara.

He hopes creative leaders will devote their sincere interest in bringing about "cooperative provisions by the states for both public and non-public schools."

VA Hospital Patients Dip In Fiscal 1971

By The Associated Press

The three Veterans Administration hospitals in Nebraska dealt with 10,532 patients in fiscal 1971, down slightly from the previous year's 10,717, the directors of the hospitals reported Thursday in a joint announcement.

During the current fiscal year the hospitals — located in Omaha, Lincoln and Grand Island — expect to treat 11,365 persons, the announcement said.

Vietnam veterans represented only 800 of the total treated at the three Nebraska hospitals last year.

The Nebraska VA hospital directors — S. H. Birdzell of Omaha, H. M. Ruppen of Lincoln and C. W. Lyons of Grand Island — recently attended a conference in Washington with other VA officials.

On their return they said the VA is meeting the rising demand for medical care to a great extent by increasing the number of patients treated through improved health care methods. This allows the VA to treat more patients with the same number of beds.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

On positive level, Aries can lead. On negative level, members of this zodiacal sign tend to dominate. Leo can entertain, but on negative level these natives can substitute showmanship for actual knowledge. Gemini can be articulate, but on negative side these persons can talk much about nothing. Capricorn can be patient but also can wait too long, permitting opportunity to fly away.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stick to basic issues. You can accomplish chores, get house in order. Keep diet, health resolutions. Attend to details. Correct false impression affecting family member. Profit indicated if thorough.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Give full play to creative urges. Don't hold back. Now is time to imprint your own style. Be ready for change, travel, variety. Open lines of communication. Pisces plays prominent role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Find out the why of events. Refuse to be satisfied with superficial explanations. Get down to basics. There is paucity of information about values, costs, inventory. Do added research.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Where efforts were blocked co-operation now is received. Journey that had been cancelled can be put back on schedule. Relations with neighbors, close relatives improve. Harmony replaces discontent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Money situation improves. What has been held back is released. Additional funds could become available. Take initiative. Stress originality, independence. Put forth views in confident, sure manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study Leo message. Those who ergnore may not be successful. Lunar score favors efforts. Review what's welcome, start in new directions. Tactfulness creates own style.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You find yourself concerned with budget, information, special group or organization. Fine for theatrical work aimed at raising funds for charity. Reach beyond imagined limitations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on fulfillment of desires. What appears a restriction may be a protective measure. Realize this — don't lome to conclusions. A friend is shielding you. Preserve more private matters. Be discreet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spotlight on advancement, career, relating activities to ambitions. Some changes are due. Gemini, Virgo individuals may be involved. You could receive message which sends pride, prestige soaring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Concern with philosophical, religious concepts tends to dominate. Gain co-operation of family. You need a solid base. Time for mere procrastination is finished. Get over-all gain going.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What was obscure now has clear meaning. Use humor. Profit possible; pounce on investment opportunity. Make decisions, initiative. Maintain dignity, but be flexible. Pisces is significant.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Co-operate with Aquarius individual. Emphasis is on public reaction to your efforts. You make gains by utilizing past experience. Caution now is better part of valor. Know this — act accordingly.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have the sense of humor you need to see life in all its many parts. But those who know you best understand that your feelings run deep. Fortunately, you can feel alone in a crowd. But recent events have given you greater self-understanding. Ahead, single, marriage is on horizon.

Coliseum Supporters Plan Organization

Fact finding will be the mission of a Nov. 19 organizational meeting of the Nebraskans for the Coliseum in Lincoln.

Milt Ebers, chairman of the group and former mayor of Fremont, said since the nickel increase in the state's cigarette tax was approved by the Legislature, all action "sort of seems to be stymied."

Gov. J. J. Exon has said he opposes the earmarking of the funds created by the tax for specific purposes — the financing of a new coliseum and a state office building. He has indicated he would try again next year to get the legislature to eliminate the earmarking provision and divert the money to the general fund.

Ebers said he thinks support for his group is widespread. He said all those contacting him "were interested in getting on the team. We need it (the coliseum) badly and if it doesn't get off the stalemate, it will be several years before we have it." He said the Nebraskans for the coliseum would not concern themselves with the proposed state office building.

Lunch Fund Increase May Benefit Nebraska

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Although official word had not yet been received, it appeared late this week that Lincoln and other Nebraska schools may soon begin to benefit from a congressionally-ordered increase in school lunch funds.

Allen Elliott, director of the State Education Department's food services division, said Thursday he had been called to a meeting in Chicago next week with officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which administers school lunch programs.

Elliott said he assumes official regulations and explanations of the school lunch legislation will be explained at that time.

Robert Den Hartog, associate superintendent for business affairs in the Lincoln Public Schools, said earlier this week that it appeared Lincoln would be in line for increased reimbursements under the legislation.

But Den Hartog said the schools were waiting final word from the State Education Department.

The legislation, passed late last month and signed by President Nixon just last weekend, calls for an increase to an average rate of 40 cents per meal in the reimbursement rate for free lunches, plus 6 cents for all Type A meals served.

The legislation came after a confrontation between Congress and the USDA over the Agriculture Department's announced plan to cut back in school lunch aid.

Last year, federal reimbursements to the Lincoln School District ranged from 4 to 12 cents for each standard Type A meal served, and from 15 to 31 cents for each free meal.

So far this year, the district has been operating on the assumption it would receive no less than 5 cents and 30 cents.

2,000 Meals A Day

Last year, the district served slightly more than 2,000 free meals daily, while the year-to-date average in the current semester is nearly 2,500.

Nearly 15,000 Type A meals are served in Lincoln daily, about the same as last year.

For the past two years, the Lincoln school board has decided to provide a general fund "subsidy" from tax monies in case revenue from school lunch operations dropped below expenditures.

Last year the subsidy wasn't needed because of increased federal reimbursements near the end of the school term.

More Money Expected

Elliott said last month he believed as much $1 million more in lunch funds might come into the state as a result of the federal legislation.

The Lincoln district in 1970-71 received cash subsidies for free and Type A lunches totaling $210,000. The same figures were used to figure this year's budget.

Since the subsidy fluctuated so much last year, school officials believed it would be impossible to accurately estimate the new totals.

Den Hartog said Thursday it will be difficult to assess the total fiscal impact of the change until the State Education Department has the new regulations in hand.

Based on figures reported to date, it appears it could mean as much as $60,000 to $70,000 more to the Lincoln district than it would have received.

But such an estimate would depend on the assumption that the current 5-and 30-cent reimbursements would have remained static throughout the year, and that the new 6- and 40-cent reimbursements will not change.

Selection Set For Colleges' Search Panel

The search committee to find a successor to retiring Kearney State College President Milton J. Hassel should be selected by the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges' Dec. 10 meeting, according to board executive officer Dr. James Todd Thursday.

The committee will represent 15 organizations, Todd said, including faculty, undergraduate and graduate students, alumni, ex-officio members of the board of trustees and Kearney State Foundation members.

Todd said he expects the nominees the committee will select will be top quality educators.

Hassel, who has held the post at Kearney since 1961, announced his retirement Sept. 24 without saying what his future plans are.

Hassel, 55, said at the time that he has been considering retiring for the past two or three years.

"Flapper" Colleen Moore Talks Of 'Roaring 20s' And Clothes

BY ANGELA TAYLOR
(c) New York Times Service

New York — "Don't worry, girls. No edict of fashion arbiters will ever swathe you in long and cumbersome skirts . . . long skirts, corsets and flowing tresses have gone . . . the American girl will see to this. She is independent, a thinker and will not follow slavishly the ordinances of those, who in the past, have decreed this or that for her to wear."

The date was 1925. The author, Colleen Moore, of the one blue eye and one brown eye, was the first movie Flapper. As such, she was to be at the vanguard of the most important fashion revolution of the century, when skirts rose above the knee, bosoms vanished and waistlines slid down to the hips. After she appeared in "Flaming Youth" in 1923, women were never to look the same again. Her Dutch bob was copied in every village and hamlet and so was her pert, emancipated air.

These days, Colleen Moore laughs at the purported naughtiness of the Flapper. "Actually all she did was drink a cocktail and smoke a cigarette in public. Underneath, she was a good girl."

Still, the new word (supposedly derived from the flapping, open galoshes of the time) upset the Camp-Fire Girls enough for them to object publicly to the use of "flapper." They wanted the new generation to be known as "modern."

Miss Moore is 69, her dark hair is straight, and without the bangs she wore in "Flaming Youth," but it is still ear-length. And her new black dress from Bill Blass with its white collar and cuffs looks familiar — "Oh, I've worn may dresses like this one."

Having watched the nineteen-twenties, the thirties and the forties come back into style these past few years, how does she feel?

Most of the revivals have been to costumey for her: "People look as though they're dressed for Halowe'en," she says.

Just as in 1925, she disliked the recent wave of midcalf skirts. "I felt old and dowdy in the midi, I shortened mine to knee length."

Her favorite memory is the black net flapper dress Howard Greer designed for "Flaming youth," but her favorite design period, she says, was that of the thirties, "when the waist came and hems were just below the knee."

She loves to wear pants in California and is amused that the young think they've dreamed up the fad for blue jeans.

After all, she wore jeans as far back as 1917, when she came to Hollywood at 15 to be another Lillian Gish. Instead, she found herself playing pure-as-snow heroins in silent westerns with Tom Mix, where she always came out second best to his horse, Tony.

The jeans were fine, but she got pretty tired of the curls she had to put up herself and the gingham dresses she wore when she wasn't on horseback. At her mother's suggestion, she cut off the curls in 1923 and landed the part of the flapper.

"Flaming Youth" was banned in Boston, a fact that brings a burst of laughter from the first flapper, but it got her a string of Charleston dancing parts. Clara Bow was to make her own splash soon as the "It" girl, but the queen of flapperdom was still the 98-pound, curveless Irish girl who started out life as Kathleen Morrison in Port Huron, Mich., and who grew up in Tampa, Fla., where her father was in the machinery business.

Under the tutelage of eesigner Janet Sondheim she learned to look both all-American and very chic. A photograph of her taken with James J. Walker, then mayor of New York, shows her in a handkerchief-pointed chiffon dress that has had any number of revivals since 1928.

She is still passionately interested in clothes and is looking forward to her new house in Paso Robles, Calif.

Miss Moore quit the movies in 1937, when she married her third husband, Homer Hargrave, a Chicago broker. Hargrave, who died in 1967, taugh his wife enough about money for her to write a book, "How Women Can Make Money In The Stock Market," and to also join a leading brokerage house.

Now she has a myriad other interests: grandchildren and her famous doll house — the fabulous fairy castle that took seven years and almost $500,000 to build. The house has toured the country for charity and is in the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago. Now there is a book about it, published by Doubleday.

The flapper — "not beautiful, but a good girl" — seems tame these days. But her clothes were an awful lot of fun, and Miss Moore says she wouldn't be a bit surprised to see them revived over and over again.

Abby: have a noisy battle

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's family. We get along for the most part, but when it comes to politics and related social issues, we disagree violently. In order to keep every get-together from erupting into a noisy battle, I just keep my mouth shut.

However, my children are now old enough to understand the talk and I don't like some of the statements made by my husband's family to go unchallenged. Yet I know they are the kind of people with whom one cannot have an intelligent discussion. All they know how to do is yell and argue.

They (my husband's people) always initiate these political discussions, and to keep the peace, I say nothing. How in the world can I keep quiet without destroying my children's beliefs in my ideals?

BUTTONED LIP

DEAR LIP: A good noisy battle involving politics and related social issues is much healthier for children than the choked off silence you're maintaining in the interest of peace and quiet. Speak up! Silence implies agreement.

DEAR ABBY: I am divorced and have four children. I've been dating Harold for two years and we plan on marrying.

Here is my question: Harold contends that if we take my children out to eat, or for entertainment, I should pay for the children until we are married.

My argument is that since we do this only occasionally, it is not too much to expect Harold to treat them.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Harold may not be "stingy" — but he's no big spender either. My friend Amy Vanderbilt (who is the last word on "accepted etiquet") says that when a divorcee and her children are invited out, the "host" picks up the tab for ALL the guests. (P.S. If you plan to marry Harold, establish all the financial ground rules in advance or prepare for some rough money fights!)

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to attend the wedding of a girl who works where I started working about a month ago. (I'll call her Rosie.) I accepted. Another co-worker who was also invited asked if we could buy Rosie a wedding present together. I said okay. We bought the gift and had it delivered to Rosie's home.

Both the co-worker and I got a "thank-you" note for the "shower gift." We weren't invited to any shower, and the card we enclosed with our present plainly said, "FOR YOUR WEDDING." Well, anybody can make a mistake, so I didn't care about that, but listen to this:

The day before the wedding, Rosie calls me up and asks me NOT to come to her wedding because she "over-invited" and there wasn't enough room. She called the other co-worker and told her the same thing.

Do you think Rosie should have offered to return our gift? Or at least try to patch things up by offering to bring us a piece of wedding cake? Thank you.

"LOST OUT" IN N.J.

DEAR "LOST": Either your friend Rosie has corn flakes where her brains belong, or she became addled by her forthcoming nuptials. Forget it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO EDITH IN LONG BEACH. What's done is done. When you pick a lemon, make a lemonade!

Footlights & Canvas

BY PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

The books are filled this week with exciting happenings on the performing arts calendar, so I will be brief.

However, before we get into the meat of the matter, the community-at-large might take note of a new enterprise at Nebraska Wesleyan University where students and faculty are making an effort to create a pool of tickets for cultural events in Lincoln. Those who are unable to make use of season tickets for a performance are asked to submit them to the pool, so that other students might use them. Not a bad idea for the general public.

Now, for your further entertainment:

A STITCHERY IN TIME . . . Three dimensional stitchery is the byline of artist Priscella Sage whose creative hangings will be on exhibit at Elder Gallery beginning Friday, Nov. 19. Using a great variety of materials, Mrs. Sage's work provides one of the most unusual displays at Elder Gallery this year. The show will run through Dec. 17.

TUNING IN . . . Channel 12, ETV, has a week planned that is chock full of fine entertainment — all to be seen and heard in your own home. Beginning Sunday, Nov. 14, Dame Edith Evans will appear in Dostoyevsky's "The Gambler" at 8 p.m. Pierre Boulez, the colorful new music director of the New York Philharmonic, is profiled at 7 o'clock on Monday evening, Nov. 15. Violinist Paul Zukofsky and pianist Gilbert Kalish combine their talents on Tuesday, Nov. 16 at 9 p.m. when they perform two Beethoven sonatas. The long awaited televising of "MacBeth" as performed by the Nebraska Repertory Theatre will be seen on Wednesday evening, Nov. 17 at 9 o'clock.

OPERA FOR CHILDREN . . . "Help, Help, the Gobolinks", an opera for children and those who like children by Gian Carlo Menotti is programmed at Kimball Recital Hall for Friday through Sunday. Children, who get so little exposure to opera, will delight in this tale of giant Globolinks who take over the earth. Showtime is 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and 3 p.m. on Sunday.

CAUGHT IN THE BREEZE . . . Sheldon Art Gallery at the University of Nebraska opens the George Rickey sculpture exhibition on Tuesday, Nov. 16, and plans to use electric fans to keep the Rickey sculpture in motion. Art enthusiasts will recognize Rickey as one of two artists who have utilized the idea of motion in their sculpture with success, the other being Alexander Calder. The show will be open through Dec. 12.

THE HOSTS WITH THE MOST . . . Next week Lincoln High School will host the Nebraska Music Educators Association Clinic on Nov. 18, 19 and 20. The last day of the meetings for 1,200 students from across the state and 500 teachers will feature a demonstration lecture by the Pro Arte String Quartet on Friday morning at 10 o'clock at Nebraska Wesleyan University O'Donnell Auditorium, which is open to the public. On Friday evening, the Quartet will perform at the NWU Auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Square Dances

Square dance enthusiasts will be out in full force this weekend as several dances are being planned by clubs affiliated with the Lincoln Round and Square Dance Council.

There will be two dances on Friday evening, Nov. 12—and two are scheduled for Saturday evening, Nov. 13.

The members of the Chix and Chasers group will be swinging their partners at St. Paul United Methodist Church come Friday evening. The partying is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock.

That same evening, the members of the Swing 'Em In Gingham group will do their share of do-se-doing from 8:30 o'clock until the wee hours at the Lincoln Recreation Center No. 1.

TOWN TALK

It could have been that big, bright harvest moon that inspired the Fifty Fifty Club's theme "Harvest Ball" for its dinner dance next Tuesday evening at Hotel Lincoln.

The party planners include Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Laymon, chairmen, and their co-chairmen Mr. and Mrs. Guy Harris, Dr. and Mrs. Wayne Harm, Mr. and Mrs. Galen Fritchie, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bush and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mays.

tour of the shops has a do-it- yourself theme

When winter finally takes hold many of us will find ourselves lost and trapped inside—and will be searching high and low for indoor activities to keep us occupied until the spring colors once again show their faces.

Making things for the home, for loved ones, and even for ourselves will be a sure-cure for monotony during those cold, windy winter days and nights. And remember that it is not too late to begin making Christmas gifts and home decorations.

This week on our tour of the shops we looked for make-it-yourself items to occupy those long hours.

AT BRANDEIS

The short sweater vest has made its grand return and Bucilla has come up with a great kit complete with all of the necessary tools to make a stunning flower top. The kit, which sells for $4, has only four skeins of yarn. It won't take any time to complete this piece of apparel—and the colors are striking, including combinations of purple, rust and yellow; brown, bone, and pink; white, blue, and green, and several others.

If you are interested in making up-to-date clothes for yourself or others, we recommend the Suede Yourself kits from Craftmaker, LTD. The kits, priced between $8 and $16, possess all of the makings for hats, skirts, hot pants, ponchos, and much, much more—and the colors are divine, including rich shades of brown and purple.

There are all sorts of gifts to make for the kiddies. The grow charts, with embroidered and stitched cartoon characters or animals, are interesting pieces for a child's bedroom—as well as the Creative Decor kits which help to create cute animal pictures for his or her room. Any child also would love to receive the soft toy dolls with the charming faces. These sell for $6.

The Creative Decor kits, complete with unfinished frames, also offer interesting plaques for the kitchen. The $7.50 kit has many varieties of beans and peas which are glued on the cotton background to form chickens and other kitchen clatter creatures.

The wide popularity of string art inspired the kits from Spinnerin. The creations are contemporary — and the $5 kits include all of the necessities, including nails and a bright cotton background, for making these interesting wall hangings.

Another interesting item we found was a needlepoint tennis racket cover. The design is a cluster of four leaf clovers, and the kit sells for $10.

By the way, Brandeis also has a huge stock of Christmas decorations — some are knitted and some are to be jewelled. The do-it-yourself kits, ranging in price from $3.50 to $15, include such adornments as Christmas stockings, calendars, growth charts, holiday covers for electric light switches, tree ornaments and skirts, mail or gift bags, and decorative center panels for the holiday table.

FASHION YARDAGE

This newer fabric shop in the center on the southeast corner of 56th and O Streets specializes in knits and easy care fabrics and offers a wide variety of the unusual.

In the front of this rather large store are rows and rows of beautiful polyesters. There are assortments of patterned polyesters in a double knit, as well as stripes and solids.

Women will love the attractive knits for men's wear, and there is a choice of wool double knits as well as polyesters. There is also a class given in sewing men's fashions, if you would like to learn.

Seamstresses who plan to make their own holiday dresses will be pleased with the selection of party fabrics. For the more casual occasion there are denim velvets of 100 percent cotton, with the attribute of being washable.

For the more formal affair there is a large selection of metallic brocades. One of our favorites featured a deep purple background with a design in metallic gold and silver. Another beautiful brocade features mother of pearl woven into a beige background with accents of gold metallic.

Fake furs are popular this year for everything from coats to bedspreads. There are the fun furs for home accessories, as well as fake animal furs for coats or maybe a vest or skirt.

For your child's room, there are cotton quilting fabrics with coordinated polyester materials. The patterns include animal figures, Raggedy Anns, and circus figures. They would serve well for bedspreads and coordinated draperis.

One of the specialty areas of the Fashion Yardage is the bridal boutique area where there is everything for the bride from headpieces to garters.

The store also offers all of the accessories for the seamstress, from trims to appliques to do-it-yourself belt and tie kits.

AT SINGER'S

The busy seamstress needs to have some place to keep all of her supplies together—and Singer's has the answer to this problem—the sewing box.

The sewing boxes come in all shapes, sizes, and patterns. Some are covered with cotton or vinyl with bright prints, florals, patterns, and even paisleys. There also are some interesting wicker sewing boxes.

If sewing is not your cup of tea, we recommend the sewing boxes for a multitude of other home needs. Some gals use them for wig cases, purses, and even as shoe totes—as well as for organizing their knitting, crocheting, or embroidery supplies.

By the way, Singer's has everything imaginable for the seamstress, and even for the beginner.

Phi Gamma Delta Has Pig Dinner

Fijidom was out in full force very recently. We won't go so far as to say that all 1,100 living men who at one time or another have inhabited the realm of Lambda Nu Chapter were on hand, but a goodly crowd was on hand.

It was Phi Gamma Delta fraternity's 'Norris Pig Dinner' which was held at the Nebraska Club and at which the guest speaker was William R. Hauser, a vice-president of American Motor Inns, Inc., and Archon president of the fraternity.

Dr. Hauser is not a member of Lambda Nu chapter at the University of Nebraska but 'Jerry' Solomon is. Mr. Solomon, the branch manager of Occidental Life Insurance Co. of California, is a Fiji at Nebraska. received a great share of applause from his Phi Gam brothers.

Mr. Solomon was elected to the office Archon Councilor at the fraternity's 122nd Ekklesia last year, but there will be those who remember that he directed his fraternity to two first-places in the all-campus Kosmet Klub shows, and also to first and second places in the inter-fraternity son contests.

The Norris Pig Dinner dates back to 1893—and it honors the late Frank B. Norris (California '94). It was Mr. Norris, after a long night devoted to merriment and a squealing pig, proposed that the pig dinner become "a tradition in the fraternity."

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Spades and North leads the king of clubs. (Trumps are divided 2-2). How would you play the hand?

	♠ A K J 7 3 ♥ K 9 ♦ A 9 5 ♣ 7 4 2
♠ Q 10 9 2 ♥ 8 7 4 ♦ K J 10 3 ♣ A 6	N W E S

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Notrump and North leads the jack of spades. How would you play the hand?

	♠ A 7 3 2 ♥ 5 ♦ A K Q 8 4 2 ♣ A 9
♠ K 6 ♥ A K Q 7 4 ♦ 10 3 ♣ K 6 5 2	N W E S

1. The contract is in danger only if North has the ace of hearts and you misguess the diamond finesse. Thus, if you won the club lead, drew trumps and lost a diamond to South, a heart return could lay you low. Equally, if you lost a diamond to North, he might be cunning enough to put partner on lead with a club, and in that case a heart return from South would again expose you to ignominious defeat.

To prevent all this from happening you must organize the play so that South, the dangerous opponent, cannot take the lead for a heart return through your king. In line with this, you start by ducking the king of clubs in order to sever communication between North and South in clubs.

Let's assume North leads another club. Win with the ace, draw two rounds of trumps, lead the jack of diamonds from dummy and finesse. Even if the finesse loses, you are sure of ten tricks because North cannot profitably attack hearts.

2. There is only one danger, namely, that one opponent has the missing diamonds. Consequently all your thoughts are directed to guarding against this one possibility. The threat can be met very simply by winning the first trick with the ace of spades and playing a low diamond towards the ten.

If North has all the diamonds, the best he can do is score the jack, whether he plays it at once or permits the ten to win the trick. If South has all of them, he can win the ten with the jack, but his remaining diamonds will then be easy to trap.

The safety play in diamonds, though unusual, is well worth the price. It guarantees the slam, come what may, and the premium declarer pays for this insurance is a paltry 30 points.

Provincialism Evident

The Midlands perhaps has a false reputation for its provincialism while the coastal areas are supposed to be more cosmopolitan.

But one place where the Midlands has nothing over other areas in provincialism is in the football ratings. What else other than provincialism can you blame the fact on that Stanford ranks ahead of either Colorado or Tennessee in this week's football polls?

Stanford, ranked 10th, has losses to unranked Duke and Washington State while Colorado, in the second 10, has lost only to No. 1-rated Nebraska and No. 2-ranked Oklahoma, and Tennessee, also stuck away in the second 10, has been beaten only by top tenners Alabama and Auburn.

A West Coast writer, back to cover the Oklahoma-Colorado game a month ago, tried to tell us that the only team in the country better than Stanford was Michigan.

Michigan and Stanford are going to get plenty of support in the polls from West Coast and Big Ten writers in future weeks because those writers must try to build up what shapes up to be a bad bowl game in the Rose Bowl.

But for Michigan to become No. 1 this season would take more combinations coming out right than it took for Nebraska to do it last season.

Last week's picking mark was only 39-16-1 for 70.5%, dropping the season log to 333-129-5 for 71.8%. Hoping for a recovery, this week:

The Big Eight

NEBRASKA 38, Kansas State 7 . . . The Huskers play them one at a time and that's trouble for foes.

COLORADO 28, Oklahoma State 14 . . . The Buffs are entertaining bowl hopes.

IOWA STATE 16, Missouri 3 . . . The Cyclones looked bad last week, but Nebraska makes everyone look bad.

OKLAHOMA 52, Kansas 14 . . . With the defense the Jayhawks have, they ought to forget this one — except it's a TV game.

The Top Ten

MICHIGAN 35, Purdue 7 . . . The Wolverines are playing that old ratings game of running up the score.

ALABAMA 28, Miami, Fla. 7 . . . Johnny (Musso) won't run this week, but the Tide is still good enough to win handily.

PENN STATE 51, North Carolina State 7 . . . Penn State is playing the same game Michigan is.

NOTRE DAME 42, Tulane 7 . . . Now that Ara's found his offense, he can start pouring it on people again.

ARIZONA STATE 35, Wyoming 0 . . . Even if they were playing in Laramie instead of Tempe, the Cowboys would be no match.

STANFORD 28, San Jose State 7 . . . If any team is due for a letdown this week, it's the Indians, who have wrapped up a league title and a bowl berth.

MADISON DOWNS GETS AXE

. . . Lincoln Track Said 'Disgrace To Racing'

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Madison Downs, as expected, Thursday was removed from the Nebraska Thoroughbred racing circuit after 36 years, but getting even more attention as the Nebraska State Racing Commission wound up a two-day meeting here was the poor facilities at the State Fairgrounds track in Lincoln.

After listening to everyone from horsemen to racing commission chairman Harry Farnham tell how bad conditions are in Lincoln, one horseman, Bob Lee, quipped, "Maybe we ought to let Madison have dates and take away Lincoln's dates."

But after more than an hour of discussion on the Lincoln facilities, State Fair manager Henry Brandt suggested that a committee be set up to attempt to work toward a new facility for the Capital City.

The suggestion was met with a completely favorable response from horsemen, other track managers and the commission and the committee to be composed of the various segments of the racing industry plus some outsiders is expected to be named soon.

"The Lincoln track has had outstanding management," Farnham said, beginning the discussion, "But the plant is a disgrace to racing and to the State of Nebraska."

Brandt responded that because of state laws governing the State Fair Board's actions and because of difficulty in getting their points across to some legislators, his plans for building a new facility were running into problems.

"Horse racing has supported the State Fair for years," he pointed out, "And if it hadn't been for racing, we wouldn't even have the Fairgrounds we have now nor the fairs we have today.

"But for horse racing, we're ending up using the same facilities we had in 1935 or 1936. My board is gung-ho to go, but there's nothing we can do unless the legislature says okay."

Brandt noted that in 1971, racing at the State Fairgrounds paid in the "neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars to the State of Nebraska in taxes and got not a dime back.

"If we could get back even a portion of what we have given, we could get started on building a new plant and with a decent facility, we could double our pari-mutuel handle in the first year.

"If we could just get the legislature to invest 2½ million dollars, in 10 years they would get all their money back plus interest."

"Lincoln should have a fine race track and a fine fairgrounds," he began. "But no one in Lincoln is standing up. Some one in Lincoln has got to stand up and give support to this thing.

"To get the job of building a new plant done, it will take help from the Nebraska Association of Race Tracks, from the Nebraska Breeders Association, the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association and the county fair people.

"But it's got to start in Lincoln. The spark must come from someone in Lincoln."

The end of thoroughbred racing at Madison marked the third track in the past 20 years to fall with Alliance bowing out after the 1963 season and Mitchell after the 1967 season.

"There's not a track in Nebraska that has had better management than Madison," Farnham said as it became evident that Madison was through. "Nor is there a track that has been more cooperative in the Nebraska system.

"The decision not to award 1972 racing dates to Madison is the most unpleasant decision the commission has had to make.

"However, a combination of factors necessitates this action. In spite of their outstanding management under Morris (Butch) Moyer and his dedicated board, the meet has lost money each of the last four years.

"The economic situation makes it unfair to the horsemen to require them to race during this period for greatly reduced purses, not to mention the loss of tax revenue to the State of Nebraska.

"However, the commission, in conjunction with Butch Moyer and his board, is exploring different formats of pari-mutuel horse racing for Madison Downs, hoping in the near future that the track can continue in the great tradition of the past."

The removal of Madison from the racing scene for 1972 set off a wild scramble for the track's 13 dates and the three-man commission of Farnham, Robert Logsdon of Lincoln and Ken Jenkins of Grand Island said final dates would not be set for the 1972 season before Friday morning.

Dates requested by the tracks Thursday were:

Fonner Park — March 3-4, 10-11, 17-April 29.

Ak-Sar-Ben — May 2-July 15.
Lincoln — July 18-Aug. 23.
Columbus — Aug. 21-Sept. 23.
Atokad — Sept. 26-Nov. 4.

Sloey Will Make First Road Trip

Sloey, a 6-1 225-pounder, was the starting linebacker for coach Bob Devaney's Huskers at the beginning of the season but has been hampered recently with a knee injury.

The junior from Hawthorne, Calif. pounced on an Iowa State fumble deep in NU territory in last Saturday's 37-0 victory over the Cyclones to help preserve the shutout.

Trio Picks Huskers

The collegiate football forecasting trio of The Associated Press' Will Grimsley and Herschell Nissenson and United Press International's Charlie Smith all see a Nebraska victory over Kansas State.

Grimsley picks the Huskers by 43-17, commenting, "Cornhusker fans continue to flood us with letters saying Nebraska is great. We know it."

In picking NU, Nissenson observes, "Next . . . Oklahoma. The Cornhuskers throttled Iowa State 37-0 last Saturday and now go after K-State's Dennis Morrison, who is coming off a 363-yard passing effort."

Oddsmakers Say 33

The nation's oddsmakers have made Nebraska a 33-point favorite in the Huskers' contest with Kansas State Saturday.

In other Big Eight games, Oklahoma is favored by 30 over Kansas, Iowa State by 12 over Missouri and Colorado 14 over Oklahoma State.

—UNHAPPY WITH BULLETS—

Pearl Happy With Trade To Knicks?

New York (AP) — Earl "The Pearl" Monroe, who issued a trade-me-or-else ultimatum to the Baltimore Bullets, got his way Thursday when he was acquired by the New York Knicks in a multi-faceted transaction.

In order to acquire the unhappy Monroe, who in four National Basketball Association seasons has reached superstar status, the Knicks gave the Bullets forward Dave Stallworth, guard Mike Riordan and an undisclosed amount of cash.

There, however, seemed to be some confusion over whether the deal had met with Monroe's approval. Red Holzman, the Knicks' coach and general manager, said he had not talked to Monroe but had spoken to his agent and acknowledged "there are a few things we have to iron out."

Pressed to elaborate, Holzman, refused, continually repeating the phrase "there are a few things we have to iron out" over and over again to every question concerning the details that remained outstanding.

But Holzman did say that Monroe's contract "has been agreed upon. It's a multiple year contract—more than a year. But I wouldn't care to say for how many years."

Monroe, whose 21.4 average last year was his lowest since joining the Bullets out of Winston-Salem College in 1967-68, played only three games for the Baltimore club before he failed to show for a game against the Knicks on Oct. 22.

At that time, Jerry Sachs, the Bullets' executive vice president, said Monroe had given the club an utlimatum through his agent stating that he wanted to be traded and would no longer play in Baltimore. The Bullets immediately placed him under suspension.

Asked how Monroe, who was used by the Bullets primarily as a one-on-one player, would fit into a Knicks' pattern that relies on precision team work, Holzman replied:

"I don't think he's basically a one-on-one player. He's basically a basketball player and can adjust to anything that has to be done on a basketball court. We know he has great talent and we hope to put it to use here."

Holzman, however, said he probably would continue to start Walt Frazier and Dick Barnett in the Knicks' backcourt, although Monroe "has been working out and he's supposed to be in shape."

Stallworth, who is in his fifth NBA season after sitting out two years with a heart ailment, carried a 10.6 career average into the season.

Nicklaus Collects Individual Lead

. . . UNITED STATES TIED FOR SECOND

Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. (AP) — Streaking Jack Nicklaus shot a four-under-par 68 for the individual lead but South Africa, fired by Gary Player, took first place in the team competition Thursday in the opening round of the World Cup Golf Tournament.

Player, making his first appearance in this country in about three months, didn't have a bogey in his round of 69 that led his teammate Harold Henning to a two-man total of 140, four under par on the long, demanding 7,096-yard, east course at the PGA National golf course.

The Americans — Nicklaus teamed with Super Mex Lee Trevino, who had the putting woes again — and New Zealand were tied in the team competition at 143, three strokes off the leading pace.

Rangy young Peter Oosterhuis had a 69 and led England — he was paired with Tony Jacklin in the two-man team competition between 46 nations — to a 144 total. Jacklin had a 75.

Those were the only nations able to match or break par on the course that offered severe rough and gusty winds, contributing to some extremely slow play. The average time for the 18 holes was just over six hours.

"Well," quipped Trevino, "it's better than being in the room."

Trevino, holder of the single season money winning record, six titles including the British, American and Canadian Open crowns and a prime candidate for the individual crown in this tournament, could do no better than 75.

He bogeyed, three of his first four holes and had three times three-putted, the same problem that plagued him last week when he finished tied for third in the Mexican Open.

"I played pretty good," admitted Nicklaus, winner of tournaments in Australia each of the last two weeks.

Nicklaus, second only to Trevino on the money winning list in America and winner of four American titles this year, had five birdies and a pair of bogeys, on the seventh and eighth holes.

He three-putted the seventh and put his second shot over the green on the eighth.

"He had a terrible shot to mak right there," Trevino said.

"I thought, 'Oh, my goodness. I'm riding him, and he's made one bogey and is about to make another one and what's going to happen to the rider if the horse breaks down.'

"I want to tell you I've got some kind of a partner. He's just so long and strong. That's what made it play so slow. A lot of these little guys from the Asian countries got to hit alot of shots to get to the green. And if they miss a fairway, they're out there in the rough spending 15 minutes trying to find their ball."

It was so slow that two teams failed to finish before darkness blanketed the course. The Romanians and Libya were on the 18th tee when they decided they couldn't go on. The Romanians wre 44 over par and the Libyans 26 over. They'll finish Friday.

—BOOED OFF FIELD—

Morrison Top K-State Hope

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State is pinning its hopes of beating top-ranked Nebraska Saturday on the shoulders of a quarterback who was literally booed off the field last month.

The quarterback is Dennis Morrison, who inherited the job from Lynn Dickey, for three seasons the record-breaking passer of the Big Eight Conference.

Suddenly, after Kansas State was shut out by Iowa State, Coach Vince Gibson shifted back to the pro type offense with two wide receivers and dropback passing which made Dickey the aerial wizard of the league.

The results have been little short of spectacular. Morrison has connected on 67 of 124 passes for 864 yards and two victories in the Wildcats' last three games.

"He has amazed us," Gibson said Thursday. "Morrison is a leader now. He's confident, he's got poise and he can scramble. It's hard to throw any better than he is right now . . . Dickey or anybody else. There's no telling how good he's going to be."

Morrison has moved to the top in the Big Eight passing race, replacing Jerry Tagge, the Nebraska sharpshooter who will be matching wits with the revitalized Wildcat star Saturday.

Gibson and Morrison know what they're up against with the Cornhuskers, who haven't lost in 28 consecutive games, coming to town.

"They don't throw the interception and have a very high completion percentage," Gibson said. "It's going to be tough with the great balance between rushing and passing that Nebraska has. Johnny Majors told me to pray."

—BID FOR PERFECT SEASON—

Injured Frosh Face K-State

Manhattan, Kan. — Nebraska's freshman football team will open with a "new coach" in Friday's tilt at Manhattan against Kansas State, but few operational changes are expected.

Assistant freshman coach Jim Walden will assume head coaching duties from Jim Ross who sustained knee and leg injuries early in last Friday's 54-15 victory over Iowa State at Memorial Stadium.

"We'll do the same things we've been practicing on," Walden says, "We'll do the same things if Jim was coaching."

Injuries, however, may necessitate some changes. Tom Coccia, from Hillside, N.J., will replace Matt Peterson from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, at split end and Marv Beck, a 6-1 200-pounder from Litchfield, may spell Dave Iverson, who has a leg injury, at a linebacker post.

Although Nebraska is seeking for its second straight undefeated frosh campaign and tenth consecutive victory dating back to the 1969 season, Walden realizes the young Wildcats are in a growling mood.

"It'll be a tough game — we're going to have to play equally as well as we did last week (against Iowa State) if we expect to win," he adds.

The young Huskers are undefeated after three starts (Missouri, Wichita State and Iowa State) while coach R. C. Slocum's crew boasts a 7-6 victory over Kansas and a 27-10 triumph over Wichita State and fell 49-32 to Missouri.

Slocum, in analyzing the season's finale for both squads which begins at 1:30 p.m. at KSU Stadium, hopes his team can recover from the physical effects of the loss to Missouri.

"We have a lot of players bruised and battered who just haven't been able to work much since the Missouri game," he said. "We know it's going to be tough against Nebraska but if we can get an offense going, play some defense and not get any thinner with injuries we have a chance."

Both squads boast runners with impressive credentials. KSU's Regan Steiner has gained 210 yards for a 6.0 average and Cal Leonard has earned 161 yards for a 4.0 average.

Fullback Tom Ruud, a 212-pounder from Bloomington, Minn., leads NU in scoring with 24 points. He can tie the Husker record of six touchdowns held jointly by Jeff Kinney (in 1968), Johnny Rodgers (in 1969) and Don Westbrook (in 1970) with two scores.

Ruud also has a crack at Kinney's scoring mark of 39 points set in 1968.

NU team records in jeopardy, already tied or broken:

—Current team has lost 10 fumbles. Record is 11 in 1966.

—team needs 384 rushing yards to break record of 1,093 set in 1965.

—team has thrown one interception which ties record set in 1966.

—defense has allowed 309 passing yards. Record is 453 in 1966.

—defense has permitted 816 total yards. Record is 878 in 1966.

—opponents have lost 11 fumbles. Previous record was eight in 1969.

Sooners Apply Finishing Touches

Norman, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma Sooners put the finishing touches on their game plan for the Kansas Jayhawks Thursday.

The second-ranked Sooners will host Kansas this week in the regionally televised game.

"Our squad has a good knowledge of what we hope to do against Kansas," said Fairbanks.

Fairbanks feels the Sooners are not taking their opponent too lightly. "I think that this game means so much to our squad that they are not looking beyond it. If we don't play our best, Kansas is a good enough football team to beat us."

He said the team was in its best physical condition in several weeks.

. . . NUMBERED ACCOUNT, RIVA RIDGE AT GARDEN STATE

Roger, 36, trains Numbered Account, already assured of being 2-year-old filly of 1971. Lucien, 59, conditions Riva Ridge, a shoo-in as 2-year-old colt of the year.

The father and son, filly and colt, meet Saturday at Garden State Park in the 1 1-16-mile Garden State Stakes for 2-year-olds. The winner could become Horse of the Year. Of course, there are six other colts entered, but the overwhelming consensus of experts is that one of the Laurins will take top money in the $125,000-added race.

Lucien was asked if parental pride was strong enough to make him secretly root for his son.

"No," he snapped with a tone of finality. "You can bet your sweet life I hope he comes in second-to-me."

The first pill Lucien grabbed was for Numbered Account. She drew post No. 4. Later he pulled No. 5 for Riva Ridge. The father-son, filly-colt rivalry will break from the gate side-by-side. The trainers expressed little concern about the post positions, saying they weren't significant in a small field.

Gibson Honored To Play No. 1 Football Team

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State had a 60-minute workout Thursday, its last practice session before the football game with Nebraska here Saturday.

Coach Vince Gibson said, "We're in good spirit. We think it is a great honor to play Nebraska. When you play the No. 1 team in the nation in front of a sellout crowd there is something wrong with you if you don't get enthused."

"If we expect to beat Nebraska, we have to stop Johnny Rodgers and Jerry Tagge without making any mistakes," Gibson added.

Knights Visit Blues Friday

Omaha — The Omaha Knights meet Kansas City at the Missouri site Friday night and then return to Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum for a Central Hockey League tilt at 8 p.m. Saturday against the Blues.

Left wing Norm Gratton leads Omaha in scoring with eight goals and three assists for 11 points while goalie Wayne Wood sports a 2.41 goals-against-average.

Houston (AP) — Muhammad Ali and Buster Mathis, preparing for their scheduled 12-round Astrodome fight Nov. 17, were pronounced in good physical condition Thursday.

At a pre-fight medical examination described as "Buster's last stand" by Ali, Mathis weighed 264 and Ali 229½.

Dr. Jacob Whitehurst, appointed by the Texas State Boxing Commission, said both fighters were in "fine physical condition."

"I found no problems although Mathis' pulse was a little high," Whitehurst said.

Mathis' pulse was 88, Ali's 64.

Later Ali told newsmen he was "always calm at these things. I was the same way before the Joe Frazier fight."

Both men were pleased with their weight. Mathis said he expected to be down to about 255 by fight time and Ali said he should weigh 225 Wednesday night.

Ali, wouldn't predict a round but he told newsmen how the fight was going to end.

"Who knows, it might end in one or it might go 11," he said. "It depends how long he can linger. Two right hands are going to get him. One to set him up and the other to put him out."

NWU Football Record Book Undergoes Major Changes

. . . McLAUGHLIN ADDS TO PASS RECEIVING RECORDS

This was only the sixth team in the school's history to win seven games. The 189 points scored ranks ninth on the all-time list. An identical 7-2 club in 1919 leads that department with 241 points.

John McLaughlin owned every pass receiving record in the book even before this year started. So in that department the marks just needs to be increased.

His 41 receptions for 520 yards and eight touchdowns this year replaces his marks of 38-406-4 of 1969. That sophomore year he also got 10 grabs in one game. The new career marks for the potential all-American read 97 receptions for 1252 yards and 14 touchdowns.

McLaughlin's 84 points rank him fifth on the all-time scorers list. "Big Mac" leads the NIAC league in receptions and points scored despite being shut out in the TD department since NWU's fifth game.

Junior quarterback Dave McGrane was well on the way to some records of his own until he underwent surgery for a shoulder injury and missed the last three contests.

Not a single Wesleyan rusher was healthy the entire season. Leaders Darrell Wubbels and Lonnie Tapp actually recorded less than half of the team's playing time during the season.

Sanger Shares Scoring Lead With Big 8 Kickers

. . . HUSKER KICKER SCORES 55 POINTS

Kansas City, Mo. — Nebraska sophomore Rich Sanger's three field goals and four extra points in the Huskers' 37-0 win over Iowa State vaulted him into a share of tht kick-scoring lead in the Big Eight Conference.

Sanger's record of 43 for 47 on conversions and four of seven field goal attempts gives him 55 points, the same as Oklahoma kicker John Carroll, who has booted 34 of 42 extra points and is seven-for-nine on field goal attempts.

While Sanger was moving into a share of the kick-scoring lead, NU quarterback Jerry Tagge was losing his league lead in both passing and total offense.

Dennis Morrison of Kansas State, who must face the Husker Black Shirts Saturday, grabbed the passing lead from Tagge, averaging 163.3 yards per game to 157.9 for Tagge.

Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers continues to lead the Big Eight in pass receiving with 35 catches for 634 yards, punt returning with a 17.2 average per return and kickoff returns with a per-return average of 32.6 yards.

He also is only six points back of Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and Kansas State's Bill Butler in the scoring race with 78 points.

—FIGHTS TO DRAW—

Shibata Retains Featherweight Title

Matsuyama, Japan (AP) — Kuniaki Shibata, of Japan, World Boxing Council featherweight champion, bleeding badly from a facial cut, fought back gamely and battled Panamanian challenger Ernesto Marcel to a controversial 15-round draw Thursday to retain his title.

A crowd of 8,000 saw Marcel outbox and punish the champion in the eighth and 12th rounds.

After the final bell ending one of the most exciting world title fights ever held in Japan, South Korean Referee Chung Yong-Su approched Marcel and raised his arm. This caused the misunderstanding that the Panamanian challenger had won the fight.

The television announcer, broadcasting the battle live on a nationwide hookup then announced Marcel as the winner.

After moments of confusion, the Japan Boxing Commission announced the fighters fought to a draw, enabling Shibata to retain the title he earned by defeating Mexico's Vicente Saldivar in December 1970.

There were no knockdowns.

Referee Chung warned the Panamanian about low blows in the third and then ordered one point deducted from Marcel's scorecard for butting in the sixth.

It was Shibata's first draw in 37 professional fights, which also includes 34 victories and two losses. It was the third draw for Marcel, who has had 37 fights, winning 31-19 by knockouts—and losing three.

Shibata weighed 125¼ pounds and Marcel 125¾.

Stewart Sees Safety As Increasing Force

Glasgow, Scotland (AP) — Jackie Stewart, world champion racing driver, predicted Thursday that several scheduled Grand Prix events would not take place next year for safety reasons.

"We are losing far too many top drivers," he said.

Racing drivers' protests over safety standards at circuits were mounting, he added.

"Although there are 15 or 16 world championship events listed for next year, I cannot see them all taking place," said the two-time Scottish world champion.

"Some race tracks will have to put themselves in order or temporarily bow out," said Stewart.

"If this is the case, it will be my loss and everybody else's loss but motor sport will benefit," he declared.

Stewart, vice-president of the Grand Prix drivers association, said that if safety precautions were not taken, drivers and spectators could be involved in serious accidents.

He did not name which circuits were affected by drivers' protests.

Three top line Grand Prix drivers have been killed on the track this year. The most recent was the Swiss ace Jo Siffert, who died in the flaming wreck of his BRM racer at the British Brands Hatch circuit on Oct. 24.

Rumors Circulate About Cubs

. . . DUROCHER TO CONTINUE AS CHICAGO MANAGER?

Chicago (AP) — If doughty Leo Durocher is not retained as Chicago Cub manager for 1972, his successor may be one of Leo's old New York Giant stars, Whitey Lockman.

Owner Phil Wrigley, who eliminated veteran Cub star Ernie Banks Wednesday as a possible Durocher successor, has summoned Durocher "for a talk" when the Cub field boss of six seasons returns shortly from an Arizona visit.

1. Lockman, supervisor of Cub player development, could replace Durocher if Wrigley—who still thinks Durocher has done a good job despite mounting media criticism—fails to retain Leo.

2. Banks, 40, will leave the active roster and become fulltime coach at first base where he played spasmedically on ailing legs the past two seasons.

3. John Holland, Cub vice president who actually is general manager, has taken full charge of all off-the-field operations, including hiring of coaches and trades.

Holland hired Larry Jansen as pitching coach Wednesday. Jansen was an 11-season member of the San Francisco Giant staff and one-time pitching star for the New York Giants under Durocher.

It is reported Jansen is the first of an all-new 1972 Cub coaching staff with the only two remaining incumbents, Al Spangler and Peanuts Lowrey, expected to be dropped. Coach Joey Amalfitano, a Durocher favorite, resigned Tuesday to join the Giants.

Lockman, who apparently recommended Jansen, his old New York Giants teammate for the Cub coaching job, said at the Cubs' Arizona winter league base Wednesday he was in the dark on Durochers status.

"In all my talks with Mr. Holland, he has given no hint that Leo is out as manager," said Lockman. "I'm sorry right now that Joey Amalfitano quit to join the Giants. He was a valuable man."

Also contacted in Scottsdale, Ariz., Banks explained he went to Arizona on his own to spend some time helping the young Cub prospects.

Asked his views on becoming a regular coach, Banks said: "I'd like to play, but I wouldn't mind at all being a full-time first base coach."

In dismissing Banks as a Cub manager which would make him the first black pilot in the big leagues, Wrigley commented: "Ernie is just too valuable in our organization to waste him by making him a manager.

"He can have a job with the Cub organization as long as he lives, but I'd still tell him his greatest value is working with young players and in public relations."

Catholic, Protestant Paired In World Cup Championship

Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. (AP) — Christy O'Connor is a crusty Catholic Irishman from Dublin and Hugh Jackson is a Protestant from Ulster. One would think when they get within 10 yards of each other they'd draw guns and start firing.

Nothing could be farther from the case.

They are playing partners, representing Ireland, in 19th World Cup Golf Championships, which opened Thursday at the PGA National Club here.

"We never discuss politics or religion — we talk about hooks and missed putts," said the graying, fortyish O'Connor, playing in this globe-girdling tournament for the 12th time.

"There is no place for bitterness and feuding in golf or any other sport," said Jackson, 31, a Northern Irelander playing in the event for the second time.

The tense situation in Northern Ireland, where patrolling British soldiers are fair game of Irish revolutionary army snipers, where nuns have been slain in cold blood and the residents live in constant fear, is shrugged off by the two Irish competitors.

"Religion has nothing to do with it," said O'Connor, referring to the Irish tensions. "There is a log history of bitterness. But in golf we play under one association."

These two Irishmen from warring factions are representative of the international goodwill, the absence of national jealousies and hostilities, found in this 19-year-old event involving two-man teams from 46 countries.

Gary Player from apartheid South Africa chats on the putting green with Patrick Okpomu from darkest Africa. The Nationalist Chinese, just booted out of the UN to make room for Red China, swap tips and share comraderie with representatives of Communist Czechoslovakia and Romania.

The Nigerians play on sandgreens because they don't have grass and chase away snakes before making their putts at home. The Czechs are listed as amateurs. Communists don't recognize professionals — everybody works for the state.

District Meet Begins Friday For Gymnasts

A district gymnastics meet, to qualify performers for the state meet to be held a week later, will be contested at Lincoln East Friday night, starting at 7 p.m.

The Knights recently captured the Trans-Nebraska Conference championship, while Northeast, Lincoln High and East finished 4-5-6 in that order.

The state meet, a two-day affair slated for Nov. 19-20, will feature a team title this fall. The two top teams in each district will qualify for that competition.

The first eight finishers in each individual event and the top three all-around performers at the Lincoln district meet will also advance to the state meet to vie for an individual crown.

One defending state champion, Northeast tumbler Duane West, returns. Scott Bloom of Southeast, who was third at state last year in the still rings and second on the horizontal bar, is expected to lead the Knights repeat attempt.

One other returning Lincoln gymnast, Steve Dickey of Northeast, was among the top three in an event at state last fall, when he was third in the side horse.

Hunting Conditions Favorable

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Off-the-cuff predictions for Nebraska's rifle deer season indicate that hunters will probably have a little better luck this year than they have in the past.

The season, which opens Saturday and runs through Nov. 21, has indications of becoming one of Nebraska's best, according to game department officials, because the weather hasn't forced the deer on the move.

The more productive areas will probably be in the western panhandle around the Crawford and Fort Robinson area in the Pine Ridge section, but with in good weather experienced in several parts of the state, other sections could also develop "hot-spots."

Hunters in the Wahoo and Blue regions in the southeastern part of the state will probably have their best luck around the drainage areas and creek beds while in the southwestern part of the state where some crops are still standing, the edge of woods bordering on fields may also prove productive.

Deer are most active in the early morning and late evenings, but will lie up during the day. Though most deer will make use of what farm crops there are, several will be found among thick vegetation around natural browse. Alfalfa fields in the evening are often found to draw deer.

Since the continuous hunting season was first inaugurated in 1949, Nebraska hasn't had a fatality among deer hunters through careless shooting. But now isn't the time to let up, commission officials note.

"Other states draw more hunters, but that isn't any reason for carelessness in the woods in Nebraska. Hunters should be especially safety conscious this year," a spokesman for the game department said. "The good weather will undoubtedly draw more hunters to the field on opening day."

Land Paving Co. Recycling Slag From OPPD Plant

Omaha (UPI) — The Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) said an Omaha paving firm is providing the area with an environmental bonus by recycling thousands of tons of slag, cinders and fly ash from OPPD's North Omaha Power Station.

The contract with the Land Paving Co. calls for it to pay OPPD $1,000 a year plus 10 cents per ton for hauling the matter from the 646,000-kilowatt power station.

Thus far the company has hauled away about 14,000 tons of slag.

Cool Export

Godhaab, Greenland — Would you like to cool your drinks with ice thousands of years old, from the Greenland ice cap? You can. The steel-hard ice has pearly bubbles that burst with a click when the ice melts.

The Royal Greenland Trade Department is marketing "Ice Cap Rocks" and exporting them to Europe and the United States.

Service To End

London (AP) — Canadian Pacific announced it is withdrawing its 25,800-ton passenger liner Empress of Canada from transatlantic and cruise service on Nov. 23, ending some 70 years of passenger service.

Stock Prices Take Another Tailspin

Analysts attributed the market's sharp decline for the second day in a row primarily to continued investor concern about the economy and the stock market itself.

John J. Smith, analyst for Fahnestock & Co., said the chief concern at present was that labor would get wage increases and that business would not be able to raise prices to offset the wage hikes, resulting in a profit squeeze.

He noted that the AFL-CIO would be meeting next week and would take up details of Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic program.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 11.24 points to 814.91, a decline of 1.36% and nearly 10 points below the previous 1971 low close of 825.86 Nov. 1.

On April 28 this year the Dow had recorded a 23-month high close at 950.82.

Declines outnumbered advances 1,083 to 287 among the 1,665 issues traded on the Big Board Thursday. Losers led gainers 682 to 160 among the 1,150 issues traded on the American Stock Exchange.

The New York Stock Exchange index of more than 1,300 common stocks closed down .71 at 50.87, while the Amex price-change index dropped .19 to 24.12. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was off 1.29 at 92.12.

The Associated Press 60-stock average finished the day down 3.2 at 302.0. Industrials were off 5.4, rails were down 2.1, and utilities were off .5.

Big Board volume of 13.31 million shares, compared with 13.42 million shares Wednesday, and Amex volume of 3.11 million shares was up from Wednesday's turnover of 2.67 million shares.

United Aircraft was the most actively traded big Board issue, closing down 1/8 at 25¾ on 231,500 shares — chiefly a block of 199,000 shares at 24¾.

Ninety blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded on the big board Thursday, compared with a revised total of 120 such blocks Wednesday. The United Aircraft parcel was the largest block trade of the day.

Corporate bonds were slightly higher. U.S. governments were mixed.

Swarms Roused

3 Truck Tractors And Two Trucks Destroyed In Fire

South Sioux City (AP) —Three truck tractors and two trucks were destroyed Thursday when flames swept the building housing Nebraska Trailer Sales and H & I Leasing on U.S. 20.

South Sioux City Fire Chief Gerald Stolze said two unidentified employes were injured in the blaze but did not require hospitalization.

There also was considerable damage in the building's shop, and to tires and supplies.

Stolze estimated the loss to be about $200,000. The fire broke out when a tank of diesel fuel on a truck exploded after the flame from a cutting torch came in contact with the tank.

Firemen were at the scene for about two hours. The firm is owned by Harold Gangestad of South Sioux City.

Omahan's Death Traffic Fatality

Omaha (AP) — Deputy Douglas County Attorney Jerry Merwald, the acting coroner, said Thursday night the death of David L. Arthur, 41, of Omaha will be counted as a traffic fatality.

Arthur died at a hospital Sunday of injuries suffered in an accident Sept. 30, in West Omaha. Police said Arthur's car apparently went out of control, jumped a curb and struck a tree.

He is survived by his widow and three children.

EARL BUTZ REPLACING HARDIN

COLOR Price Hikes Limited To Average Of 2½%

Washington (AP) — The Price Commission adopted complex guidelines Thursday requiring post-freeze price increases to be justified by legitimate business costs and aimed at holding the national inflation rate to 2.5% a year.

The new guidelines will be effective for the Phase 2 economic period that begins at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, but an immediate upsurge of retail prices next week may be effectively blocked by a commission rule requiring posted price lists.

"This means that some prices will go down," said Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson. "Some will not increase at all. Some will go up more than 2.5%."

The commission shied away from adopting a general price standard applying to the nation's businesses, but instead laid down general rules covering prices by manufacturers, retailers, wholesalers, service industries and professionals.

Basic Guideline

The basic guideline is this: Only price increases that can be justified on the basis of cost increases, minus any amount of worker productivity gains, will be allowed. If the price is over 2.5% and can be justified by this formula, it will be allowed by the commission.

But the price boost may not be so great as to cause an increase in a company's pre-tax profit rates, measured as a percentage of sales. In other words, profits can increase only through a rise in sales volume if a price increase is involved.

The commission's guidelines, announced at a news conference after days of late-evening work sessions by the seven-member panel, raised many questions that will be answered only when final regulations are published, maybe by the end of the week.

But Grayson conceded that consumers may have a difficult time knowing when a price has been boosted legally in line with the commission's guidelines.

Companies will be encouraged, but not required, to show customers cost information that would justify price increases in their stores, he said.

Stores Must Post Lists

But the commission threw in a provision that may prevent a quick upswing in retail prices immediately after the freeze ends. All retail prices will remain frozen until stores prominently post lists of prices that were in effect during the freeze.

The price list must be posted for all food items. For other retail stores, a list of selected items — such as a product that does a high volume of business — must be posted.

The price guidelines cover only the period that begins Sunday, Nov. 14. Prices may be increased to recover only those increased costs incurred after 12:01 a.m. Sunday. Firms will not be allowed to increase prices to get relief, retroactively, for costs that might have gone up during or before the freeze.

Some prices could go up immediately Sunday, Grayson said, because a business could claim that it began incurring new costs on that date.

3-Tier System

The price guidelines will be policed under a complicated three-tier economic system announced Wednesday.

Price boosts that may be announced by the nation's largest companies will be frozen for at least another month.

It is these companies — those with annual sales of more than $100 million — that must notify the government of all planned price increases in advance.

The commission's guidelines say the large companies will be able to put price increases into effect if the commission has not ruled to the contrary within 30 days. About 45% of all sales will be in this category, the government says.

Another 5% of sales will be a second group, companies which can put price increases into effect after merely reporting to the government. These com-

Preliminary Plan OKd For Wilderness Area

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Parks and Recreation Board Thursday unanimously approved preliminary plans for development of the 1,400-acre Wilderness Park which runs parallel along Salt Creek south of Pioneers Blvd.

The preliminary plans presented by Lincoln architect L. A. Enersen call for a wilderness area, a nature center, programmed auto trails, foot trails, bridle trails, a bird sanctuary and an arboretum.

Enersen told the board that he would recommend that the wilderness area be left as it is and pretty much "to its own devices" to preserve the wilderness atmosphere.

However, he said dead timber would have to be removed periodically to avoid its falling on someone.

Plans for the area include foot trails and a nature center with auditorium facilities for instructional purposes and a library, Enersen said.

When asked if the plans for the nature center at Wilderness Park might overlap the services available at the Ager Nature Center at Pioneer's Park, Enersen indicated that they would be serving differtnt functions.

He said that the center proposed for Wilderness would be the main nature study center with an auditorium to accommodate about 100 persons with scheduled talks and library services.

Pioneer's "serves a different function," Enersen said, noting that it basically provides two to three-hour trips for school groups on weekday afternoons.

In order to serve people who would not be able or care to walk in the wilderness area but would enjoy the nature study of the park, Enersen suggested that there be programmed auto trails in a portion of the park where tapes would be available to hook up in cars for information about the less wooded areas of the park along the auto trails.

Mrs. Helen Boosalis inquired about the number of auto trails in the plans since originally no cars were to be allowed in the Wilderness Park.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said that this is something that the board would have to work out in going over the plans.

Enersen said the car trails were included in order to reach more people and increase the educational benefits of the area to more people.

Enersen said that certain recreational activities were included in the design of various portions of the park including bridle trails, and trails for hiking and bicycling and also suggested that stables might be included and leased.

He said that the area is large enough to lend itself to varying lengths of rides on the trails.

He also outlined plans for an arboretum for educational purposes to include plantings native to Nebraska as well as other areas.

Reorganization Plan Dropped

. . . AT AGRICULTURE DEPT.

Washington (AP) — President Nixon personally announced Thursday he is replacing his embattled secretary of agriculture and abandoning a plan to abolish the Agriculture Department that was not popular in the Farm Belt.

Nixon told newsmen that 56-year-old Clifford M. Hardin is leaving the Cabinet to take "an exceptionally attractive offer" from a private firm. Hardin is a former chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

Hardin, the fifth original member of the Nixon Cabinet to leave his post, will be succeeded — if the Senate agrees — by Earl L. Butz, 62, who was an assistant secretary of agriculture in the Eisenhower administration.

Hardin will become vice chairman of the board of the Ralston Purina Co. of St. Louis, a new post at the firm, said R Hal Dean, Purina's board chairman and chief executive officer. Dean said Hardin would be in charge of corporate research and development and have broad responsibility in strategic planning. Butz also lists himself as a director of the firm, a leader in human and animal food that operates worldwide.

The White House said Hardin's resignation will be effective Monday and Agriculture Undersecretary J. Phil Campbell will serve as acting secretary until the Senate confirms Butz for the post.

Under Farmers' Fire

Hardin had come under fire from farmers, principally because corn prices are low at a time when crops are heavy.

Nixon said he told Hardin before nominating him for the job that "nobody could be a popular secretary of agriculture."

Butz, speaking briefly to reporters as Nixon stood by, turned to Hardin and remarked: "The price of corn, Mr. Secretary, is too low for comfort."

With a presidential election less than a year away, the administration obviously is concerned about its standing in agricultural circles.

Another cause of Farm Belt concern has been a Nixon plan to abolish the Agriculture Department and consolidate its activities in other Cabinet agencies, notably a proposed new Department of Economic Development.

'A New One'

Nixon said he is dropping this proposal, which had gotten nowhere in Congress, and now envisions an Agriculture Department that will be "an entirely new one" concerned only with serving farmers.

Among comments on the new appointments, William Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said he is pleased.

Tony Dechant, president of the National Farmers Union, said he wishes Butz well but added that the problems the farmer faces today "requires digging deeper than the top man in the Department of Agriculture."

No Link, Ziegler Says

In response to a question, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Hardin's resignation was totally unrelated to the problems of surplus corn and depressed farm prices.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said the nomination of Butz means Nixon is bringing back "the discredited agricultural policies" of Ezra Taft Benson, President Eisenhower's secretary of agriculture.

"Earl Butz was one of the chief architects of the Benson policies during the 1950s that forced hundreds of thousands of farmers off the land," O'Brien said.

Chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., of the House Agriculture Committee, said he has known Butz for many years.

Westview Residents Moved Without Approval Of Officials

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Although 35 Westview residents were moved back Monday to the facility which was evacuated Sept. 24 because of fire, the situation appeared uncertain Thursday when it was learned they were moved without consent of the State Department of Agriculture.

According to State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher, no prior contact was made with his office concerning the move, but Commissioner William Grossman asked Wednesday that the state office send inspectors out to the facility.

Grossman, who indicated Tuesday that he had no knowledge of the Monday move until after it occurred, said he was under the impression Tuesday that everything had been worked out with the state on the 35 persons moved back there.

He said until he talked with Kreuscher, he had no knowledge that everything was not in order for approval of a board and room license from the State Department of Agriculture.

Kreuscher told The Star that the inspection of the facility Wednesday revealed that many items which had to be completed before the facility could be licensed as a board and room home were not finished and that the people there would have to be excluded from requiring care in order to be placed in the board and room facility.

Kreuscher said the only way that he would issue a board and room license for the facility would be if the people out there don't need care.

He said he would require that Dr. George Underwood, Lincoln-Lancaster County health director, verify in writing "which has been notarized" that the people residing at Westview "require absolutely no care."

Kreuscher said that according to the law, a board and room facility is just what it says and means that persons availing themselves of those services are able to care for themselves and come and go at will.

Grossman said Thursday that he thought the county should definitely comply with state regulations and if Dr. Underwood can't verify that each of these individuals need no care, then they should be placed in another facility.

Commissioner Robert Colin said Tuesday that he was out at Lancaster Manor when the bus arrived to pick up the Westview people to return them to the county home and "I never saw such a happy group of people."

He said he and Commissioner Kenneth Bourne were both at the meeting last week when the residents were re-evaluated by Dr. Underwood and the decision was made to return them to Westview.

Bourne acknowledged that he was at the meeting but said he was not aware that they were to be moved Monday.

'Ox-Bow Incident' Author Clark Dies

Reno, Nev. (AP) — Walter Van Tilburg Clark, author of the "Ox-Bow Incident" and "Track of the Cat," two brooding novels about the Old West, is dead at 62.

Clark's novels were known from their Old West realism. "The Ox-Bow Incident" described a lynch mob and "Track of the Cat" told of a loner who became lost and died in a snowstorm while tracking an animal.

Curtis And Hruska Hail Hardin's Work

By The Associated Press

Clifford Hardin's decision to step down as secretary of agriculture and take a post with the Ralston-Purina Co. in St. Louis was followed by accolades for the job he has done in the Cabinet and regrets over his decision.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., expressing regret for Hardin's decision, termed him "an able and dedicated public official . . . genuinely interested in agriculture and rural America."

Curtis said that despite "almost insurmountable odds" Hardin "because of his tact and diplomacy and respect which he commanded was able to do a creditable job."

Curtis said Hardin "was always ready and willing to speak up for the American farmer" and said, "I want to extend to him my very best wishes in the new work that he has chosen ot follow."

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., from whose office came the first word that the resignation had actually been tendered, said that "in nearly three years in the position, he has demonstrated his deep dedication to America's agricultural community."

Hruska said the "stewardship of this important program has many high marks to commend it."

He said that "exports of agricultural products have grown to an all time high. Domestic markets have greatly expanded. Federal emphasis on and participation in rural development programs has increased sharply" under Hardin's administration.

The passage of time," Hruska said, "continues to prove his unusual foresight in many of his decisions. I am sure the agricultural community will in the coming years realize many long range benefits from those actions."

COLOR Alternative N-Power Plant Cooling Devices Available

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of four articles by Outstate Nebraska Bureau Reporter Sam Thorson on the tomic power plants and their effect of the Missouri River.)

By SAM THORSON
Star Staff Writer

Ft. Calhoun — What happens if the ecological study of the Missouri River now being conducted by 12 co-operating agencies demonstrates that thermal emissions from the two nuclear power plants under construction on the Nebraska side of the river are harmful to aquatic life?

Preliminary sampling of river life, coordinated by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, is scheduled for completion late this month, with the final phase of sampling to begin soon after the plants begin production in early 1973, and run through the summer of '74. Under scrutiny are the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) Ft. Calhoun Nuclear Station near here and the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville.

The testing may give the utilities a clean bill of health, or it may demonstrate that heated-water discharges from the plants' cooling systems (which will use river water as a coolant to re-convert atomically-heated steam to water) are ecologically destructive.

In either case, the expensive plants will not have to abandon power production. Alternatives involving pre-cooling of the heated river water before it is [illegible] now available, including several varieties of cooling towers; cooling lakes; and a combination of aeration and cooling ponds.

All available methods would involve considerable initial expense and require continuous operation, undercutting the per-unit cost advantage enjoyed by nuclear production compared to fossil-fuel production.

And although OPPD and NPPD decline to speculate at this point about the extra cost of pre-cooling or its effect on power rates, the increased costs would have to be passed on to the power consumer. According to a projection done several years ago by the Federal Water Quality Administration (now part of the Environmental Protection Agency), pre-cooling would result in a 1% increase in rates paid by the consumer. Other estimates are higher.

So, if the river study condemns the thermal emissions as ecologically harmful, power planners in government and the power industry could be confronted with what is becoming a classic environmental hangup: should costly pollution-abatement devices be installed, requiring the consumer to foot the bill, or should practices be allowed to continue which may necessitate

New York Times News Summary

Chinese Praises 'Great People' Of America

(c) New York Times News Service

United Nations, N.Y. — Forty-six Chinese officials — Peking's delegation to the United Nations — arrived Thursday on two French airliners and were taken to the Roosevelt Hotel after Chiao Kuan-hua, the chief delegate, made a statement praising the "great people" of the United States and greeting New Yorkers "of all walks of life." (More on Page 2.) In Washington, the Nixon administration announced that the Chinese delegates would have the same travel restrictions in this country that Soviet diplomats have, even though Washington and Peking have no formal relations. The decision to give the Chinese travel restrictions considerably less severe than those on three other Communist nations was described as a major policy move.

Hikes Must Be Justified

Washington — Only those price increases justified by higher costs will be allowed during Phase Two of the President's economic controls, the Price Commission said. (More on Page 1.)

Senate OKs Military Aid

Washington — After voting 46 to 42 to restore $318 million that had been cut in committee, the Senate approved a bill providing for $1.5 billion in military aid to foreign nations in the current fiscal year. (More on Page 2.)

Cable TV Compromise Reached

Washington — A compromise plan that would allow cable television companes to enter the nation's smaller cities — but not the 50 largest markets — and require the cable operators to pay copyright fees for films they show was reached by the broadcasting and cable industries and endorsed by the big film companies. The White House, the Federal Communications Commission and Congress were expected to accept the compromise.

Stock Market Sags

New York — In the first major display of disapproval by business since the announcement of the 90-day wage-price freeze last August, the stock market dropped to a new low for the year. (More on Page 24.)

Japanese Writes To Peking

Tokyo — Shigeru Hori, secretary general of Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party, disclosed that he had sent a letter to Premier Chou En-lai in Peking suggesting a visit to Peking to open government-to-government communications. It was Japan's first official overture to mainland China designed to lead to diplomatic relations.

Butz To Replace Hardin

China Delegates Arrive, Smiling

New York (UPI) — Dapper as corporation directors at meeting time and smiling infectiously, the Communist Chinese delegation arrived Thursday to take over the China seat in the United Nations and served immediate notice of its intent to champion the world's underdeveloped nations.

Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, the delegation leader, said in an arrival statement that his government "has all along supported the oppressed peoples and nations in their just struggles to win freedom and liberation, oppose foreign interference, and become masters of their own destiny."

After 22 years of frustrated attempts for U.N. membership — and inveighing against the capitalistic West — the first members of the delegation landed Thursday afternoon on American soil after a flight from Paris.

They were taken by limousine motorcade to the Roosevelt Hotel, a longtime bastion of conservative Republicans, where they will rent the complete 72-room 14th floor — eight stories above the former New York City headquarters of the late Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

The Chinese Communist flag — five gold stars on a field of red — was hoisted in front of the hotel. It flew, at the request of the delegation, at one side of the entrance marquee with the American flag on the other.

The hotel, five blocks west of the United Nations, was named for Teddy Roosevelt and has a "Rough Rider" bar.

The delegates started their journey in Peking and stayed over a night in Paris before transferring to the Air France jetliners. Chiao, a tall, bespectacled, commanding figure, came on the first flight to arrive with Huang Hua, who will be the permanent Chinese U.N. delegate.

Directly across the aisle from them on the plane was Wang Hai-yung, who is reported to be a niece of Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Another woman delegate, who speaks a clipped English, acted as interpreter for Chiao when he spoke to about 150 newsmen from a podium near the plane at Kennedy Airport.

Friendly Chilean Crowds Mob Fidel

Santiago, Chile (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro, jostled by friendly crowds, began a state visit to Chile Thursday with a call on President Salvador Allende.

The bearded Cuban leader, making his first trip outside Cuba in seven years, wheeled up to the presidential palace accompanied by a security entourage in shiny blue sedans.

More than a score of Cuban security guards, kept watch over him.

Troubled by a cold, Castro nevertheless appeared fresh and rested after an eight-hour direct flight Wednesday from Havana. He stepped over two Russian-made submachine guns in the back seat of his bulletproof car and strode into the palace wearing olive-drab fatigues, an army cap and combat boots.

Castro spoke with his Allende for 90 minutes in the first of two conversations Thursday, then appeared on the balcony of Allende's second-floor office to wave to the crowd.

Allende beamed and Castro clapped heartily when the spectators shouted the Chilean president's name.

Several in the crowd shouted for a speech by Castro. But he just laughed and shrugged. Then with the shorter Allende hurrying to keep up, he [illegible] and came out to meet the crowd personally.

Despite a cordon of Chilean guards and Castro's own security agents, hundreds of photographers and newsmen waiting outside mobbed both of them. The crush was so great that Castro and Allende were forced to retreat to the palace.

Increases Must Be Justified

panies have sales between $50 million and $100 million annually.

Spot Checks Locally

Other prices, those of a corner grocery store or a local drugstore, will be subject merely to spot checks by the Internal Revenue Service to determine if there are violations.

Spotting a price violation may be difficult for the average consumer, however, since the price guidelines are complex.

Grayson said consumers can complain to their local Internal Revenue Service offices if they feel a violation has occurred.

The Cost of Living Council has already exempted nearly one-fifth of the goods and services that make up the average American's cost of living, including prices of used cars, homes, custom-made goods, raw agricultural products, dues, taxes and interest rates.

Here are other highlights of the guidelines:

—Rents will remain frozen until the Price Commission hammers out final guidelines. The government, however, has exempted commercial, industrial and farm rents from controls, as well as rents on new homes or apartments.

—The guidelines apply generally to prices charged for services, including such things as doctors' and dentists' fees. The commission said, however, that because of the widely varying types of costs and market conditions in service industries, separate regulations may be required.

—Rate increases by the nation's largest utilities must be submitted to the commission for approval, and all rate boosts by utilities will be subject to the price controls.

Up, With Review

"Some regulated firms' proposed rate increases have been approved by regulatory authorities, but were not allowed to become effective because of the freeze," the commission said. "Such increases may go into effect; however, the appropriate regulatory authority shall review such increases for consistency with the goals of the economic stabilization program."

World News

In other economic developments Thursday, the House Banking Committee killed any chance that President Nixon's Phase 2 economic legislation will be enacted until at least next month.

The committee recessed until Nov. 30, with work still incomplete on the bill, which would extend Nixon's economic control powers from April 1972 to April 1973. This means the House will not vote on the bill before the week of Dec. 6 at the earliest.

In New York, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told members of the New York Stock Exchange that because of Nixon's economic moves, "there are many reasons for being optimistic about the future."

Burns predicted a moderation in the rate of inflation. He said the Federal Reserve system "intends to see that adequate bank reserves are provided to finance a vigorous, but sustainable, expansion."

Senate Votes For More For Military Aid Than Economic

Washington (AP) — The Senate completed its two-step revival of the foreign aid program Thursday by passing a $1.5 billion military aid measure.

Before voting 65 to 24 to approve the bill the Senate restored $318 million to it in response to a warning that reductions might jeopardize U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

Together with the $1.1 billion economic aid bill passed Wednesday night, the military bill provides a $2.6 billion package in place of the $2.9 billion measure rejected just 13 days ago.

Bill Goes To House

The bill now goes to the House which earlier this year voted $3.4 billion for the aid program, just $100 million below the Nixon administration's request.

The administration won a major victory when the Senate voted 46 to 42 for an amendment by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, to restore $318 million cut by the Foreign Relations Committee.

It rejected 46 to 43 a move to lower the bill's $341 million spending ceiling on U.S. operations in Cambodia.

But the bill, as passed, contains Democratic leader Mike Mansfield's amendment calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina within six months as well as a series of restrictions on the aid program opposed by the administration.

Military Emphasis

Mansfield charged that, by approving $400 million more for arms aid than economic assistance the Senate had put the emphasis on the aid program on "the weapons of destruction, on military might."

Appealing for the bill, Republican leader Hugh Scott said "I urge all senators to give the benefit of the doubt to this program. If the Senate doesn't act now, it will have to consider a third time and come back in December."

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Foreign Relations Committee, who failed in a move to cut the arms aid program earlier Thursday, said, "I had hoped we would take a different approach and give emphasis to another place."

A telephone call from Secretary of State William P. Rogers to Scott, promising that the administration would promptly spend $85 million in supporting assistance for Israel, appeared to have helped carry the Stennis amendment.

Curtis, Hruska Vote For Arms Assistance

Washington (UPI) — Nebraska's two Republican senators — Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska — voted for the $1.5 billion military aid bill. The measure passed 65-24.

Vote On 2 Nominees Thursday

(C) Washington Star

Washington — The Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday put off for one week any vote on President Nixon's two Supreme Court nominations.

The postponement will bring a vote next Thursday unless committee members opposed to one of the nominees prevent action by lengthy discussion.

Only one of the nominees, Assistant Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist, has any opposition in the committee.

Leaders Confer

London (UPI) — British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Australian Prime Minister William McMahon conferred for 2½ hours on a number of world problems including Southeast Asia, East West relations and the British decision to join the Common Market.

Peters Claims Republicans May Force Income Tax Up

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters predicted Monday that the state's income tax rate may hit 15% or 16% instead of the 13% proposed by Gov. J. James Exon, if "the obvious desires" of the Republicans on the State Board of Equalization are followed.

Peters' remarks were the latest in the continuing partisan war of words which will climax next Monday when the board has its last chance to set the rates.

The Republicans' veto of two previous motions to set the rates, Peters said could result in a time squeeze and "a possible overtaxation to insure sufficient funds."

The three Republican board members (Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann, Treasurer Wayne Swanson and Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson) balked at Exon's two previous attempts because of the possible impact of a federal income tax cut on state revenue.

Nebraska's income tax is based on a percentage of the federal income tax paid. Any decrease in federal income tax paid by Nebraska wage earners would result in a corresponding decrease in revenue produced by the state income tax. To offset this, the board must adjust the state's rate to produce the same amount of revenue.

The Republican trio favors waiting until the statutory deadline (Nov. 15) before setting the rates. Their hope is that by that time enough information will be known about the effects of the proposed federal cut that Nebraska's rates can be accurately set.

The Democrats led by Exon claim as accurate view of the cut's impact will not be known by that date. They favor setting the rates now and when the effect is finally known, the board could reconvene to adjust the rates.

Peters said, "Failure to use as much time as possible before setting final rates will not permit the Board to use well refined figures in setting 1972 rates.

"We should be using the flexibility of the statute provided by the Legislature, namely 30 days following final federal action to study the impact of the changes. First, we should be making estimates using a reasonable time frame. Second, we should be using the flexibility to see what the results of the President's Phase I are and to gain some idea of the magnitude of Phase II.

"Were it not for the stubborn efforts of the three Republican members tying the hands of the board, the board could have already insured the flexibility provided by law thus receiving detailed estimates and being able to make necessary adjustments after, and only after, changes are necessitated by federal action."

The consumer-taxpayer, it has been argued, will ultimately shoulder much of the burden of protecting the environment in either case—but, whether reflected in immediate consumer costs or the deferred social costs of a degraded habitat, environmental protection has its price.

To this point, OPPD and NPPD are publicly holding the line against pre-cooling, deeming heated-water emissions innocent until proven guilty.

"We have a strong case that there would be no need for further refinement" of cooling processes, says Chuck Sayre, public relations director for NPPD. "We feel the system we have is adequate for the Missouri, which is a warm-water river, unlike rivers in New England where the thermal effects are quite dramatic."

Dan Kelly, assistant general manager of OPPD for public relations, also argues that the special nature of the Missouri makes it less susceptible to thermal effects than other rivers. "The Missouri is a great, big, manly river with a lot of water in it and a strong, regulated flow," Kelly said. "It's a darn good river for an electric generating plant. It's a big, flat cooling tower and it works very well for us."

Kelly pointed to a private study of heated-water discharges from OPPD's North Omaha plant and their effect on river temperatures. The Missouri is swift and turbid enough, the study showed, that heated-water emissions from the fossil-fuel peaking plant (gauged temporarily to simulate future discharges from the Ft. Calhoun nuclear plant) dissipated from 9-12 degrees F. above ambient (natural) temperature at the point of emission, to less than two degrees two miles downstream, to "no detectable increase" 10 miles downstream.

Kelly compared those figures with the natural warming effect of sunlight, which raises the river's temperature "five to six degrees" during the course of a sunny day.

Moreover, Kelly said, pre-cooling alternatives are costly and all entail new problems: cooling towers, for example, create vapor which has been known to condense and freeze on highways, he said.

"As a result," he concluded, "we feel no elaborate mechanical pre-cooling steps are necessary for the river. It can handle anything now envisioned for several generations. If you've got a plant every few miles all the way to New Orleans you're in a different ball game."

"I can only speak for our plant," Sayre of NPPD said, "but I would think that Ft. Calhoun and Brownville are far enough apart that they wouldn't have an adverse effect on the Missouri River."

Next: Power districts confident plants won't be harmful.

Corporation Spokesmen Say Current State Tax Ratio Fair

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Corporation spokesmen Thursday told the legislative tax study committee that the current ratio between personal and corporate income tax rates in Nebraska is fair and should not be altered.

But State Tax Commissioner William Peters reiterated the Exon administration' belief that the corporate income taxpayer is "not carrying as large a share of the income tax burden as he perhaps should."

Peters said the administration will probably present the 1972 Legislature with specific recommendations for increasing the tax on corporations.

Plans Legislation

State Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, chairman of the legislative study committee, said it too expects to sponsor corporate tax legislation in the session convening next January.

Burbach's committee completed a statewide series of public hearings on tax matters Thursday.

The committee will probably sponsor bills proposing personal property tax exemptions and rewriting the tax structure for mobile homes, Burbach said.

Recommendations on property tax equalization and the aviation fuel tax structure may be delayed pending further study, he told newsmen.

Proposed Changes

The committee's final hearing centered on proposed changes in the corporate income tax. A bill which would have increased corporation taxes was killed by the 1971 Legislature.

The corporation income tax rate is now automatically established at 20% of the personal income tax rate. Current rates are 10% personal income, 2% corporate.

But Keith Knudsen of Lincoln, speaking for the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry, told the committee that the "effective" rates are about the same since the corporation tax base is roughly five times greater than the personal income tax base.

Difference

The personal rate is applied against federal income tax liability while the corporate rate is applied against federal taxable income.

A comparison of the tax bases, he said, shows individuals paying an effective rate of about 1.89% compared to the 2% corporation rate.

When senators consider the possibility of increasing corporation taxes, Knudsen suggested, they should remember that the rate of the corporate tax will increase by at least 30% in the coming calendar year — as it will for individuals.

May Up Share

And, he said, it may well be that congressional tax legislation now in the works may increase the corporation share of Nebraska's income tax load as a result of proposed reductions in the personal income tax liability of farmers and small businessmen.

Supporting NACI's position were spokesmen for Northwestern Bell Telephone Company and the Nebraska Railroads Association.

Peters said the share of the income tax burden carried by Nebraska corporations may not be equitable when compared either to Nebraska personal income taxpayers or other states' corporations.

Link Questioned

"There is a question whether the corporate rate should be tied to the individual rate," he said.

Wally Richardson of Lincoln, speaking for the railroads, urged the committee to support legislation which would authorize the State Board of Equalization to reduce the assessed value of railroad property in counties which fail to assess other property at the 35% statutory rate.

Railroad property, assessed at 35% by the state board itself, is taxed inequitably in those counties where the assessor fails to assess other property at 35%, Richardson said.

Conference Cancelled

The industrial development and tourism conference, scheduled in Lincoln Nov. 17 and 18, has been cancelled because of slow pre-registration, according to Stan Matzke, director of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

Primary Vote Law Challenge Planned

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway Thursday said he is planning court action to challenge Nebraska's law prohibiting registered independents from voting in either party's primary elections.

An attorney, Waldron said the lawsuit would be based on the constitutional rights of equal protection of the law.

"Citizens who choose to register as independents are now eliminated from the most important voting process, that is, participating in political party primary elections," he said.

Particularly Crucial

And the issue is particularly crucial now that so many newly enfranchised young voters are choosing to register as independents rather than identifying with either the Republican or Democratic Party, he said.

Whether the court test is successful or not, Waldron said, he will sponsor legislation in the 1972 Unicameral to "allow voters to cross-ballot in primaries."

Although details of the proposal have not yet been finalized, Waldron said, he thinks the best way to open up full participation in the primaries would be to produce one federal and state office ballot for all primary voters.

Each voter could then mark his ballot for one candidate — either Republican or Democrat —for each partisan office, he said.

Leaders Meet

This system, Waldron noted, would allow each voter to vote in whichever primary contest he wishes for each federal or state office.

That would allow the voter even more choice than the right to participate in either party's primary elections, he said.

"Independents now have no part in deciding the party nominees, and sometimes everything is determined in the primary election rather than the general election," Waldron said.

Citizens should have "the right to register as an independent if they feel they can't declare either as Democrats or Republicans," he said.

"Now their only choice is to form their own party if they wish to fully participate in the primaries."

Young voters, as well as many others, are less tied to parties and "more concerned with voting for the man they feel is the best," Waldron said.

"This large independent vote should have a place to vote in the primaries."

Federal Welfare Only Way—Simpson

State Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said Thursday that a federally-administered public assistance program for needy families is the only way out of this nation's welfare dilemma.

Citing inequities between welfare programs of the various states, the legislator said this causes an undesireable migration from states with low benefits to those with a more favorable program.

"Only a federally-administered and federally-fund program that assures equal treatment of the needy in all states will halt the migration problem and solve other abuses and inequities inherent in state-administered prorams," he said.

Nebraska 'Average'

Simpson characterized Nebraska's welfare payments to families with dependent children (ADC) as "average" among the 50 states but suggested the state is "doing too little."

Noting that only the ADC program has been "rateably reduced" among Nebraska's various assistance categories, the senator said that "children are being made the fall guy" in the welfare dollar cutback.

"Children can't vote," he said, "and poor families are in the minority at the polls."

State and national legislators, he suggested, won't become concerned with solving the welfare problem until the splinter groups concerned with the poor and needy unite with a single voice under leadership outside of welfare recipients.

Welfare Bill Outlined

In other discussion, Carole Siegman of Lincoln, the League's state human resources chairman, outlined a federal welfare bill being proposed by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.) as compared with the earlier welfare reform bill (HR 1) backed by the Nixon Administration.

The Ribicoff bill would fully federalize the welfare program by 1976, providing a sliding scale of state contributions during the interim, as compared with HR 1 under which the state costs would be frozen to the calendar year 1971 and future excess costs borne by the federal government.

It was also pointed out the Ribicoff measure proposed $1.5 million for child day care services for working mothers, double the amount proposed by HR 1, and would tighten the procedural process, eliminate state residency requirements and provide a minimum income by 1976 to all families below the annually-adjusted poverty level.

Natural Water Resource Districts Formation Is Set

By United Press International

The executive secretary of the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission said Thursday the purpose of a series of meetings beginning next week is to initiate the formation of natural resource districts

"There are many things that have to be done prior to July 1, 1972 to get these districts operational," Dayle Williamson said

Earlier the commission ordered the series be held at the rate of one in each of the state's 24 natural resource districts

The morning session of each was to be devoted solely to matters related to the formation of the districts. The afternoon was set aside for a public discussion of the state water plan.

Two teams have been formed to visit the districts, Williamson said They will be meeting with the boards of directors for the special purpose districts ultimately to be merged into the single resource districts

Williamson also said that for most of the districts, it will be the first they have met as a single unit

Information to be covered during the conference, the executive secretary said, would include the geographical size of each district, the kinds and numbers of special purpose districts to be merged: a summary of existing programs; and future conservation needs in that area.

Williamson said once the initial meetings have been held, it is hoped each would appoint an interim chairman to work with the commission in setting up the mechanics for district formation.

Some four or five persons on the commission staff have been assigned to the task of working with the districts in the formation process, he sadi.

The locations and dates of the meeting include Nov 16, Chadron and Bridgeport, Nov. 17, Valentine and Sidney, Nov 18 Mullen and North Platte, Nov 19 Ord and Grand Island Nov 22, Omaha and York, Nov 23, Walthill and Beatrice, Nov 24, Lincoln and Hebron, Nov 29 Schuyler, Nov 30, O'Neil and Holdrege, Dec 1, Butte and Imperial, Dec 2, Hartington and McCook, Dec 3, Norfolk and Franklin, Dec 6, Auburn

Saunas Liked

Bonn — Sauna baths are becoming increasingly popular in West Germany, with more than a million people regularly taking one. There are 2,500 public and 18,000 home saunas in the country, and the latter number is rising by 3,000 to 4,000 a year.

STUDENTS OUT AT WINNEBAGO

Winnebago (AP) — More than half of the Winnebago public school student body went on strike Thursday listing at least three grievances against the school administration.

Louis La Rose, chairman of the Winnebago Tribal Council, said he was informed that some 50 students had prepared the grievance list. The school has an enrollment of about 100.

Grievances listed by the students:

—Not enough time between classes; students claimed they were given only three minutes, according to La Rose.

—Not enough time in which to eat lunch; students claimed they were given only 15 minutes.

—They were docked for being tardy at school and told to remain a half hour after school hours.

Frontier Cutback Claimed Legal

Kearney (AP) — Frontier airlines is completely within its legal rights in dropping one daily round trip, John Harris of McCook, chairman of the Nebraska Aeronautics Commission, said Thursday.

The flight involves the communities of Hastings, Kearney and McCook, and Harris said he had confirmed the legality of the move with a Civil Aeronautics Board representative in Washington.

Harris and members Chet Fliensback, Scottsbluff; Ed Weaver, Lincoln; and William Fraser of Omaha were in Kearney to confer with representatives of the Kearney area Chamber of Commerce, the Kearney City Council, Trans-Nebraska Airlines and Frintier Airlines.

Frontier is seeking a $16 million subsidy from the federal government, which would permit reinstatement of all flight service suspended for economic reasons

Not Only State

Ken Smith of Frontier, said Nebraska is not the only state to lose service. He said if Frontier receives only part of the requested subsidy the carrier has asked the CAB to decide which communities would have service restored. He said dropping the eastbound and westbound flight in Nebraska was an economic move since 44 of Frontier's 88 subsidized stops are not considered moneymakers.

He also discussed the possibility of Frontier using smaller aircraft, thus making reinstatement more economically feasible.

Smith said, his firm "is experimenting with two different types of small aircraft and we hope to reach some sort of decision by Jan. 1 as to the economic feasibility of such a plan."

Commissioner Weaver called on each community to support the airlines which serve them.

"Play fair with both Frontier and Trans-Nebraska and do so as vigorously as possible," he urged.

Don Brown of Trans-Nebraska, said on his southern route which includes Kearney, Hastings and McCook, planes are flying one passenger short per day per stop, while the northern Nebraska route traffic is above the minimum.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Lancaster County nursing home problems continue to occupy the attention of public officials. This past week, 35 elderly people were moved back into the Westview Nursing Home from Lancaster Manor, where they had been housed following a fire at Westview.

There appears to be some confusion as to who authorized and knew about the return of residents to Westview. But this much is clear — Westview has no license for anything, which means that some authorities are assuming a serious and dangerous responsibility.

Reportedly, Dr. George Underwood of the City-County Health Department has classified the 35 people as not needing care. Thus, they are literally room-and-board residents and can be housed in a boarding home.

But boarding homes are licensed by the State Department of Agriculture and this department has issued no such license. Furthermore, it intends to issue no such license unless it has notorized confirmation by Dr. Underwood that the residents of Westview require no nursing home attention.

Quite frankly, we do not see how Dr. Underwood could give this notarization in view of the general understanding of the physical condition of the residents under consideration. But that is the professional responsibility he has and it is up to him to call the shots in the matter.

At the same time, county board members will want to assure themselves that they are not endangering the life of anyone by using Westview for something for which it is not intended to be used.

The situation at Westview is directly related to Lancaster Manor, the former St. Elizabeth Hospital secured by the county and being converted into a nursing home. The manor has come in for its share of controversy, much of it related, we feel, to earlier sentiment against the county's getting into that operation.

The manor operation has not always gone smoothly, but despite criticisms leveled at it, there has yet to be subtantiated evidence of anything seriously wrong there. Currently, financial aspects of the operation are under attack but the weight of evidence to date indicates the finances are in order.

In an effort to clear up the manor issue once and for all, the county board has asked the Lincoln League of Women Voters to conduct a study of the manor operation. While the league is experienced in analysis of governmental operations. it lacks the expertise to provide an informed view of the manor.

It would seem appropriate for the league to secure the services of others in this job, possibly the assistance of the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council and its professional staff. The council is already seriously overburdened but it is heavily supported by the county and faces a priority item in Lancaster Manor.

What Lancaster Manor needs is a meticulously objective look, without any of the political overtones that have emerged so prominently in its past.

What it needs is an analysis that seeks to look at what is good about the manor as well as what might be improved. It needs a look that provides constructive criticism, not a study that seeks to indict the original decision to buy the institution and operate it as a county nursing home.

It is well past time to stop debating that decision and trying to prove it right or wrong. We have now an established fact of operation and the important thing is to make the best of this.

Also a part of the situation is the ultimate completion of the manor program. Only a part of the eventual capacity of this home has been realized and there needs to be a firm understanding of when and how the full potential of the operation will be reached.

In our opinion, Lancaster Manor is a definite asset to the community in terms of the service it provides and the savings it realizes for taxpayers. It will be enhanced by an impartial study that sets the record straight and ends the current dispute.

'It Just Needs A Few Extra Ingredients'

Bid Dispute Resolved

A giant step toward better bus service in Lincoln was taken Wednesday when the city announced it must accept the bid of The Flxible Co. to provide a new fleet of coaches. In a sense, the city lost a battle but won the war.

From the time the bids were opened, Lincoln insisted that General Motors Corp. should be awarded the contract on 36 new buses because a higher grade tire had been figured in its bid. Flxible had bid a low-mileage, cheaper tire. The Department of Transportation, which is paying at least 50% of the cost of the new buses, stood firmly behind the Flxible bid and after final talks in Washington Tuesday, DOT told Mayor Schwartzkopf that Lincoln must accept it and further, that the city could not readvertise for bids.

Mayor Schwartzkopf immediately gained assurances from Flxible, however, that it would provide the high-mileage tires at no additional cost to the city and that it would deliver the buses no later than April 28, some 60 to 90 days earlier than the company originally had said it could deliver and about the same time General Motors had specified in its revised delivery estimate.

So the city got what it went after — higher grade tires and a reasonable delivery time. With the contract dispute out of the way, the city can now begin in earnest to breathe life into what should be a quality public transportation system.

Also on the city side of the news, we take note of the Pershing Municipal Auditorium Advisory Board's decision, on a 4-3 vote, to accept a booking of the rock musical "Hair" should the show be offered to Lincoln.

The board has either put off a decision on the issue or taken a thumbs-down straw vote against allowing "Hair" at the auditorium several times this past year — probably enough vacillation to have discouraged a request for a booking in the near future. That is Lincoln's loss.

The advisory board majority is to be commended, however, for finally stating as policy that the board does not intend to assume the role of censor.

Harris Pulls Out

One of the rules of the game is that it takes a rich man or a man with rich friends to be president. Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma used that rule as a reason this week to drop out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, claiming that he has run out of money and is $40,000 in debt.

Realistically speaking, a candidate as far back in the pack as Sen. Harris was will draw more flies than money and Harris did the honorable thing in pulling out now, before he committed his organization to political and financial burdens from which it could not be expected to recover. Somewhat as Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa did before him, Harris went probing for support and finding little or none, quit before he was counted out. Another year, perhaps, but not 1972.

Harris found himself boxed in by the field of candidates or would-be candidates on the Democratic left, all sounding a familiar theme. But the Oklahoman added a few new twists. In seeking to forge a "new populist" coalition of the poor and the disaffected across the economic and racial spectrums, Harris talked about breaking up the giant corporations and redistributing the wealth. It apparently made little impact.

The public opinion polls did not respond to Harris' mini-campaign, nor did he pick up any big-name endorsements.

With his presidential campaign folded and in political hot water in his home state, the aspirations of the former Democratic national chairman and rising star in the Senate appear stagnated. He can take comfort, however, from the example provided by another national political figure, the current occupant of the White House, who, after 1962, had everybody fooled but himself.

MILAN WALL

'Superstar' As Superstar

One of the most striking aspects of the worldwide attention being showered on "Jesus Christ Superstar" is that the musical work itself has been rocketed into superstar-like fame.

While the story portrays Christ in a superstar image as seen largely through the eyes of Judas, the musical itself has acrrued the vestiges of the superstardom which rarely accompanies "things."

And its producers are headed toward a profit far in excess of the 30 pieces of silver pocketed by Judas, even accounting for 2,000 years of inflation.

Three concert versions, such as the one seen in Lincoln this week, are being presented in oratorio-like fashion on stages throughout the country, a stage version is reported to have one of the largest advance sales in Broadway history and the long-playing two-record album set has sold 2.5 million copies in the U.S. alone.

The advance sales on Broadway were reported to have hit more than $1 million a few days after the opening, the record set has been selling for $7 to $15, and the concert versions are drawing huge crowds around the country.

The Lincoln version, for example, played to nearly 7,200 at a total tune of $41,000. Nearly 10,000 saw it in Omaha.

A recent issue of "Saturday Review" reported that the first two concert versions were grossing a half million dollars a week. Its producers figure it will be the biggest concert grosser of all time.

Thus, the so-called "rock opera" appears already to be at the level of monetary superstardom, barely a year after the record set was released in the U.S.

But that's not all of the superstar comparisons, either.

The Broadway version has been staged with the glittering gold superstar image that has surrounded the superstars of the screen in years past

And stage, concert and record versions have attracted the kind of press that has accompanied the phenomenal rise of superstars.

At the same time, it's attraction hasn't been limited to any particular age group.

The Lincoln concert audience included people of all ages, as have audiences elsewhere. Many that I talked to had never heard the record, so the Lincoln production must have been a first-time experience for many.

But the audience must also have included many others who had listened to the record before at home or perhaps during one of the many church-study sessions of the album that have occurred during the past few months.

Many who appeared to see and hear the concert here must have expected something of lesser quality than they had heard on the record. But it's fair to say that was not the case . . . it was a first-class production.

I don't want to suggest that people aren't getting what they are paying for. A sustained, standing ovation attested to that the other night. And although Lincoln crowds have a habit of handing out ovations, this one seemed to go far beyond many others I have observed.

Reasons for the phenomenal popularity of "Jesus Christ Superstar" are undoubtedly complex.

For some, the appeal may lie in the Jesus revolution mentality. But the wide array of the people attracted to it means there are far more attractions involved.

I would suspect that many people merely like the music. (I was attracted to "Hair," for example, not because of any particular urge to participate in a counter-cultural experience, but because I like the music. After I bought the album, however, I discovered I like some of the ideas, too.)

I'd also guess that some are curious about it — so they are buying the album or they went to the concert.

It's also fair to say that there is a certain religious appeal. One album study group in which I was involved found it a handy vehicle for a review of the last week of Christ's life and for a discussion of Jesus as a man.

A friend of mine who went to the concert, and who is not particularly religious, said afterwards he found the music enjoyable and the experience a religious one.

The conclusion from all this seems to be that "Superstar" means many things to many people — and the result has been a superstar-like attention to the work itself. It's not been the usual attraction won by creative works in our society, to be sure.

Lest anyone conclude that "Superstar" was the only creative work attracting attention in a midestern "cultural wasteland" during the past few days, however, I would also like to point out what else is happening in the world of the creative arts in the Lincoln Area.

A partial list of what was or is happening in Lincoln during a two-week period ending early next week would include: two rock concerts, two symphony orchestra concerts, two chamber music concerts, two college faculty recitals, an organ concert, a children's opera, a university play, four high school plays, a foreign film showing, the showing of two highly touted American films (along with a batch of others that weren't touted at all), plus gospel music concerts, art exhibitions and an appearance by humorist Bob Hope.

A number of plays and musicals were also staged at high schools and colleges in the surrounding area.

Army Turning Out Pollution-Free Car

WASHINGTON — The Army has touched off a round of teeth-gnashing in the boardrooms of the Big Four auto-makers by producing a virtually pollution-free automobile.

The motor is almost certain to meet the tough federal standards for low-emission cars by 1976 even though the Big Four car-makers have whined that such a motor cannot be mass-produced by the deadline.

The radical, four-cylinder, 72-horsepower Army engine shows every sign of bearing up through the 50,000 miles of tests required by the federal standards.

It has already breezed through 7,000 miles of tests, emitting only harmless exhaust.

The Army Tank Automotive Command near Detroit is moving ahead with plans to put the engine in jeeps and some other military vehicles by the 1976 cut-off.

Ironically, the clean engine was developed by one of motordom's Big Four, Ford, under Army supervision. The enthusiastic Ford scientists, who swear by the engine, have been dismayed by the Ford high command, which has dismissed the engine as merely "experimental."

One reason the auto executives are cold on the hot engine is that they are still trying to make their current engines pollution-free with Rube Goldberg "add-on" contraptions. One Detroit gimmick melts the asphalt beneath the motor and sets the grass afire. Another requires costly asbestos sheathing. But the economic advantages of such makeshift devices to the automakers far outweigh melted asphalt.

For one thing, the "add-ons" will cost car-owners $100 to $300 anually after the first year in adjustments and in new parts. The new parts mean higher profits for the auto-makers who will have a monopoly on parts manufacture.

For another, the "add-ons" can be gimcracked onto current engines without the full-scale retooling necessary to produce the Army engine. By clinging to the same old basic engine, Detroit can avoid taking the chance of making mistakes and losing money.

In Europe, meanwhile, several car manufacturers have already said they can meet the U.S. exhaust standards by 1976.

Footnote: Even before the 7,000 mile tests were completed, President Nixon had hinted to top auto executives that he felt the Army engine might be a pollution solution. Now, a Texaco research team is on the verge of producing a similar motor for the Army. Although it is about a month behind schedule, delivery is expected by early January.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., has discovered that the wages of truth are TV blackouts. McGovern was negotiating with TV chat-man Dick Cavett to appear on his popular show just like other presidential hopefuls, including Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me., and New York Mayor John Lindsay.

But after several weeks, Cavett's producer, John Gilroy, informed McGovern aide Frank Mankiewicz that McGovern would not be welcome on the show. The problem is that McGovern has honestly declared he's a candidate, while Muskie and Lindsay are still playing coy.

Foreign Aid Program In Danger

WASHINGTON — The test just ahead on foreign aid is hardly less a test of whether the system of divided powers works or not. To chop down the whole foreign aid program is a disaster. This is far more than scoring political points, since so much turns on the continuity of many of the programs.

The growing imbalance between military and economic aid was the root cause of the Senate defeat of the administration's foreign aid bill. A little known factor was a secret study by the staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee showing that of the total to be dispensed over the next five years $27 billion would go for military aid and $24 billion for economic assistance.

WILBUR MILLS

In the measure voted down, a total of $1.723 billion went for all military purposes against less than half that for various forms of economic help. The result was to unite conservatives, who have long felt foreign aid spending was excessive, with opponents of the administration military policy such as Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who calls it "American imperialism."

Now a compromise has been put together with military assistance in one package and economic aid in another. This will presumably wind up with the support of active opponents such as Fulbright, Sens. Mike Mansfield. Frank Church and other Democrats, together with skeptical Republican moderates such as Sens. George Aiken and Clifford Case. In short, it would be a coalition insuring passage of those parts of the package essential for the continuity of aid programs in developing countries even though there have been radical cuts.

Soundings by this observer indicate that the compromise is the only chance for survival of foreign aid in the Senate. Will the White House go along? If the decision is to accept it, then passage can be fairly swift, although inevitably when the separate military phase comes up the debate will be prolonged. To fight the compromise, using all the pressure tactics in the White House arsenal, will mean no foreign aid for an indefinite time as the Senate wrangles over the dry bones of past errors and present hostilities.

The administration has a lot on its side in the current dispute. As originally sent to Congress in April, the whole aid structure was to be reorganized, with the military separated from the economic. Outright military grants, the funding of military sales and support assistance for maintaining large military establishments would go into one package labeled "security assistance."

This was an overhaul long overdue. But the House Foreign Relations Committee fell back on the format of the Foreign Aid Act of 1961. Two years, the committee reported, would be required to study reorganization of the system. Therefore, more of the same would be in order for the two-year interval.

Obviously, that was not good enough so when the tired, old bundle reached the Senate the result could have been predicted. Fifteen Republicans, including Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, chairman of the Republican National Committee, joined 26 Democrats to make the score, 41 to 27.

Foreign aid has no constituency. That has been increasingly clear as the military share increases year by year It has less popular support today than ever before as the scramble to cut back hits one program after another.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, the grand panjandrum of the House Ways and Means Committee, is saying privately that the deficit this fiscal year will be not $30 billion, as has been widely reported, but $35 billion. For a Republican administration bringing out of the past an inherent faith in budget balancing, that is a staggering figure. This may jazz up the economy as President Nixon, a very recent convert to Keynesianism and the spur of a deficit, apparently believes it will.

But the claims of developing peoples, already suffering from the Nixon New Economics with the commodity prices falling, rate low as against the claims of the powerful constituencies pressing for housing, school lunches, improved medical care. For the United States, the richest nation, to be a dropout on foreign aid is intolerable.

Lindsay, At 50, Now Facing Difficult Choice; To Stay As Mayor Or Go For The Presidency

NEW YORK — Hizzoner, Mayor John Lindsay of New York, will be 50 on the 24th day of this month, and as all old geezers know, this is a dicey and even dangerous age. It's not quite sensible, but at 50 you begin to feel you either have to get going or get out, and Lindsay is now somewhere in between. He is thinking about running for president of the United States, but is not yet running, and he is sending out his deputy mayor, Richard Aurelio, to look for groundswells.

This is one of the troubles with being 50— you still think other people may solve your problems. You are still young enough to be cautious and not yet old enough to be bold. At 60 Lindsay would really know it was the last call for the dining car. He would know Aurelio wouldn't bring back the answer, and he would say exactly what he thinks about Mr. Nixon and take on the whole Democratic party, and go home happily to his Mary if he lost. But 50 is a compromising age. It is the middle, the place where men are caught between their ambitions and their convictions, between their parents and their children, and in Lindsay's special case, between sticking on the job as mayor or going for the presidency, which alone has the power to deal with the developing tragedy of the American cities.

Of course, almost everybody here is against his going for the presidency except his adoring staff. The taxi drivers are roaring their contempt. The New York "establishment" of business, journalism, education, and especially the ordinary people who have to put up with the savage turmoil of this violent and distracted city think a Lindsay campaign is presumptious and slightly mad, and they may very well be right. Lindsay himself is inclined to agree with them.

And yet, something tugs him into the national struggle. He has tried to walk the streets of New York with the poor. He has tried to bring the new intelligent technicians into urban government at high salaries. He has organized the mayors of the nation, and played the young handsome Lochinvar on television, but it hasn't quite worked. And after all his struggles with Governor Rockefeller in Albany and Nixon and the Congress in Washington, it is clearly not going to work.

So he is flirting with the presidency, and while the odds are a thousand to one against him, why not? Fifteen years ago, who would have bet 1000-1 that Jack Kennedy would be president in 1960, that Lyndon Johnson would be his vice president, that Kennedy would be killed, that Johnson would win in 1964 by the greatest margin in American political history. and then retire, and that Richard Nixon would make the greatest comeback since Harry Truman in 1948?

It is said that Lindsay shouldn't run for the presidency because he would be deserting his job as mayor of New York and that New York depends on him, and this may be true. But at the same time it is said that it is all right for governors to leave their jobs to run for the presidency, and okay for Senators Muskie, Humphery, Jackson, McGovern and Kennedy to be out campaigning and neglecting their work in the Senate.

Lindsay, looking around at all these candidates, is just old enough not to be intimidated by competitors, and just young enough to think about challenging them. But he has a problem — many problems. If he goes for the presidency, as a man who knows something now about the terrible problems of the cities and fails miserably in the primaries, he feels that he will hurt his cause of helping the cities.

So he is holding back, sending Aurelio out to test the political power centers, and temporizing. He has always done this. He has always been dragged into political adventures, not by personal conviction, but by the conviction and on the urging of his friends.

At the same time, he has always climbed up the political ladder by abandoning the job he was in. He was getting nowhere as a progressive Republican congressman in Washington, so he left it to run for mayor of New York. He was abandoned by the Republicans in New York, so he ran for re-election as an independent, and squeaked through. He was getting nowhere as an independent mayor with a Republican background, so he switched to the Democrats, and now he is struggling, at 50, about whether to be a presidential candidate as a new boy, against the hostility of his old Republican friends and his new Democratic associates, who regard him as a Johnny-come-lately.

This is a hard decision at 50. For this, you have to decide what to do with your life. The kids are leoving home, you have just had notice that you are now eligible for the seniors tournament, and while you are just young enough to be a television star, you are also almost old enough to be a grandfather.

It will be interesting to watch how John Lindsay grapples with this complicated series of personal and political problems, and this is what political campaigns are all about.

These struggles are now going on in the private and public lives of Muskie, Humphrey Jackson, McGovern, and Kennedy. John Lindsay is only the last of the candidates, and his problem is particularly difficult because he is not only changing prases of his personal life, but changing parties at the same time.

Senate OKs Weapons Bill With Withdrawal Proviso

Washington (UPI) — The Senate passed and sent to President Nixon Thursday night a $21.3 billion defense procurement bill containing Congress' strongest mandate yet for withdrawal from Vietnam.

Approved 65 to 19, the measure was nearly $1 billion under the administration's request. It still provided authority for 41 new Navy F14 fighters, continued deployment of the Safeguard ABM and seed money for such futuristic weapons as the B1 bomber and the ULMS submarine.

The compromise bill contains Senate language establishing that the "policy of the United States" is to withdraw from Vietnam at the earliest possible date with only one consideration: the release of U.S prisoners of war.

No Provision

Drafted by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, the language makes no provision for a long-term residual U.S. force in Indochina, nor does it provide for continued U.S. fighting to protect the Saigon government.

But Mansfield and other antiwar senators are dissatisfied because the Senate-passed six-month deadline for total U.S. withdrawal was not in the final bill. The deadline, which the House refused to accept, was included in the foreign aid bill passed by the Senate and sent to the House Thursday.

The procurement bill covers only a fraction of the defense budget. Actual appropriations for the weapons, operating expenses, salaries and other military needs, are contained in a separate $71 billion defense appropriations bill which began moving through Congress Thursday.

The House Appropriations Committee approved the bill and the Senate Appropriations Committee scheduled a meeting on it for Friday. Final congressional action was anticipated next week.

The procurement bill included $1.1 billion for Safeguard, but limited deployment of the controversial defense system to two sites located in the Minuteman missile silo fields of North Dakota and Montana. Safeguard's mission is to protect these nuclear-tipped offensive missiles from a preemptive strike by the enemy.

Besides the Mansfield amendment, the bill also includes another restriction on the President's policy in Indochina. It sets a $350 million ceiling on military and economic assistance to Laos.

In approving the appropriation to finance the armed forces for the 12 months that began July 1, the House Appropriations Committee warned that the Soviet Union has surpassed the United States in missiles and is rapidly expanding its navy.

Although the committee trimmed $2.4 billion from the total, the bill was larger than the one approved last year despite the downturn in the Vietnam war.

In a report accompanying the bill, the committee complained that there are too many generals and colonels and said that the United States collects so much intelligence that nobody can read it all.

Landfill Ski Slope Planning OKd

Long-range plans for developing the City Sanitary Landfill in north Lincoln into a park with a possible ski slope for skiing and toboganning were given approval Thursday by the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Board.

The board's approval gave the go-ahead to work out a detailed design for the park with consultation with Public Works Director Robert Obering.

It was noted that plans for developing that area into a park have been discussed for some time but no action had been taken whereby a program could be worked out so that the landfill might be filled in at various levels in preparation for future development.

In presenting a drawing of the proposed park area, Lincoln architect L. A. Enersen told the board that it had been suggested that something be included for a ski slope since there is no place in the area for skiing and toboganning.

He said he felt that it could be worked out with Obering to pile refuse up to provide for a 140 foot slope for a ski slope.

He said the reat of the area would be largely for picnic and general park use.

Development of landfill areas into parks has been done successfully in other cities, Enersen said, adding that studies would have to be done by an ecologist in respect to plant growth under the conditions there.

In other action the board members agreed to further investigate the tennis complex including an indoor court at Woods Park urged by members of the Lincoln Tennis Association.

They referred the matter to the tennis and golf committee headed by John Lawlor and suggested that the possibility of a revenue bond issue be investigated.

Dean Rugg of the tennis group told the board members that his group was still interested in the tennis center as proposed at the last board meeting and they were also interested in an indoor facility.

He said that Lincoln is going to have an indoor facility someplace but the question is whether it would cost more or less if it were publicly financed.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said that there is a definite need for an indoor facility.

Board members indicated that tennis is increasing in popularity nationwide and that they would prefer having such a center a public operation rather than a private operation on public property as originally proposed by the tennis group.

Board Okays Concept Of Oak Lake Fountains

The concept of lighted fountains in Oak Lake near the Interstate 180 approach to Lincoln was approved by the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Board Thursday subject to final plans with staff cooperation.

George Day, in presenting the idea to the board Thursday, said that he was sure the installation and maintenance for one year could be financed by the Lincoln Foundation.

He said that after one year the City of Lincoln would assume the maintenance costs including power.

The board members concurred with Day that such an installation would enhance the beauty of the approach to the Capitol City.

Day suggested that a single jet fountain with a 60 to 70 foot jet height be placed in each of the two sections of Oak Lake — one on either side of the highway.

He said he had talked to the Lincoln Electric System about the feasibility of power and the Highway Department about use of the Interstate right-of-way.

Viewing slides of various fountains Day had witnessed on a recent trip to Europe aroused the question by board members if it might not be more effective to place both or all of the fountains on the east side of the Highway.

They noted that side was the less attractive side of the lake and that possible damage to the fountains by boats would not be a problem there since no boats are permitted in that area.

Although an estimate of annual maintenance cost for the lighted fountains was not available, Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said he would guess it would be not more than $4,000 and possibly less than $2,500 which is the annual cost per block for maintenance of the mall fountains downtown.

Day also suggested that the board consider undertaking a beautification project around Oak Lake with the planting of weeping willow and other trees along the shore line.

CAB Extends Rate Freeze On Airlines

Washington (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board said Thursday it has extended beyond Nov. 14 its moratorium on airline fare or rate increases.

The CAB said airline rates will remain frozen unless and until explicit action is taken to modify or remove President Nixon's freeze order of last August.

Family's Third Child Stricken With Leukemia

Salisbury Beach, Mass. (AP) — Leukemia has struck a third child of Mr. and Mrs. David Nugent, who lost two others to the disease 15 years ago, and seven years ago.

This time, the illness of William, 2, has been diagnosed as the fatal leukemia. The other family victims were girls, one 3 at the time of her death, the other 2.

Doctors told Mrs. Nugent of their diagnosis and said they are unable to explain how the disease happened to strike three in a family which has no other history of blood disorders.

The family has three other children, a 20-year-old daughter and two more boys, 12 and 3.

"It was bad enough once, but I accepted it," Mrs. Nugent told an interviewer. "Then it happened twice. And now this third time—it's unbearable."

Only Hard Work Can Bring PIRG To State, Says Calish

Public interest, according to Caren Calish, is concern for interests other than governmental and corporate. Research, according to dictionary definition, is investigation to discover and give correct interpretations of new facts.

A Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) is a public service group that is organized locally, cooperative nationally and originated by Ralph Nader.

Miss Calish is a PIRG organizer from Nader's office in Washington, D.C., who told approximately 120 persons at UNL's Love Library Tuesday night that only hard work and a comprehensive education program could bring PRIG to Nebraska.

Miss Calish related examples of the work accomplishments of PIRGs in Minnesota and Oregon and said similar groups are being organized in at least 15 other states, including Nebraska. She said the Washington office representatives were visiting only the states in which residents (mainly students) had indicated there was enough interest to at least imply success.

Local PIRG organizer, Deanne Canar said organizational workshops will be held at 7:30 p.m. every Thursday in the Nebraska Union. A statewide organizational meeting will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday in the Union.

Record Corn Crop Expected

. . . 465,885,000-BUSHEL HARVEST PREDICTED

By United Press International

Federal crop observers predicted Thursday Nebraska would be coming through with an all time total production corn crop record.

The U.S. Agriculture Department, in its monthly crop estimates, stayed with last month's prediction the state's corn crop would total 465,885,000 bushels.

Earlier, it was feared the crop would suffer substantially from drought conditions that covered the major portion of the state.

"It appears we did have enough subsoil moisture to carry this crop through," said Norman Beller, head of the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics here.

The new total production record would better the one set in 1969 when 429,660,000 bushels were harvested in the state.

Beller, however, noted the yield predicted for this year, based on Nov. 1 field conditions, was far below the record yield. That record was also set in 1969 at 93 bushels an acre.

The forecast for this year calls for a harvest rate of 85 bushels an acre.

The difference lies in the number of acres planted in corn, Beller said. In 1969, there were 4,620,000 acres, compared to this year's estimated 5,481,000 acres.

Another factor contributing to the crop is that about 45% of the acreage planted in corn is irrigated, Beller said, adding that dryland farmers have also been surprised at the final harvest from their lands.

Meanwhile, Nebraska's sorghum crop was estimated to be the third largest on record with 117,933,000 bushels, at a harvest rate of 57 bushels an acre.

Beller said at first it was thought wind and moisture may have severely damaged the crop. But he said farmers, using special attachments, were able to harvest the downed plants and all but nullified any losses.

Soybeans, he said, appear to be headed for the smallest production level since 1965. The latest estimate calls for 16,650,000 bushels at the rate of 25 bushels an acre.

In 1965, he said, the crop totaled 16,356,000 bushels at a yield of 23.5 bushels per acre.

Sen. Curtis And President Discuss Drop In Corn Price

Washington, D.C. — U.S. Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., was summoned to the White House Wednesday for a 30-minute conference with President Nixon on the farm situation.

Curtis said he gave the President "a grass-roots report" on low farm prices.

"We discussed the fact that last summer the price of corn in many places in Nebraska was $1.30 and $1.35 a bushel and now it is 90 or 92 cents and in some places even less than that," said the Nebraska Republican.

Nixon referred to a letter the senator sent him Oct. 15 in which Curtis urged that the loan rate on corn be hiked. Current rate is $1.08.

Also discussed was the fact that the 1970 corn production was around 4.1 billion bushels and that the 1971 production is approximately 5.5 billion bushels, Curtis said. One of the factors contributing to this huge surplus was that the blight which was predicted did not materialize to the extent feared, he explained.

"I was told that some people in government had recommended government purchase of sizeable amounts of corn to raise the prices," Curtis said.

"I advised the President that I did not care what method was followed, but that I felt that something should be done now to bolster the price of corn this fall.

"I told him that more optimistic plans for next year did not meet the immediate farm income problem. I was able to report to the President that while some corn had been sold, most of the corn is still in the hands of the individuals who produced it.

"I told him that if action could be taken soon, any raise in the price of corn would be of material help to substantially all Nebraska corn farmers."

Curtis said his discussion with President Nixon also included feed grain and that he left the conference "quite hopeful that something would be done."

CAR DEMOLISHED . . . in accident in which East High School student was killed Thursday.

East High Student Dies In Crash

An 18-year-old East High School student was killed Thursday morning in a two-car accident at 84th and A, and a student companion was critically injured

Killed was Paul Elton Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Gibson of 1635 So. 56th.

The other student, Charles S. Clough, 18, of 501 Cottonwood, was listed in critical condition at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center with multiple injuries, including fractures of the pelvis, jaw, elbow, hand and collar bone

Police said young Gibson and Clough were traveling in an automobile northbound on 84th at the time of the accident. It was not immediately determined which youth was driving, according to investigating officers.

Paul E. Gibson

Senior At East High

The car, police said, was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Helen A. Rosborough, 64, of Omaha, which was southbound on 84th and turning east on A.

Police said Mrs. Rosborough had some lacerations but refused medical attention at the scene, leaving later with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Schleiger of 8605 A

After the collision, the Rosborough vehicle came to rest against a telephone pole on the north side of A while the lighter car in which the two youths were riding overturned near the center of the street

Investigating officers said the body of young Gibson was recovered from the vehicle while Clough was thrown clear.

Police said the car in which the youths were riding was registered to Mildred A. Baete of 3701 No. 53rd, the mother of Clough's girl friend.

School authorities said Clough and Gibson had been working on the car in the school's automotive shop and were to return it to the student parking lot.

An investigating officer said the two youths apparently decided to take the vehicle for a test run. The accident occurred at 9:52 a.m.

William Blue, chief deputy Lancaster County attorney, said late Thursday that investigation into the accident was continuing and no determination had been made whether charges would be filed.

An autopsy on the body of young Gibson was ordered by the county attorney's office.

Gibson was a member of Junior Achievement Club, St. Paul United Methodist Church and the Lincoln Chapter of DeMolay.

He is survived by his parents, one brother, Edson G.; sisters, Mrs Eva M. Hartsell, Lincoln, Mrs. Elnora Dehning, Wheaton, Ill., and a grandmother, Mrs. Tedd Parrish, North Platte.

Farm Product Value Rises $831 Million

The market value of all Nebraska farm products was $2.165 billion in 1969, almost $831 million higher than in 1964, according to a report issued by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census.

The greatest gain came in livestock, poultry and their products, the value of which increased from $962 million to $1.6 billion in the five-year period. Crops, including nursery products and hay, climbed $16.5 million to a 1969 total of $536 million.

The number of Nebraska farms declined from 80,163 to 72,257 during the five years but the average size increased from 596.2 acres to 634.3 acres and the average value per acre climbed from $109.39 to $154.38.

The greatest number of the State's farms, 20,853, were of 260 to 499 acres, followed by 12,324 farms of 500 to 999 acres. There were 5,495 which had 1,000 to 1,999 acres and 3,509 had 2,00 or more acres.

Classified by sales volume, the largest group, 17,691, reported sales of $10,000 to $19,999. There were 15,902 which had sales of $20,000 to $39,999, while 10,570 had sales of $40,000 or more.

Total expense of production for 1969 was $1.76 billion for all Nebraska farms. Livestock and poultry purchases amounted to $707 million, an increase of $335 million over 1964. Feed for poultry and livestock cost $309 million, an increase of $79 million over 1964. Commercial fertilizer costs in 1969 were $75 million, compared with $46 million in 1964.

Hired farm labor costs in the state in 1969 were $51 million, an increase of more than $14 million over 1964. Contract labor, machine hire and custom work amounted to $40 million in 1964, an increase of almost $17 million for the five-year span. The estimated market value of all farm machinery in 1969 was $929 million.

Individuals or families in the state operated 54,879 farms. Partnerships operated 7,476 and 659 were operated by corporations. The average age of farm operators in 1969 was 49.3 years, approximately the same as in 1964. There were 2,143 operators under 25 years and 9,228 were 65 or older.

Work off the farm in the state was reported by 27,970 operators and 10,307 of those worked 200 or more days at off-farm jobs.

Lancaster Farm Land Value Shows Increase

The biggest change from 1964 to 1969 in the Census Bureau's farm statistics for Lancaster County was the increase in the value of farm land and buildings.

In 1969, the average value per farm was $86,328, compared to $58,558 in 1964. This figure, when broken down to per acre value, is $322 in 1969 and $222 in 1964.

The value of all farm products sold in 1969 was $26,805,400. It was $18,194,500 in 1964.

In 1969 the sales of livestock, poultry and their products totaled $14,993,887 compared to $10,884,971 in 1964. The value of all crops sold in 1969 was $11,810,266 compared to $7,306,617 in 1964.

There was a slight decrease in the number of farms in Lancaster County. In the previous census of agriculture (1964), there were 1,774 farms. That figure dropped to 1,751 in 1969.

Of the county's total farms in 1969, 1,312 reported selling $2,500 or more of agricultural products during the year, compared to $1,309 in 1964.

The average farm size was about the same in both reports, slightly more than 267 acres.

Reported for the first time in an agricultural census is information on the extent to which corporate structure is being used by farm operators. Of farms reporting sales of $2,500 and more, 17 are incorporated.

Phase 2 Problems Discussed At Omaha 'Jet-In'

Omaha (AP) — Local government officials from Nebraska and Iowa flew into a discussion of the problems of Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic program during a "jet-in" at the New Paxton Hotel in Omaha Thursday.

The regional jet-in was sponsored by the National Association of Counties.

Bernard Hillenbrand, executive director of the association, said he received word Thursday that a committee on state and local government under Phase 2 has been named.

He said they will not meet, however, until next week by which time "a lot of the decisions on Phase 2 already will have been made."

Haltigan Speaks

William Haltigan, deputy director of the Public Employment program of the U.S. Labor Department, and John E. Sprague of Omaha, assistant to the district director of the Internal Revenue Service spoke at the meeting.

Sprague said he was unable to answer some specific questions that the 100 officials in attendance may have had. "We don't even have the Phase 2 procedures ourselves yet," he said.

The IRS has been designated as the enforcement and information agency for the government under Phase 2.

A similar jet-in is planned Friday in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Sprague told the officials that, "When you get down to it, Phase 2 is a matter of voluntary compliance — otherwise it won't work."

Haltigan reported on the Emergency Employment Act signed into law last August and designed to provide some 150,000 jobs at local government levels.

He said only 40,000 jobs have been filled even though grants of $785 million to provide jobs for 120,000 have been made He said civil service or merit systems are responsible for some of the hiring delays.

Deputy Said Fired For 'Performance'

FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — Dodge County Sheriff Homer Brainard Thursday the Monday night firing of Deputy James Schiely had nothing to do with a car sold at a sheriff's sale.

In a statement issued by Fremont Attorney William Line, Brainard said, "The dismissal of Schiely is a result of his overall performance as a deputy sheriff.

"His absenteeism was the worst of any deputy. He had ordered equipment without authorization. He consistently accumulated mileage per shift in excess of 100 miles after requests to hold the mileage down unless the activity warranted it."

Brainard added, "schiely is not correct when he stated that he had mentioned anything to me about a crooked deal and Schiely's failure to advise me that he was instituting a complaint against a fellow deputy was the last straw.

"The deputies know that matters concerning them and the general management of the office should be brought to my attention."

Schiely said he was fired because Brainard told him he was stabbing Deputy James Blivens in the back concerning a 1971 Buick purchased by Bliven from Tom Potter, a Fremont police reservist.

Potter purchased teh car at a sheriff's sale on Oct. 4 for $3,100. According to records of the county treasurer's office. Bliven purchased the car from Potter for $3,100 on Oct. 6.

Schiely alleges the deal is contrary to state law and he will ask the state attorney general to invesnvtigate.

Dodge County Attorney Gordon Gobel said information obtained from a police department investigation of the incident has been submitted to Attorney General Clarence Meyer.

"The law was not violated in that the law prohibits the man who is actually conducting the sale from being the purchaser," Brainard said.

The law says that no sheriff or his deputy or his constable shall become the purchaser either directly or indirectly of any property by him exposed to sale under any process of law or equity.

Gobel said the decision whether to file charges against the sheriff's office rests with the state attorney general.

Issuance Of More Bonds For N-Plant Is Not Planned

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Public Power District expects to complete its nuclear power plant near Brownville without issuing more bonds, D. W. Hill, general manager, told a legislative study committee Thursday.

The NPPD official took the witness stand as the committee, headed by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, opened its second day of hearings on the cost of building nuclear plants.

Hill said the original estimate for the plant and fuel was $156 million. The cost now is expected to be $233 million.

Another $14 million will be needed for insurance, training of personnel and other expenses, bringing the total price tag on the plant to $247 million, he said.

Hill blamed spiraling costs on strikes and other labor difficulties, design changes required by the Atomic Energy Commission and the financial failure of one of the contractors.

The hearings will continue through Friday.

Farm Award To Orchard Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Twibell, who preside over a 1,100-acre farming and livestock operation at Orchard, have been selected as the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation's "Outstanding Young Farmer and Rancher" award couple of 1971.

The couple, each 26, will receive the award Sunday on the opening day of the NFBF's annual meeting in Lincoln.

Rapid expansion and use of modern farming, feeding and management techniques have characterized the Twibell farm operation.

The couple married in 1964 and began farming in 1965 by renting a ranch consisting of 120 acres of farm ground and 580 acres of pasture. In 1966 they moved to their present farm just southwest of Orchard, which belongs to Mrs. Twibell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lautenschlager of Orchard.

Additional land was rented and bought later.

In 1969 they started feeding cattle commercially, and now have around 1,400 head of cattle on feed, including 450 of their own. Their hog operation involves about 100 sows. Irrigation is used and the couple feed all of their crop production while buying large additional quantities of grain and supplements. A computerized record keeping system has been adopted and two hired men are employed.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Twibell are natives of the Antelope County community. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Twibell, farmed at Orchard before moving to Bethoud, Colo.

As he was bringing the plane down in the field, the landing gear snagged a power line, causing it to crash. The plane burst into flames after impact but Brown and Hunteman managed to crawl from the wreckage.

They were picked up by a passerby and taken to a Nebraska City hospital. They were released after treatment of minor injuries.

OPPD OKs Contracts; Rejects Rail Spur Bid

Omaha (AP)— The Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) Thursday approved contracts and a contract change for construction work and equipment totaling $290,530. OPPD approved an agreement with the Nebraska Public Power District and rejected bids to build a railroad spur into the North Omaha Power Station.

General Manager Lynn Monroe said the spur railroad had been under study for about a year and potential savings on the freight costs of Wyoming coal do not justify the expenditure of about $281,000 to build the spur.

Phelps Dodge Cable and Wire Co. of Yonkers, N.Y. was given a $23,660 contract for underground cable for an Offutt Air Force Base project. Industrial Contractors Corp. of Omaha won a $21,500 contract to build foundations for steel towers for relocation of OPPD lines across the Platte River north of Louisville.

Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. received a contract change order worth $60,290 for extra work and costs of modifying reactor coolant piping at the Fort Calhoun nuclear station.

Contracts totaling $184,500 were approved with Northern Natural Gas Co. and the Metropolitan Utilities District for installation of one mile of 12-inch piping and other facilities to provide natural gas to OPPD's new gas-turbine power peaking units in Sarpy County.

The directors approved an agreement with NPPD for OPPD to take power from NPPD's 161,000-volt line near Ashland.

Non-Public School Use Of Tax Funds Backed

Discussing the pro side of tax funds for non-public schools, the executive director of the Nebraska Catholic Conference said "I believe in and subscribe to the precepts of the federal and state constitutions, but it is a matter of interpretation."

Paul O'Hara was speaking at a Sertoma Club luncheon meeting Thursday at which John Lynch, executive secretary of the Nebraska State Education Association presented the opposite point of view the previous week.

O'Hara believes that the "establishment clause" of the U.S. Constitution's 1st Amendment was "not intended to be the cornerstone of the debate on state aid to parochial schools." It has rather inherited that role from Supreme Court decisions, he said.

Both Sides

Touching on both sides of the issue, O'Hara quoted from several legal cases dealing with busing of non-public school pupils, free lending of textbooks and non-interference of the state in private school matters.

He said that when the Supreme Court decided against "entanglement between government and religion" this involved only elementary and secondary education. A decision on the same day allowed for grants to parochial colleges for secular studies, O'Hara reported.

He agrees with John Lynch that Nebraska has one of the most restrictive constitutional provisions on appropriating state funds to any institution which is not directly owned or directed by the state.

O'Hara attributes the adoption of this "anti-sectarian" clause to the "know-nothing" movement which prevailed at the time the clause was written into the Nebraska Constitution. He feels this movement provided the basic "principle" behind the church-state argument.

Title I 'Debacle'

Turning to the Title I "debacle" in Nebraska, which he said has gone unsolved for six years, O'Hara hopes for an answer by the end of this year. Nebraska, Oklahoma and Arkansas are the only states in which Title I funds are not used for non-public education, he said.

As for the future of non-public education, "it is impossible to predict," said O'Hara.

He hopes creative leaders will devote their sincere interest in bringing about "cooperative provisions by the states for both public and non-public schools."

VA Hospital Patients Dip In Fiscal 1971

By The Associated Press

The three Veterans Administration hospitals in Nebraska dealt with 10,532 patients in fiscal 1971, down slightly from the previous year's 10,717, the directors of the hospitals reported Thursday in a joint announcement.

During the current fiscal year the hospitals — located in Omaha, Lincoln and Grand Island — expect to treat 11,365 persons, the announcement said.

Vietnam veterans represented only 800 of the total treated at the three Nebraska hospitals last year.

The Nebraska VA hospital directors — S. H. Birdzell of Omaha, H. M. Ruppen of Lincoln and C. W. Lyons of Grand Island — recently attended a conference in Washington with other VA officials.

On their return they said the VA is meeting the rising demand for medical care to a great extent by increasing the number of patients treated through improved health care methods. This allows the VA to treat more patients with the same number of beds.

4601 VINE STREET

Mr. Nixon's "floating dollar" sprung a leak yesterday. And when I walked over to American Express to buy pesetas, the U.S. one dollar bought only 68 point something in Spanish money. It was 70 to the U.S. $1 the day before.

Sic transit gloria (Ah, Gloria! There's a chick we'll always remember. Or was it Clementine?)

☆ ☆ ☆

The usual long line of Americans at the payoff window. (Big Mama's umbilical cord reaches across the world.)

He counted out the Spanish money for my $50 travel check. He quoted the new exchange — "minus one half per cent commission."

I said: "Commission? Man, I bought these travel checks from you people and paid one per cent for them."

But he only gave me a cold, sad look. Like a pawnbroker advising you he can only lend you $10 on your $100 watch.

☆ ☆ ☆

"The people who are getting rich today in Spain are the poor," said an American who lives here.

He said: "In Spain, it is the custom to leave the best agricultural land to the older sons. The younger sons inherit the beach land — usually they have to become fishermen to make it.

"But now, the beach lands are what foreigners want to buy. There are a hundred condominium and club developments. Beach land is gold."

They are being snapped up by Germans and Swedes. Americans and Swiss. (The British love Spain, but they don't seem to be able to get enough pounds out of England.

The American said: "Building has improved a lot. When they first built those community apartments on the Costa del Sol, most of them leaked like a sieve.

"The architects weren't paid enough and didn't know enough. The builders put them together with sand from the nearest beach. And the amount of cement he put in depended on his conscience.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Costa del Sol boom was mainly a bust. House for rent ads said: "Roof guaranteed not to leak." (Meaning most houses did.)

Still it was cheap living. And the rain in Spain doesn't fall all the time. (Sit in the house and put up an umbrella.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Development money isn't all foreign. There are tremendously rich people in Spain. The Spanish government favors their keeping their money.

The peseta had been solid at 70 to the $1 for a long time.

When it went to 68 yesterday (that is the peseta rose) it was front page headlines in every Madrid paper.

The Americans said: "Not that it means a lot. In fact, maybe it's not so good. Means American importers pay more for Spanish olives, right.

"But it's the idea of it. Spain has had a long time of feeling downgraded. The rising peseta is a shot in the arm."

☆ ☆ ☆

Didn't make much difference to the tourist. I figured coffee on the Gran Via cost me maybe a tenth of a cent more. I ordered a second cup. Easy come, easy go.

Lunch Fund Increase May Benefit Nebraska

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Although official word had not yet been received, it appeared late this week that Lincoln and other Nebraska schools may soon begin to benefit from a congressionally-ordered increase in school lunch funds.

Allen Elliott, director of the State Education Department's food services division, said Thursday he had been called to a meeting in Chicago next week with officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which administers school lunch programs.

Elliott said he assumes official regulations and explanations of the school lunch legislation will be explained at that time.

Robert Den Hartog, associate superintendent for business affairs in the Lincoln Public Schools, said earlier this week that it appeared Lincoln would be in line for increased reimbursements under the legislation.

But Den Hartog said the schools were waiting final word from the State Education Department.

The legislation, passed late last month and signed by President Nixon just last weekend, calls for an increase to an average rate of 40 cents per meal in the reimbursement rate for free lunches, plus 6 cents for all Type A meals served.

The legislation came after a confrontation between Congress and the USDA over the Agriculture Department's announced plan to cut back in school lunch aid.

Last year, federal reimbursements to the Lincoln School District ranged from 4 to 12 cents for each standard Type A meal served, and from 15 to 31 cents for each free meal.

So far this year, the district has been operating on the assumption it would receive no less than 5 cents and 30 cents.

2,000 Meals A Day

Last year, the district served slightly more than 2,000 free meals daily, while the year-to-date average in the current semester is nearly 2,500.

Nearly 15,000 Type A meals are served in Lincoln daily, about the same as last year.

For the past two years, the Lincoln school board has decided to provide a general fund "subsidy" from tax monies in case revenue from school lunch operations dropped below expenditures.

Last year the subsidy wasn't needed because of increased federal reimbursements near the end of the school term.

More Money Expected

Elliott said last month he believed as much $1 million more in lunch funds might come into the state as a result of the federal legislation.

The Lincoln district in 1970-71 received cash subsidies for free and Type A lunches totaling $210,000. The same figures were used to figure this year's budget.

Since the subsidy fluctuated so much last year, school officials believed it would be impossible to accurately estimate the new totals.

Den Hartog said Thursday it will be difficult to assess the total fiscal impact of the change until the State Education Department has the new regulations in hand.

Based on figures reported to date, it appears it could mean as much as $60,000 to $70,000 more to the Lincoln district than it would have received.

But such an estimate would depend on the assumption that the current 5-and 30-cent reimbursements would have remained static throughout the year, and that the new 6- and 40-cent reimbursements will not change.

Selection Set For Colleges' Search Panel

The search committee to find a successor to retiring Kearney State College President Milton J. Hassel should be selected by the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges' Dec. 10 meeting, according to board executive officer Dr. James Todd Thursday.

The committee will represent 15 organizations, Todd said, including faculty, undergraduate and graduate students, alumni, ex-officio members of the board of trustees and Kearney State Foundation members.

Todd said he expects the nominees the committee will select will be top quality educators.

Hassel, who has held the post at Kearney since 1961, announced his retirement Sept. 24 without saying what his future plans are.

Hassel, 55, said at the time that he has been considering retiring for the past two or three years.

STORY AT LEFT

Seven volunteer Scouters of the Cornhusker Council's two Lincoln districts were honored Thursday night for service to the community and to Boy Scouting.

In the District 4 program Silver Beaver awards went to State Sen. William F. (Bill) Swanson, City Clerk Harold Springer, and Walt Schnell.

A new award this year, the District Award of Merit, was presented to Bruce Abernethy.

In District 5, Gilbert Reinke, was presented a Silver Beaver award, and Alan Yearley, won the District Award of Merit.

Special recognition of 30 years service to Boy Scouting was given to Otto Manke.

Coliseum Supporters Plan Organization

Fact finding will be the mission of a Nov. 19 organizational meeting of the Nebraskans for the Coliseum in Lincoln.

Milt Ebers, chairman of the group and former mayor of Fremont, said since the nickel increase in the state's cigarette tax was approved by the Legislature, all action "sort of seems to be stymied."

Gov. J. J. Exon has said he opposes the earmarking of the funds created by the tax for specific purposes — the financing of a new coliseum and a state office building. He has indicated he would try again next year to get the legislature to eliminate the earmarking provision and divert the money to the general fund.

Ebers said he thinks support for his group is widespread. He said all those contacting him "were interested in getting on the team. We need it (the coliseum) badly and if it doesn't get off the stalemate, it will be several years before we have it." He said the Nebraskans for the coliseum would not concern themselves with the proposed state office building.

Egbert To Head Correctional Unit

Egbert is with the state Parole Administration.

Maurice Crowley, principal of the Geneva Training School, was named vice president and Lucille Splinter, accountant at the women's reformatory, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Footlights & Canvas

BY PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

The books are filled this week with exciting happenings on the performing arts calendar, so I will be brief.

However, before we get into the meat of the matter, the community-at-large might take note of a new enterprise at Nebraska Wesleyan University where students and faculty are making an effort to create a pool of tickets for cultural events in Lincoln. Those who are unable to make use of season tickets for a performance are asked to submit them to the pool, so that other students might use them. Not a bad idea for the general public.

Now, for your further entertainment:

A STITCHERY IN TIME . . . Three dimensional stitchery is the byline of artist Priscella Sage whose creative hangings will be on exhibit at Elder Gallery beginning Friday, Nov. 19. Using a great variety of materials, Mrs. Sage's work provides one of the most unusual displays at Elder Gallery this year. The show will run through Dec. 17.

TUNING IN . . . Channel 12, ETV, has a week planned that is chock full of fine entertainment — all to be seen and heard in your own home. Beginning Sunday, Nov. 14, Dame Edith Evans will appear in Dostoyevsky's "The Gambler" at 8 p.m. Pierre Boulez, the colorful new music director of the New York Philharmonic, is profiled at 7 o'clock on Monday evening, Nov. 15. Violinist Paul Zukofsky and pianist Gilbert Kalish combine their talents on Tuesday, Nov. 16 at 9 p.m. when they perform two Beethoven sonatas. The long awaited televising of "MacBeth" as performed by the Nebraska Repertory Theatre will be seen on Wednesday evening, Nov. 17 at 9 o'clock.

OPERA FOR CHILDREN . . . "Help, Help, the Gobolinks", an opera for children and those who like children by Gian Carlo Menotti is programmed at Kimball Recital Hall for Friday through Sunday. Children, who get so little exposure to opera, will delight in this tale of giant Globolinks who take over the earth. Showtime is 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and 3 p.m. on Sunday.

CAUGHT IN THE BREEZE . . . Sheldon Art Gallery at the University of Nebraska opens the George Rickey sculpture exhibition on Tuesday, Nov. 16, and plans to use electric fans to keep the Rickey sculpture in motion. Art enthusiasts will recognize Rickey as one of two artists who have utilized the idea of motion in their sculpture with success, the other being Alexander Calder. The show will be open through Dec. 12.

THE HOSTS WITH THE MOST . . . Next week Lincoln High School will host the Nebraska Music Educators Association Clinic on Nov. 18, 19 and 20. The last day of the meetings for 1,200 students from across the state and 500 teachers will feature a demonstration lecture by the Pro Arte String Quartet on Friday morning at 10 o'clock at Nebraska Wesleyan University O'Donnell Auditorium, which is open to the public. On Friday evening, the Quartet will perform at the NWU Auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Square Dances

Square dance enthusiasts will be out in full force this weekend as several dances are being planned by clubs affiliated with the Lincoln Round and Square Dance Council.

There will be two dances on Friday evening, Nov. 12—and two are scheduled for Saturday evening, Nov 13.

The members of the Chix and Chasers group will be swinging their partners at St Paul United Methodist Church come Friday evening. The partying is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock.

That same evening, the members of the Swing 'Em In Gingham group will do their share of do-se-doing from 8:30 o'clock until the wee hours at the Lincoln Recreation Center No. 1.

TOWN TALK

It could have been that big, bright harvest moon that inspired the Fifty Fifty Club's theme "Harvest Ball" for its dinner dance next Tuesday evening at Hotel Lincoln.

The party planners include Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Laymon, chairmen, and their co-chairmen Mr. and Mrs. Guy Harris, Dr. and Mrs. Wayne Harm, Mr. and Mrs. Galen Fritchie, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bush and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mays.

"Flapper" Colleen Moore Talks Of 'Roaring 20s' And Clothes

BY ANGELA TAYLOR
(c) New York Times Service

New York — "Don't worry, girls. No edict of fashion arbiters will ever swathe you in long and cumbersome skirts . . . long skirts, corsets and flowing tresses have gone . . . the American girl will see to this. She is independent, a thinker and will not follow slavishly the ordinances of those, who in the past, have decreed this or that for her to wear."

The date was 1925. The author, Colleen Moore, of the one blue eye and one brown eye, was the first movie Flapper. As such, she was to be at the vanguard of the most important fashion revolution of the century, when skirts rose above the knee, bosoms vanished and waistlines slid down to the hips. After she appeared in "Flaming Youth" in 1923, women were never to look the same again. Her Dutch bob was copied in every village and hamlet and so was her pert, emancipated air.

These days, Colleen Moore laughs at the purported naughtiness of the Flapper. "Actually all she did was drink a cocktail and smoke a cigarette in public. Underneath, she was a good girl."

Still, the new word (supposedly derived from the flapping, open galoshes of the time) upset the Camp-Fire Girls enough for them to object publicly to the use of "flapper." They wanted the new generation to be known as "modern."

Miss Moore is 69, her dark hair is straight, and without the bangs she wore in "Flaming Youth," but it is still ear-length. And her new black dress from Bill Blass with its white collar and cuffs looks familiar — "Oh, I've worn may dresses like this one."

Having watched the nineteen-twenties, the thirties and the forties come back into style these past few years, how does she feel?

Just as in 1925, she disliked the recent wave of midcalf skirts. "I felt old and dowdy in the midi, I shortened mine to knee length."

Her favorite memory is the black net flapper dress Howard Greer designed for "Flaming youth," but her favorite design period, she says, was that of the thirties. "when the waist came and hems were just below the knee."

She loves to wear pants in California and is amused that the young think they've dreamed up the fad for blue jeans.

After all, she wore jeans as far back as 1917, when she came to Hollywood at 15 to be another Lillian Gish. Instead, she found herself playing pure-as-snow heroins in silent westerns with Tom Mix, where she always came out second best to his horse, Tony.

The jeans were fine, but she got pretty tired of the curls she had to put up herself and the gingham dresses she wore when she wasn't on horseback. At her mother's suggestion, she cut off the curls in 1923 and landed the part of the flapper.

"Flaming Youth" was banned in Boston, a fact that brings a burst of laughter from the first flapper, but it got her a string of Charleston dancing parts. Clara Bow was to make her own splash soon as the "It" girl, but the queen of flapperdom was still the 98-pound, curveless Irish girl who started out life as Kathleen Morrison in Port Huron, Mich, and who grew up in Tampa, Fla., where her father was in the machinery business.

Under the tutelage of eesigner Janet Sondheim she learned to look both all-American and very chic. A photograph of her taken with James J. Walker, then mayor of New York, shows her in a handkerchief-pointed chiffon dress that has had any number of revivals since 1928.

She is still passionately interested in clothes and is looking forward to her new house in Paso Robles, Calif.

Miss Moore quit the movies in 1937, when she married her third husband, Homer Hargrave, a Chicago broker. Hargrave, who died in 1967, taugh his wife enough about money for her to write a book, "How Women Can Make Money In The Stock Market," and to also join a leading brokerage house.

Now she has a myriad other interests: grandchildren and her famous doll house — the fabulous fairy castle that took seven years and almost $500,000 to build. The house has toured the country for charity and is in the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago Now there is a book about it, published by Doubleday.

The flapper — "not beautiful, but a good girl" — seems tame these days. But her clothes were an awful lot of fun, and Miss Moore says she wouldn't be a bit surprised to see them revived over and over again.

Abby: have a noisy battle

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's family. We get along for the most part, but when it comes to politics and related social issues, we disagree violently. In order to keep every get-together from erupting into a noisy battle, I just keep my mouth shut.

However, my children are now old enough to understand the talk and I don't like some of the statements made by my husband's family to go unchallenged. Yet I know they are the kind of people with whom one cannot have an intelligent discussion. All they know how to do is yell and argue.

They (my husband's people) always initiate these political discussions, and to keep the peace, I say nothing. How in the world can I keep quiet without destroying my children's beliefs in my ideals?

BUTTONED LIP

DEAR LIP: A good noisy battle involving politics and related social issues is much healthier for children than the choked off silence you're maintaining in the interest of peace and quiet. Speak up! Silence implies agreement.

DEAR ABBY: I am divorced and have four children. I've been dating Harold for two years and we plan on marrying.

Here is my question: Harold contends that if we take my children out to eat, or for entertainment, I should pay for the children until we are married.

My argument is that since we do this only occasionally, it is not too much to expect Harold to treat them.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Harold may not be "stingy" — but he's no big spender either. My friend Amy Vanderbilt (who is the last word on "accepted etiquet") says that when a divorcee and her children are invited out, the "host" picks up the tab for ALL the guests. (P.S. If you plan to marry Harold, establish all the financial ground rules in advance or prepare for some rough money fights!)

DEAR ABBY I was invited to attend the wedding of a girl who works where I started working about a month ago (I'll call her Rosie) I accepted. Another co-worker who was also invited asked if we could buy Rosie a wedding present together I said okay We bought the gift and had it delivered to Rosie's home.

Both the co-worker and I got a "thank-you" note for the "shower gift " We weren't invited to any shower, and the card we enclosed with our present plainly said, "FOR YOUR WEDDING " Well, anybody can make a mistake, so I didn't care about that, but listen to this:

The day before the wedding, Rosie calls me up and asks me NOT to come to her wedding because she "over-invited" and there wasn't enough room She called the other co-worker and told her the same thing

Do you think Rosie should have offered to return our gift? Or at least try to patch things up by offering to bring us a piece of wedding cake? Thank you.

"LOST OUT" IN N J.

DEAR "LOST": Either your friend Rosie has corn flakes where her brains belong, or she became addled by her forthcoming nuptials. Forget it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO EDITH IN LONG BEACH. What's done is done. When you pick a lemon, make a lemonade!

tour of the shops has a do-it- yourself theme

When winter finally takes hold many of us will find ourselves lost and trapped inside—and will be searching high and low for indoor activities to keep us occupied until the spring colors once again show their faces.

Making things for the home, for loved ones, and even for ourselves will be a sure-cure for monotony during those cold, windy winter days and nights. And remember that it is not too late to begin making Christmas gifts and home decorations.

AT BRANDEIS

The short sweater vest has made its grand return and Bucilla has come up with a great kit complete with all of the necessary tools to make a stunning flower top. The kit, which sells for $4, has only four skeins of yarn. It won't take any time to complete this piece of apparel—and the colors are striking, including combinations of purple, rust and yellow; brown, bone, and pink; white, blue, and green, and several others.

If you are interested in making up-to-date clothes for yourself or others, we recommend the Suede Yourself kits from Craftmaker, LTD. The kits, priced between $8 and $16, possess all of the makings for hats, skirts, hot pants, ponchos, and much, much more—and the colors are divine, including rich shades of brown and purple.

There are all sorts of gifts to make for the kiddies. The grow charts, with embroidered and stitched cartoon characters or animals, are interesting pieces for a child's bedroom—as well as the Creative Decor kits which help to create cute animal pictures for his or her room. Any child also would love to receive the soft toy dolls with the charming faces. These sell for $6.

The Creative Decor kits, complete with unfinished frames, also offer interesting plaques for the kitchen. The $7.50 kit has many varieties of beans and peas which are glued on the cotton background to form chickens and other kitchen clatter creatures.

The wide popularity of string art inspired the kits from Spinnerin. The creations are contemporary — and the $5 kits include all of the necessities, including nails and a bright cotton background, for making these interesting wall hangings.

Another interesting item we found was a needlepoint tennis racket cover. The design is a cluster of four leaf clovers, and the kit sells for $10.

By the way, Brandeis also has a huge stock of Christmas decorations — some are knitted and some are to be jewelled. The do-it-yourself kits, ranging in price from $3.50 to $15, include such adornments as Christmas stockings, calendars, growth charts, holiday covers for electric light switches, tree ornaments and skirts, mail or gift bags, and decorative center panels for the holiday table.

FASHION YARDAGE

This newer fabric shop in the center on the southeast corner of 56th and O Streets specializes in knits and easy care fabrics and offers a wide variety of the unusual.

In the front of this rather large store are rows and rows of beautiful polyesters. There are assortments of patterned polyesters in a double knit, as well as stripes and solids.

Women will love the attractive knits for men's wear, and there is a choice of wool double knits as well as polyesters. There is also a class given in sewing men's fashions, if you would like to learn.

Seamstresses who plan to make their own holiday dresses will be pleased with the selection of party fabrics. For the more casual occasion there are denim velvets of 100 percent cotton, with the attribute of being washable.

For the more formal affair there is a large selection of metallic brocades. One of our favorites featured a deep purple background with a design in metallic gold and silver. Another beautiful brocade features mother of pearl woven into a beige background with accents of gold metallic.

Fake furs are popular this year for everything from coats to bedspreads. There are the fun furs for home accessories, as well as fake animal furs for coats or maybe a vest or skirt.

For your child's room, there are cotton quilting fabrics with coordinated polyester materials. The patterns include animal figures, Raggedy Anns, and circus figures. They would serve well for bedspreads and coordinated draperis.

One of the specialty areas of the Fashion Yardage is the bridal boutique area where there is everything for the bride from headpieces to garters.

The store also offers all of the accessories for the seamstress, from trims to appliques to do-it-yourself belt and tie kits.

AT SINGER'S

The busy seamstress needs to have some place to keep all of her supplies together—and Singer's has the answer to this problem—the sewing box.

The sewing boxes come in all shapes, sizes, and patterns. Some are covered with cotton or vinyl with bright prints, florals, patterns, and even paisleys. There also are some interesting wicker sewing boxes.

If sewing is not your cup of tea, we recommend the sewing boxes for a multitude of other home needs. Some gals use them for wig cases, purses, and even as shoe totes—as well as for organizing their knitting, crocheting, or embroidery supplies.

By the way, Singer's has everything imaginable for the seamstress, and even for the beginner.

Phi Gamma Delta Has Pig Dinner

Fijidom was out in full force very recently. We won't go so far as to say that all 1,100 living men who at one time or another have inhabited the realm of Lambda Nu Chapter were on hand, but a goodly crowd was on hand.

It was Phi Gamma Delta fraternity's 'Norris Pig Dinner' which was held at the Nebraska Club and at which the guest speaker was William R. Hauser, a vice-president of American Motor Inns, Inc., and Archon president of the fraternity.

Dr. Hauser is not a member of Lambda Nu chapter at the University of Nebraska but 'Jerry' Solomon is. Mr. Solomon, the branch manager of Occidental Life Insurance Co. of California, is a Fiji at Nebraska. received a great share of applause from his Phi Gam brothers.

Mr. Solomon was elected to the office Archon Councilor at the fraternity's 122nd Ekklesia last year, but there will be those who remember that he directed his fraternity to two first-places in the all-campus Kosmet Klub shows, and also to first and second places in the inter-fraternity son contests.

The Norris Pig Dinner dates back to 1893—and it honors the late Frank B. Norris (California '94). It was Mr. Norris, after a long night devoted to merriment and a squealing pig, proposed that the pig dinner become "a tradition in the fraternity."

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Spades and North leads the king of clubs. (Trumps are divided 2-2). How would you play the hand?

	♠ A K J 7 3 ♥ K 9 ♦ A 9 5 ♣ 7 4 2
♠ Q 10 9 2 ♥ 8 7 4 ♦ K J 10 3 ♣ A 6	N W E S

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Notrump and North leads the jack of spades. How would you play the hand?

	♠ A 7 3 2 ♥ 5 ♦ A K Q 8 4 2 ♣ A 9
♠ K 6 ♥ A K Q 7 4 ♦ 10 3 ♣ K 6 5 2	N W E S

1. The contract is in danger only if North has the ace of hearts and you misguess the diamond finesse. Thus, if you won the club lead, drew trumps and lost a diamond to South, a heart return could lay you low. Equally, if you lost a diamond to North, he might be cunning enough to put partner on lead with a club, and in that case a heart return from South would again expose you to ignominious defeat.

To prevent all this from happening you must organize the play so that South, the dangerous opponent, cannot take the lead for a heart return through your king. In line with this, you start by ducking the king of clubs in order to sever communication between North and South in clubs.

Let's assume North leads another club. Win with the ace, draw two rounds of trumps, lead the jack of diamonds from dummy and finesse. Even if the finesse loses, you are sure of ten tricks because North cannot profitably attack hearts.

2. There is only one danger, namely, that one opponent has the missing diamonds. Consequently all your thoughts are directed to guarding against this one possibility. The threat can be met very simply by winning the first trick with the ace of spades and playing a low diamond towards the ten.

If North has all the diamonds, the best he can do is score the jack, whether he plays it at once or permits the ten to win the trick. If South has all of them, he can win the ten with the jack, but his remaining diamonds will then be easy to trap.

The safety play in diamonds, though unusual, is well worth the price. It guarantees the slam, come what may, and the premium declarer pays for this insurance is a paltry 30 points.

Provincialism Evident

The Midlands perhaps has a false reputation for its provincialism while the coastal areas are supposed to be more cosmopolitan.

But one place where the Midlands has nothing over other areas in provincialism is in the football ratings. What else other than provincialism can you blame the fact on that Stanford ranks ahead of either Colorado or Tennessee in this week's football polls?

Stanford, ranked 10th, has losses to unranked Duke and Washington State while Colorado, in the second 10, has lost only to No. 1-rated Nebraska and No. 2-ranked Oklahoma, and Tennessee, also stuck away in the second 10, has been beaten only by top tenners Alabama and Auburn.

A West Coast writer, back to cover the Oklahoma-Colorado game a month ago, tried to tell us that the only team in the country better than Stanford was Michigan.

Michigan and Stanford are going to get plenty of support in the polls from West Coast and Big Ten writers in future weeks because those writers must try to build up what shapes up to be a bad bowl game in the Rose Bowl.

But for Michigan to become No. 1 this season would take more combinations coming out right than it took for Nebraska to do it last season.

Last week's picking mark was only 39-16-1 for 70.5%, dropping the season log to 333-129-5 for 71.8%. Hoping for a recovery, this week:

The Big Eight

NEBRASKA 38, Kansas State 7 . . . The Huskers play them one at a time and that's trouble for foes.

COLORADO 28, Oklahoma State 14 . . . The Buffs are entertaining bowl hopes.

IOWA STATE 16, Missouri 3 . . . The Cyclones looked bad last week, but Nebraska makes everyone look bad.

OKLAHOMA 52, Kansas 14 . . . With the defense the Jayhawks have, they ought to forget this one — except it's a TV game.

The Top Ten

MICHIGAN 35, Purdue 7 . . . The Wolverines are playing that old ratings game of running up the score.

ALABAMA 28, Miami, Fla. 7 . . . Johnny (Musso) won't run this week, but the Tide is still good enough to win handily.

PENN STATE 51, North Carolina State 7 . . . Penn State is playing the same game Michigan is.

NOTRE DAME 42, Tulane 7 . . . Now that Ara's found his offense, he can start pouring it on people again.

ARIZONA STATE 35, Wyoming 0 . . . Even if they were playing in Laramie instead of Tempe, the Cowboys would be no match.

STANFORD 28, San Jose State 7 . . . If any team is due for a letdown this week, it's the Indians, who have wrapped up a league title and a bowl berth.

—UNHAPPY WITH BULLETS—

Pearl Happy With Trade To Knicks?

New York (AP) — Earl "The Pearl" Monroe, who issued a trade-me-or-else ultimatum to the Baltimore Bullets, got his way Thursday when he was acquired by the New York Knicks in a multi-faceted transaction.

In order to acquire the unhappy Monroe, who in four National Basketball Association seasons has reached superstar status, the Knicks gave the Bullets forward Dave Stallworth, guard Mike Riordan and an undisclosed amount of cash.

There, however, seemed to be some confusion over whether the deal had met with Monroe's approval. Red Holzman, the Knicks' coach and general manager, said he had not talked to Monroe but had spoken to his agent and acknowledged "there are a few things we have to iron out."

Pressed to elaborate, Holzman, refused, continually repeating the phrase "there are a few things we have to iron out" over and over again to every question concerning the details that remained outstanding.

But Holzman did say that Monroe's contract "has been agreed upon. It's a multiple year contract—more than a year. But I wouldn't care to say for how many years."

Monroe, whose 21.4 average last year was his lowest since joining the Bullets out of Winston-Salem College in 1967-68, played only three games for the Baltimore club before he failed to show for a game against the Knicks on Oct. 22.

At that time, Jerry Sachs, the Bullets' executive vice president, said Monroe had given the club an utlimatum through his agent stating that he wanted to be traded and would no longer play in Baltimore. The Bullets immediately placed him under suspension.

Asked how Monroe, who was used by the Bullets primarily as a one-on-one player, would fit into a Knicks' pattern that relies on precision team work, Holzman replied:

"I don't think he's basically a one-on-one player. He's basically a basketball player and can adjust to anything that has to be done on a basketball court. We know he has great talent and we hope to put it to use here."

Holzman, however, said he probably would continue to start Walt Frazier and Dick Barnett in the Knicks' backcourt, although Monroe "has been working out and he's supposed to be in shape."

Stallworth, who is in his fifth NBA season after sitting out two years with a heart ailment, carried a 10.6 career average into the season.

MADISON DOWNS GETS AXE

. . . Lincoln Track Said 'Disgrace To Racing'

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Madison Downs, as expected, Thursday was removed from the Nebraska Thoroughbred racing circuit after 36 years, but getting even more attention as the Nebraska State Racing Commission wound up a two-day meeting here was the poor facilities at the State Fairgrounds track in Lincoln.

After listening to everyone from horsemen to racing commission chairman Harry Farnham tell how bad conditions are in Lincoln, one horseman, Bob Lee, quipped, "Maybe we ought to let Madison have dates and take away Lincoln's dates."

But after more than an hour of discussion on the Lincoln facilities, State Fair manager Henry Brandt suggested that a committee be set up to attempt to work toward a new facility for the Capital City.

The suggestion was met with a completely favorable response from horsemen, other track managers and the commission and the committee to be composed of the various segments of the racing industry plus some outsiders is expected to be named soon.

"The Lincoln track has had outstanding management," Farnham said, beginning the discussion, "But the plant is a disgrace to racing and to the State of Nebraska."

Brandt responded that because of state laws governing the State Fair Board's actions and because of difficulty in getting their points across to some legislators, his plans for building a new facility were running into problems.

"Horse racing has supported the State Fair for years," he pointed out, "And if it hadn't been for racing, we wouldn't even have the Fairgrounds we have now nor the fairs we have today.

"But for horse racing, we're ending up using the same facilities we had in 1935 or 1936. My board is gung-ho to go, but there's nothing we can do unless the legislature says okay."

Brandt noted that in 1971, racing at the State Fairgrounds paid in the "neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars to the State of Nebraska in taxes and got not a dime back.

"If we could get back even a portion of what we have given, we could get started on building a new plant and with a decent facility, we could double our pari-mutuel handle in the first year.

"If we could just get the legislature to invest 2½ million dollars, in 10 years they would get all their money back plus interest."

"Lincoln should have a fine race track and a fine fairgrounds," he began. "But no one in Lincoln is standing up. Some one in Lincoln has got to stand up and give support to this thing.

"To get the job of building a new plant done, it will take help from the Nebraska Association of Race Tracks, from the Nebraska Breeders Association, the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association and the county fair people.

"But it's got to start in Lincoln. The spark must come from someone in Lincoln."

The end of thoroughbred racing at Madison marked the third track in the past 20 years to fall with Alliance bowing out after the 1963 season and Mitchell after the 1967 season.

"There's not a track in Nebraska that has had better management than Madison." Farnham said as it became evident that Madison was through. "Nor is there a track that has been more cooperative in the Nebraska system.

"The decision not to award 1972 racing dates to Madison is the most unpleasant decision the commission has had to make.

"However, a combination of factors necessitates this action. In spite of their outstanding management under Morris (Butch) Moyer and his dedicated board, the meet has lost money each of the last four years.

"The economic situation makes it unfair to the horsemen to require them to race during this period for greatly reduced purses, not to mention the loss of tax revenue to the State of Nebraska.

"However, the commission, in conjunction with Butch Moyer and his board, is exploring different formats of pari-mutuel horse racing for Madison Downs, hoping in the near future that the track can continue in the great tradition of the past."

The removal of Madison from the racing scene for 1972 set off a wild scramble for the track's 13 dates and the three-man commission of Farnham, Robert Logsdon of Lincoln and Ken Jenkins of Grand Island said final dates would not be set for the 1972 season before Friday morning.

Dates requested by the tracks Thursday were:

Fonner Park — March 3-4, 10-11, 17-April 29.
Ak-Sar-Ben — May 2-July 15.
Lincoln — July 18-Aug. 23.
Columbus — Aug. 21-Sept. 23.

Sloey Will Make First Road Trip

Sloey, a 6-1 225-pounder, was the starting linebacker for coach Bob Devaney's Huskers at the beginning of the season but has been hampered recently with a knee injury.

The junior from Hawthorne, Calif. pounced on an Iowa State fumble deep in NU territory in last Saturday's 37-0 victory over the Cyclones to help preserve the shutout.

Trio Picks Huskers

The collegiate football forecasting trio of The Associated Press' Will Grimsley and Herschell Nissenson and United Press International's Charlie Smith all see a Nebraska victory over Kansas State.

Grimsley picks the Huskers by 43-17, commenting, "Cornhusker fans continue to flood us with letters saying Nebraska is great. We know it."

In picking NU, Nissenson observes, "Next . . . Oklahoma. The Cornhuskers throttled Iowa State 37-0 last Saturday and now go after K-State's Dennis Morrison, who is coming off a 363-yard passing effort."

Oddsmakers Say 33

The nation's oddsmakers have made Nebraska a 33-point favorite in the Huskers' contest with Kansas State Saturday.

In other Big Eight games, Oklahoma is favored by 30 over Kansas, Iowa State by 12 over Missouri and Colorado 14 over Oklahoma State.

Nicklaus Collects Individual Lead

. . . UNITED STATES TIED FOR SECOND

Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. (AP) — Streaking Jack Nicklaus shot a four-under-par 68 for the individual lead but South Africa, fired by Gary Player, took first place in the team competition Thursday in the opening round of the World Cup Golf Tournament.

Player, making his first appearance in this country in about three months, didn't have a bogey in his round of 69 that led his teammate Harold Henning to a two-man total of 140, four under par on the long, demanding 7,096-yard, east course at the PGA National golf course.

The Americans — Nicklaus teamed with Super Mex Lee Trevino, who had the putting woes again — and New Zealand were tied in the team competition at 143, three strokes off the leading pace.

Rangy young Peter Oosterhuis had a 69 and led England — he was paired with Tony Jacklin in the two-man team competition between 46 nations — to a 144 total. Jacklin had a 75.

Those were the only nations able to match or break par on the course that offered severe rough and gusty winds, contributing to some extremely slow play. The average time for the 18 holes was just over six hours.

"Well," quipped Trevino, "it's better than being in the room."

Trevino, holder of the single season money winning record, six titles including the British, American and Canadian Open crowns and a prime candidate for the individual crown in this tournament, could do no better than 75.

He bogeyed, three of his first four holes and had three times three-putted, the same problem that plagued him last week when he finished tied for third in the Mexican Open.

"I played pretty good," admitted Nicklaus, winner of tournaments in Australia each of the last two weeks.

Nicklaus, second only to Trevino on the money winning list in America and winner of four American titles this year, had five birdies and a pair of bogeys, on the seventh and eighth holes.

He three-putted the seventh and put his second shot over the green on the eighth.

"He had a terrible shot to mak right there," Trevino said.

"I thought, 'Oh, my goodness. I'm riding him, and he's made one bogey and is about to make another one and what's going to happen to the rider if the horse breaks down.'

"I want to tell you I've got some kind of a partner. He's just so long and strong. That's what made it play so slow. A lot of these little guys from the Asian countries got to hit alot of shots to get to the green. And if they miss a fairway, they're out there in the rough spending 15 minutes trying to find their ball."

It was so slow that two teams failed to finish before darkness blanketed the course. The Romanians and Libya were on the 18th tee when they decided they couldn't go on. The Romanians wre 44 over par and the Libyans 26 over. They'll finish Friday.

Injured Frosh Face K-State

Manhattan, Kan. — Nebraska's freshman football team will open with a "new coach" in Friday's tilt at Manhattan against Kansas State, but few operational changes are expected.

Assistant freshman coach Jim Walden will assume head coaching duties from Jim Ross who sustained knee and leg injuries early in last Friday's 54-15 victory over Iowa State at Memorial Stadium.

"We'll do the same things we've been practicing on," Walden says, "We'll do the same things if Jim was coaching."

Injuries, however, may necessitate some changes. Tom Coccia, from Hillside, N.J., will replace Matt Peterson from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, at split end and Marv Beck, a 6-1 200-pounder from Litchfield, may spell Dave Iverson, who has a leg injury, at a linebacker post.

Although Nebraska is seeking for its second straight undefeated frosh campaign and tenth consecutive victory dating back to the 1969 season, Walden realizes the young Wildcats are in a growling mood.

"It'll be a tough game — we're going to have to play equally as well as we did last week (against Iowa State) if we expect to win," he adds.

The young Huskers are undefeated after three starts (Missouri, Wichita State and Iowa State) while coach R. C. Slocum's crew boasts a 7-6 victory over Kansas and a 27-10 triumph over Wichita State and fell 49-32 to Missouri.

Slocum, in analyzing the season's finale for both squads which begins at 1:30 p.m. at KSU Stadium, hopes his team can recover from the physical effects of the loss to Missouri.

"We have a lot of players bruised and battered who just haven't been able to work much since the Missouri game," he said. "We know it's going to be tough against Nebraska but if we can get an offense going, play some defense and not get any thinner with injuries we have a chance."

Both squads boast runners with impressive credentials. KSU's Regan Steiner has gained 210 yards for a 6.0 average and Cal Leonard has earned 161 yards for a 4.0 average.

Fullback Tom Ruud, a 212-pounder from Bloomington, Minn., leads NU in scoring with 24 points. He can tie the Husker record of six touchdowns held jointly by Jeff Kinney (in 1968), Johnny Rodgers (in 1969) and Don Westbrook (in 1970) with two scores.

Ruud also has a crack at Kinney's scoring mark of 39 points set in 1968.

NU team records in jeopardy, already tied or broken:

—Current team has lost 10 fumbles. Record is 11 in 1966.

—team needs 384 rushing yards to break record of 1,093 set in 1965.

—team has thrown one interception which ties record set in 1966.

—defense has allowed 309 passing yards. Record is 453 in 1966.

—defense has permitted 816 total yards. Record is 878 in 1966.

—opponents have lost 11 fumbles. Previous record was eight in 1969.

—BOOED OFF FIELD—

Morrison Top K-State Hope

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State is pinning its hopes of beating top-ranked Nebraska Saturday on the shoulders of a quarterback who was literally booed off the field last month.

The quarterback is Dennis Morrison, who inherited the job from Lynn Dickey, for three seasons the record-breaking passer of the Big Eight Conference.

Suddenly, after Kansas State was shut out by Iowa State, Coach Vince Gibson shifted back to the pro type offense with two wide receivers and dropback passing which made Dickey the aerial wizard of the league.

The results have been little short of spectacular. Morrison has connected on 67 of 124 passes for 864 yards and two victories in the Wildcats' last three games.

"He has amazed us," Gibson said Thursday. "Morrison is a leader now. He's confident, he's got poise and he can scramble. It's hard to throw any better than he is right now . . . Dickey or anybody else. There's no telling how good he's going to be."

Morrison has moved to the top in the Big Eight passing race, replacing Jerry Tagge, the Nebraska sharpshooter who will be matching wits with the revitalized Wildcat star Saturday.

Gibson and Morrison know what they're up against with the Cornhuskers, who haven't lost in 28 consecutive games, coming to town.

"They don't throw the interception and have a very high completion percentage," Gibson said. "It's going to be tough with the great balance between rushing and passing that Nebraska has. Johnny Majors told me to pray."

Sooners Apply Finishing Touches

Norman, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma Sooners put the finishing touches on their game plan for the Kansas Jayhawks Thursday.

The second-ranked Sooners will host Kansas this week in the regionally televised game.

"Our squad has a good knowledge of what we hope to do against Kansas," said Fairbanks.

Fairbanks feels the Sooners are not taking their opponent too lightly. "I think that this game means so much to our squad that they are not looking beyond it. If we don't play our best, Kansas is a good enough football team to beat us."

He said the team was in its best physical condition in several weeks.

Sanger Shares Scoring Lead With Big 8 Kickers

. . . HUSKER KICKER SCORES 55 POINTS

Kansas City, Mo. — Nebraska sophomore Rich Sanger's three field goals and four extra points in the Huskers' 37-0 win over Iowa State vaulted him into a share of tht kick-scoring lead in the Big Eight Conference.

Sanger's record of 43 for 47 on conversions and four of seven field goal attempts gives him 55 points, the same as Oklahoma kicker John Carroll, who has booted 34 of 42 extra points and is seven-for-nine on field goal attempts.

While Sanger was moving into a share of the kick-scoring lead, NU quarterback Jerry Tagge was losing his league lead in both passing and total offense.

Dennis Morrison of Kansas State, who must face the Husker Black Shirts Saturday, grabbed the passing lead from Tagge, averaging 163.3 yards per game to 157.9 for Tagge.

Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers continues to lead the Big Eight in pass receiving with 35 catches for 634 yards, punt returning with a 17.2 average per return and kickoff returns with a per-return average of 32.6 yards.

He also is only six points back of Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and Kansas State's Bill Butler in the scoring race with 78 points.

—FIGHTS TO DRAW—

Shibata Retains Featherweight Title

Matsuyama, Japan (AP) — Kuniaki Shibata, of Japan, World Boxing Council featherweight champion, bleeding badly from a facial cut, fought back gamely and battled Panamanian challenger Ernesto Marcel to a controversial 15-round draw Thursday to retain his title.

A crowd of 8,000 saw Marcel outbox and punish the champion in the eighth and 12th rounds.

After the final bell ending one of the most exciting world title fights ever held in Japan, South Korean Referee Chung Yong-Su approched Marcel and raised his arm. This caused the misunderstanding that the Panamanian challenger had won the fight.

The television announcer, broadcasting the battle live on a nationwide hookup then announced Marcel as the winner.

After moments of confusion, the Japan Boxing Commission announced the fighters fought to a draw, enabling Shibata to retain the title he earned by defeating Mexico's Vicente Saldivar in December 1970.

There were no knockdowns.

Referee Chung warned the Panamanian about low blows in the third and then ordered one point deducted from Marcel's scorecard for butting in the sixth.

It was Shibata's first draw in 37 professional fights, which also includes 34 victories and two losses. It was the third draw for Marcel, who has had 37 fights, winning 31-19 by knockouts—and losing three.

Shibata weighed 125¼ pounds and Marcel 125¾.

The workshop will be held at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel under the sponsorship of the Nebraska Recreation and Parks Association in cooperation with the League of Nebraska Municipalities, the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Division.

Sen. William F. Swanson will be honored at the noon luncheon for his efforts in spearheading state legislation dealing with recreation and parks. Luncheon speaker will be Stan Matzke, director of the State Department of Economic Development.

Stewart Sees Safety As Increasing Force

Glasgow, Scotland (AP) — Jackie Stewart, world champion racing driver, predicted Thursday that several scheduled Grand Prix events would not take place next year for safety reasons.

"We are losing far too many top drivers," he said.

Racing drivers' protests over safety standards at circuits were mounting, he added.

"Although there are 15 or 16 world championship events listed for next year, I cannot see them all taking place," said the two-time Scottish world champion.

"Some race tracks will have to put themselves in order or temporarily bow out," said Stewart.

"If this is the case, it will be my loss and everybody else's loss but motor sport will benefit," he declared.

Stewart, vice-president of the Grand Prix drivers association, said that if safety precautions were not taken, drivers and spectators could be involved in serious accidents.

He did not name which circuits were affected by drivers' protests.

Three top line Grand Prix drivers have been killed on the track this year. The most recent was the Swiss ace Jo Siffert, who died in the flaming wreck of his BRM racer at the British Brands Hatch circuit on Oct. 24.

. . . NUMBERED ACCOUNT, RIVA RIDGE AT GARDEN STATE

Roger, 36, trains Numbered Account, already assured of being 2-year-old filly of 1971. Lucien, 59, conditions Riva Ridge, a shoo-in as 2-year-old colt of the year.

The father and son, filly and colt, meet Saturday at Garden State Park in the 1 1-16-mile Garden State Stakes for 2-year-olds. The winner could become Horse of the Year. Of course, there are six other colts entered, but the overwhelming consensus of experts is that one of the Laurins will take top money in the $125,000-added race.

Lucien was asked if parental pride was strong enough to make him secretly root for his son.

"No," he snapped with a tone of finality. "You can bet your sweet life I hope he comes in second-to-me."

The first pill Lucien grabbed was for Numbered Account. She drew post No. 4. Later he pulled No. 5 for Riva Ridge. The father-son, filly-colt rivalry will break from the gate side-by-side. The trainers expressed little concern about the post positions, saying they weren't significant in a small field.

Gibson Honored To Play No. 1 Football Team

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State had a 60-minute workout Thursday, its last practice session before the football game with Nebraska here Saturday.

Coach Vince Gibson said, "We're in good spirit. We think it is a great honor to play Nebraska. When you play the No. 1 team in the nation in front of a sellout crowd there is something wrong with you if you don't get enthused."

"If we expect to beat Nebraska, we have to stop Johnny Rodgers and Jerry Tagge without making any mistakes," Gibson added.

Knights Visit Blues Friday

Omaha — The Omaha Knights meet Kansas City at the Missouri site Friday night and then return to Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum for a Central Hockey League tilt at 8 p.m. Saturday against the Blues.

Left wing Norm Gratton leads Omaha in scoring with eight goals and three assists for 11 points while goalie Wayne Wood sports a 2.41 goals-against-average.

Mathis Weighs 264 As Ali Tips 'Light' 229

Houston (AP) — Muhammad Ali and Buster Mathis, preparing for their scheduled 12-round Astrodome fight Nov. 17, were pronounced in good physical condition Thursday.

At a pre-fight medical examination described as "Buster's last stand" by Ali, Mathis weighed 264 and Ali 229½.

Dr. Jacob Whitehurst, appointed by the Texas State Boxing Commission, said both fighters were in "fine physical condition."

"I found no problems although Mathis' pulse was a little high," Whitehurst said.

Mathis' pulse was 88, Ali's 64.

Later Ali told newsmen he was "always calm at these things. I was the same way before the Joe Frazier fight."

Both men were pleased with their weight. Mathis said he expected to be down to about 255 by fight time and Ali said he should weigh 225 Wednesday night.

Ali, wouldn't predict a round but he told newsmen how the fight was going to end.

"Who knows, it might end in one or it might go 11," he said. "It depends how long he can linger. Two right hands are going to get him. One to set him up and the other to put him out."

NWU Football Record Book Undergoes Major Changes

. . . McLAUGHLIN ADDS TO PASS RECEIVING RECORDS

This was only the sixth team in the school's history to win seven games. The 189 points scored ranks ninth on the all-time list. An identical 7-2 club in 1919 leads that department with 241 points.

John McLaughlin owned every pass receiving record in the book even before this year started. So in that department the marks just needs to be increased.

His 41 receptions for 520 yards and eight touchdowns this year replaces his marks of 38-406-4 of 1969. That sophomore year he also got 10 grabs in one game. The new career marks for the potential all-American read 97 receptions for 1252 yards and 14 touchdowns.

McLaughlin's 84 points rank him fifth on the all-time scorers list. "Big Mac" leads the NIAC league in receptions and points scored despite being shut out in the TD department since NWU's fifth game.

Junior quarterback Dave McGrane was well on the way to some records of his own until he underwent surgery for a shoulder injury and missed the last three contests.

Not a single Wesleyan rusher was healthy the entire season. Leaders Darrell Wubbels and Lonnie Tapp actually recorded less than half of the team's playing time during the season.

Land Paving Co. Recycling Slag From OPPD Plant

Omaha (UPI) — The Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) said an Omaha paving firm is providing the area with an environmental bonus by recycling thousands of tons of slag, cinders and fly ash from OPPD's North Omaha Power Station.

The contract with the Land Paving Co. calls for it to pay OPPD $1,000 a year plus 10 cents per ton for hauling the matter from the 646,000-kilowatt power station.

Thus far the company has hauled away about 14,000 tons of slag.

Cool Export

Godhaab, Greenland — Would you like to cool your drinks with ice thousands of years old, from the Greenland ice cap? You can. The steel-hard ice has pearly bubbles that burst with a click when the ice melts.

The Royal Greenland Trade Department is marketing "Ice Cap Rocks" and exporting them to Europe and the United States.

Service To End

London (AP) — Canadian Pacific announced it is withdrawing its 25,800-ton passenger liner Empress of Canada from transatlantic and cruise service on Nov. 23, ending some 70 years of passenger service.

Rumors Circulate About Cubs

. . . DUROCHER TO CONTINUE AS CHICAGO MANAGER?

Chicago (AP) — If doughty Leo Durocher is not retained as Chicago Cub manager for 1972, his successor may be one of Leo's old New York Giant stars, Whitey Lockman.

Owner Phil Wrigley, who eliminated veteran Cub star Ernie Banks Wednesday as a possible Durocher successor, has summoned Durocher "for a talk" when the Cub field boss of six seasons returns shortly from an Arizona visit.

1. Lockman, supervisor of Cub player development, could replace Durocher if Wrigley—who still thinks Durocher has done a good job despite mounting media criticism—fails to retain Leo.

2. Banks, 40, will leave the active roster and become fulltime coach at first base where he played spasmedically on ailing legs the past two seasons.

3. John Holland, Cub vice president who actually is general manager, has taken full charge of all off-the-field operations, including hiring of coaches and trades.

Holland hired Larry Jansen as pitching coach Wednesday. Jansen was an 11-season member of the San Francisco Giant staff and one-time pitching star for the New York Giants under Durocher.

It is reported Jansen is the first of an all-new 1972 Cub coaching staff with the only two remaining incumbents, Al Spangler and Peanuts Lowrey, expected to be dropped. Coach Joey Amalfitano, a Durocher favorite, resigned Tuesday to join the Giants.

Lockman, who apparently recommended Jansen, his old New York Giants teammate for the Cub coaching job, said at the Cubs' Arizona winter league base Wednesday he was in the dark on Durochers status.

"In all my talks with Mr. Holland, he has given no hint that Leo is out as manager," said Lockman. "I'm sorry right now that Joey Amalfitano quit to join the Giants. He was a valuable man."

Also contacted in Scottsdale, Ariz., Banks explained he went to Arizona on his own to spend some time helping the young Cub prospects.

Asked his views on becoming a regular coach, Banks said: "I'd like to play, but I wouldn't mind at all being a full-time first base coach."

In dismissing Banks as a Cub manager which would make him the first black pilot in the big leagues, Wrigley commented: "Ernie is just too valuable in our organization to waste him by making him a manager.

"He can have a job with the Cub organization as long as he lives, but I'd still tell him his greatest value is working with young players and in public relations."

Catholic, Protestant Paired In World Cup Championship

Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. (AP) — Christy O'Connor is a crusty Catholic Irishman from Dublin and Hugh Jackson is a Protestant from Ulster. One would think when they get within 10 yards of each other they'd draw guns and start firing.

Nothing could be farther from the case.

They are playing partners, representing Ireland, in 19th World Cup Golf Championships, which opened Thursday at the PGA National Club here.

"We never discuss politics or religion — we talk about hooks and missed putts," said the graying, fortyish O'Connor, playing in this globe-girdling tournament for the 12th time.

"There is no place for bitterness and feuding in golf or any other sport," said Jackson, 31, a Northern Irelander playing in the event for the second time.

The tense situation in Northern Ireland, where patrolling British soldiers are fair game of Irish revolutionary army snipers, where nuns have been slain in cold blood and the residents live in constant fear, is shrugged off by the two Irish competitors.

"Religion has nothing to do with it," said O'Connor, referring to the Irish tensions. "There is a log history of bitterness. But in golf we play under one association."

These two Irishmen from warring factions are representative of the international goodwill, the absence of national jealousies and hostilities, found in this 19-year-old event involving two-man teams from 46 countries.

Gary Player from apartheid South Africa chats on the putting green with Patrick Okpomu from darkest Africa. The Nationalist Chinese, just booted out of the UN to make room for Red China, swap tips and share comraderie with representatives of Communist Czechoslovakia and Romania.

The Nigerians play on sandgreens because they don't have grass and chase away snakes before making their putts at home. The Czechs are listed as amateurs. Communists don't recognize professionals — everybody works for the state.

Communist China is not represented.

District Meet Begins Friday For Gymnasts

A district gymnastics meet, to qualify performers for the state meet to be held a week later, will be contested at Lincoln East Friday night, starting at 7 p.m.

The Knights recently captured the Trans-Nebraska Conference championship, while Northeast, Lincoln High and East finished 4-5-6 in that order.

The state meet, a two-day affair slated for Nov. 19-20, will feature a team title this fall. The two top teams in each district will qualify for that competition.

The first eight finishers in each individual event and the top three all-around performers at the Lincoln district meet will also advance to the state meet to vie for an individual crown.

One defending state champion, Northeast tumbler Duane West, returns. Scott Bloom of Southeast, who was third at state last year in the still rings and second on the horizontal bar, is expected to lead the Knights repeat attempt.

One other returning Lincoln gymnast, Steve Dickey of Northeast, was among the top three in an event at state last fall, when he was third in the side horse.

Hunting Conditions Favorable

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Off-the-cuff predictions for Nebraska's rifle deer season indicate that hunters will probably have a little better luck this year than they have in the past.

The season, which opens Saturday and runs through Nov. 21, has indications of becoming one of Nebraska's best, according to game department officials, because the weather hasn't forced the deer on the move.

The more productive areas will probably be in the western panhandle around the Crawford and Fort Robinson area in the Pine Ridge section, but with in good weather experienced in several parts of the state, other sections could also develop "hot-spots."

Hunters in the Wahoo and Blue regions in the southeastern part of the state will probably have their best luck around the drainage areas and creek beds while in the southwestern part of the state where some crops are still standing, the edge of woods bordering on fields may also prove productive.

Deer are most active in the early morning and late evenings, but will lie up during the day. Though most deer will make use of what farm crops there are, several will be found among thick vegetation around natural browse. Alfalfa fields in the evening are often found to draw deer.

Since the continuous hunting season was first inaugurated in 1949, Nebraska hasn't had a fatality among deer hunters through careless shooting. But now isn't the time to let up, commission officials note.

"Other states draw more hunters, but that isn't any reason for carelessness in the woods in Nebraska. Hunters should be especially safety conscious this year," a spokesman for the game department said. "The good weather will undoubtedly draw more hunters to the field on opening day."

3 Truck Tractors And Two Trucks Destroyed In Fire

South Sioux City (AP) —Three truck tractors and two trucks were destroyed Thursday when flames swept the building housing Nebraska Trailer Sales and H & I Leasing on U.S. 20

South Sioux City Fire Chief Gerald Stolze said two unidentified employes were injured in the blaze but did not require hospitalization.

There also was considerable damage in the building's shop, and to tires and supplies.

Stolze estimated the loss to be about $200,000. The fire broke out when a tank of diesel fuel on a truck exploded after the flame from a cutting torch came in contact with the tank.

Firemen were at the scene for about two hours. The firm is owned by Harold Gangestad of South Sioux City.

Omahan's Death Traffic Fatality

Omaha (AP) — Deputy Douglas County Attorney Jerry Merwald, the acting coroner, said Thursday night the death of David L. Arthur, 41, of Omaha will be counted as a traffic fatality.

Arthur died at a hospital Sunday of injuries suffered in an accident Sept. 30, in West Omaha. Police said Arthur's car apparently went out of control, jumped a curb and struck a tree.

He is survived by his widow and three children.

Stock Prices Take Another Tailspin

John J. Smith, analyst for Fahnestock & Co., said the chief concern at present was that labor would get wage increases and that business would not be able to raise prices to offset the wage hikes, resulting in a profit squeeze.

He noted that the AFL-CIO would be meeting next week and would take up details of Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic program.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 11.24 points to 814.91, a decline of 1.36% and nearly 10 points below the previous 1971 low close of 825.86 Nov. 1.

On April 28 this year the Dow had recorded a 23-month high close at 950.82.

Declines outnumbered advances 1,083 to 287 among the 1,665 issues traded on the Big Board Thursday. Losers led gainers 682 to 160 among the 1,150 issues traded on the American Stock Exchange.

The New York Stock Exchange index of more than 1,300 common stocks closed down .71 at 50.87, while the Amex price-change index dropped .19 to 24.12. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was off 1.29 at 92.12.

The Associated Press 60-stock average finished the day down 3.2 at 302.0. Industrials were off 5.4, rails were down 2.1, and utilities were off .5.

Big Board volume of 13.31 million shares, compared with 13.42 million shares Wednesday, and Amex volume of 3.11 million shares was up from Wednesday's turnover of 2.67 million shares.

United Aircraft was the most actively traded big Board issue, closing down 1/8 at 25¾ on 231,500 shares — chiefly a block of 199,000 shares at 24¾.

Ninety blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded on the big board Thursday, compared with a revised total of 120 such blocks Wednesday. The United Aircraft parcel was the largest block trade of the day.

Corporate bonds were slightly higher. U.S. governments were mixed.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How to Work It

One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

to L O N G F E L L O W

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
